Action Rips $48,000,000 More From Measure to Cut Government Expenses; $117,000,000 Already Thrown Aside.

11 PCT. WAGE CUT PLAN REAFFIRMED

Exemptions Left as Fixed and Body Also Stands on Previous Action Retaining Workers' Saturday Half Holiday.

By RAYMOND P. BRANDT,
A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, May 3.—Led by Representative A. L. Bulwinkle (Dem.), North Carolina, a major of artillery in the World War, the House insurgents today virtually demolished the $48,714,000 veterans' provision in the $200,000,000 economy bill. As the wrecked measure now stands, with its principal sections eliminated, less than $2,000,000 of computable savings remains in the bill.

Marshalling the forces who were opposed to a heavy cut in veterans' relief, Bulwinkle offered an amendment to strike the entire veterans' section from the bill and to substitute a provision creating a joint commission of the House and Senate to investigate the question of consolidating veterans' relief and to report back to Congress the first Monday in December.

The Bulwinkle amendment was approved by a teller vote of 211 to 175. On viva voce and standing votes, the House seemed to be more evenly divided, but, with the galleries crowded with former service men and their Washington representatives, many Congressmen changed their minds when they realized that they had to go through the slow-motion process of filing past the tellers standing in the well of the House.

"No Use for Political Coward."

Bulwinkle's declaration that the House committees were working on economies in veterans' relief brought sharp replies from Chairman McDuffie of the Economy Committee and Representative Lewis Douglas (Dem.), Arizona. It remained for Representative Robert G. Simmons (Rep.), Nebraska, to urge the House to put aside its fear of former service men.

"This amendment," said Simmons, "is nothing more than a dodge and subterfuge to permit Congressmen to go home and say that they voted for the veterans and against economy in the veterans' administration. It provides that the commission shall report on the first Monday in December—four weeks after the election. Anyone who knows anything about legislative machinery knows that it will be impossible to act on that report by March 4, when Congress must adjourn.

"Be honest. Either vote to keep the benefits we are now giving the veterans or vote for economy. Do not be fooled by a subterfuge. The veterans have no use for a political coward."

Views for and Against.

"No matter whether a man is worth $100,000 or $1, he is entitled to some compensation for his service," said Representative William E. Hull (Rep.), Illinois.

Representative Vinson (Dem.), Kentucky, said the veterans' section was "calculated to put into effect the theories and purposes of Gen. Hines."

Representative Simmons (Rep.), Nebraska, predicted "insistent demands to open the Treasury to the veterans will start a backwash of sentiment against such legislation that will work great harm to the veterans."

"I will not vote to take from veterans benefits they now have under existing law," Representative Parker (Dem.), Georgia, said.

Representative Johnson (Rep.), South Dakota, former chairman of the Veterans Committee, said: "There is not one veteran's provision in the economy bill that should not be enacted into law and fairly and justly so."

Rankin said Representative Douglas, Arizona Democrat, and a member of the Economy Committee, was responsible for inclusion of the veterans' provision in the bill. "The gentleman from Arizona is responsible and is proud of it," Douglas replied.

Immediately after approval of the Bulwinkle amendment, which

GOLDSBOROUGH BILL CAUSES DOLLAR TO SLUMP ABROAD

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, May 3.—A sudden movement of foreign capital from this country to other money centers developed today, causing steady selling of the American dollar in the world's principal foreign exchange markets.

Leading authorities said the movement began in Europe this morning and carried over into the New York market after foreign markets closed. They attributed the shifting to fresh inflation scares aroused abroad by passage of the Goldsborough bill by the House of Representatives and to evidences that economy measures in Washington were meeting resistance. The statements of advocates of these measures that unbridled inflation was not contemplated failed to reassure foreigners with money balances here, they added.

While the dollar slumped in most foreign markets, including South America, its weakness in terms of gold currencies was particularly noticeable. Belgian francs and Holland guilders went to new high prices. Bankers said Holland was a heavy seller of dollars. Considerable movement of New York balances to London was also reported, but international exchange authorities said the Bank of England softened the rise of the pound sterling by selling sterling bills as an offset.

French francs held firm at 3.94⅝ cents, while sterling was up ⅛ cent to $3.66⅛.

$163,000,000 IN U. S. IN KREUGER STOCKS

American Fiscal Agent Trusted Match Magnate Implicitly, Hearing Develops.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, May 3. — Testimony that Lee, Higginson & Co., which conducted the American financing, had never seen documentary proof of Government match concessions that formed an important part of the assets of the Kreuger & Toll enterprises was offered today before Oscar W. Ehrhorn, Federal referee in bankruptcy.

More than $163,000,000 was invested in the enterprises in eight years in the United States, it was brought out at a hearing in the International Match Corporation receivership.

Fred W. Allen, a director of Lee, Higginson & Co. and president of the International Match Corporation since two weeks after Ivar Kreuger's suicide in Paris, testified he and his associates always had implicit confidence in Kreuger's integrity and had no fear concerning the affairs of the company until after the Swedish financier's death.

CAPONE TO SERVE HIS SENTENCE AT ATLANTA PRISON

Announcement Made After Certified Copy of Supreme Court Decision Is Received at Chicago.

GANGSTER FOUGHT TO LAST DITCH

Last Legal Technicality Removed After U. S. Supreme Court Refuses to Act on Tax Conviction.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, May 3.—"Scarface Al" Capone will be taken to the Federal Penitentiary at Atlanta, Ga., to serve his 11-year sentence for violating the income tax laws.

It was learned at the Federal Building that in a last-minute switch of plans, the decision had been reached to start the burly gangster for the Southern prison during the night. Previous arrangements had been made to take him with a batch of other Federal prisoners to the penitentiary at Leavenworth, Kan.

Capone's imprisonment at Atlanta will spread the members of his big liquor-gambling-vice syndicate throughout the country. Ralph Capone, older brother of the scarfaced leader, is in the Federal prison at McNeil's Island, Wash., while the Leavenworth penitentiary is now housing Jack and Sam Guzik, Terry Druggan and Frankie Lake.

Capone, convicted of evading income taxes, was sentenced to ten years in Federal prison and one year in the Cook County (Chicago) jail. He fought the case to the last ditch, losing an appeal to the United States Supreme Court yesterday.

"It's not fair," Capone is reported to have said in his county jail cell when news of the Supreme Court's action was received. "I'm the victim of public clamor. My sentence should have been two and one-half years, but just because I went to a few baseball games they made it 11 years. I'm still willing to fight it if my lawyers are with me."

The short sentence Capone referred to was reported to have been recommended by Federal prosecutors in consideration of Capone's plea of guilty, which he subsequently withdrew when Judge James H. Wilkerson declined to be bound by any agreement. That was last summer. In October Capone went on trial and was convicted. Since then he has been held in the county jail, while his attorneys have fought through the courts.

Capone's mother was with him when the news came from Washington. He refused to see newspaper men, but jail attaches said he was furious.

The certified copy of the Supreme Court's decision was received by the clerk of the Circuit Court of Appeals this morning and was turned over to the presiding Judge, Samuel Alschuler. The Court then vacated its writ of supersedas so Capone could be removed from the county jail.

A mittimus ordering Capone to prison was then made out.

HUEY LONG RENEWS ATTACK; WANTS NEW COMMITTEE JOBS

Lists Utilities and Railways He Says Robinson's Law Firm Represents.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, May 3.—Huey Long of Louisiana renewed in the Senate today his attack on Senator Robinson, Democratic leader, by placing in the record a list purporting to show Robinson's law firm is employed by several public utility and power companies.

At the same time, Long announced that he expected the Democratic caucus to give him committee assignments in place of those from which he resigned. His resignations were accepted today by the Democratic Steering Committee.

The list of clients of the firm of the firm of Robinson, House and Moses, which Long placed in the Congressional Record, included the Arkansas Power & Light Co., the Louisiana Power & Light Co., the Mississippi Power & Light Co., Southern Power & Light and several railroad companies.

U. S. Loan to Rail Receivers.

WASHINGTON, May 3.—Receivers for the Minneapolis & St. Louis Railroad Co. were authorized today by the Interstate Commerce Commission to borrow $2,698,630 from the Reconstruction Finance Corporation. The money will be used to pay $1,748,630 of preferred claims against the road and $950,000 of first mortgage bonds of the company.

INSTALLMENT PLAN ON DRY LAW FINES IN FEDERAL COURT

Judge Faris Permits Two Bootleggers to Pay $50 Down and Rest Later.

A new policy of offering bootleggers an opportunity to pay their fines in installments was begun today by Federal Judge Faris. Two men paid $50 down and are to pay the rest in 90 days or more.

Counsel for Earl Grissom, who operates a filling station near Potosi, Mo., and also owns a saw mill, told the court Grissom was unable to pay a fine now, but expected to obtain a contract for railroad ties and could pay later. Judge Faris fined him $350 for selling a pint of whisky and a down payment of $50 was made. Grissom has until September to pay the balance.

P. C. Hundley, 3682 Finney avenue, charged with selling a pint of whisky, also told the court he was unable to pay more than $50 at present. That was accepted and Hundley was given 90 days to pay an additional $200.

Until the present term of court the policy of both Federal Judges in St. Louis was to sentence persons guilty of sales of liquor to jail terms. Recently, however, both have adopted the policy of accepting fines when the defendants are able to pay them.

NO OARS, SO SWIMMER TOWS BOAT; RESCUES TWO YOUTHS

Man Goes Half-Mile in Lake Michigan to Save Pair After Canoe Upsets.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, May 3.—How Harancourt Carrodi, 31 years old, swam half a mile in the icy water of Lake Michigan towing a row boat by a rope to save two youths from drowning was told yesterday by witnesses.

Carrodi, a swimming instructor, and several other persons saw a canoe capsize a quarter-mile off shore. There was a row boat available but no oars. There was no time to go for additional help. The two youths, Harlan Allen, 22, and Charles Scroggins, 23, were clinging to the overturned canoe. Carrodi fastened one end of a rope to the row boat and tied the other end around his waist. He swam out into the lake, loaded the two youths into the boat and towed them safely to shore.

15 YEARS FOR TWO KIDNAPERS OF POPLAR BLUFF GIRL, 11

Jury Returns Verdict Against Negroes in 5 Minutes; Abducted Child for Revenge Against Father.

By the Associated Press.

POPLAR BLUFF, Mo., May 3.—Two Negro youths were convicted of kidnaping Molly Horton, 11-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Will W. Horton, the former a local newspaper man, by a jury in Circuit Court last night and sentenced to 15 years each in the State penitentiary. The Negroes were Louis Jones and Eaolus Blackman. The jury deliberated only five minutes.

Following the kidnaping March 10, police said the Negroes confessed, declaring they kidnaped the child out of revenge for a previous arrest brought about through efforts of Horton. The Horton child was abducted from the back yard of the family home. The Negroes were frightened away, however, by a passing motorist, and left the child bound and unconscious on the ground.

200 JOBLESS IN ORCHESTRA

Stokowski Rehearses Musicians in Open for Benefit Concert.

By the Associated Press.

PHILADELPHIA, May 3.—Leopold Stokowski today conducted an orchestra of 200 unemployed musicians in Reyburn Plaza, opposite City Hall. The event was a rehearsal for a Sousa Memorial concert to be given tomorrow night for the benefit of the 200 jobless musicians in the city. The widely-known conductor of the Philadelphia orchestra wore no overcoat in contrast to the musicians who were muffled to their ears.

The program opened with "America," followed by the march from "Tannhauser." Before the program was well under way, Stokowski had shed his gray suit coat, exposing his blue shirt and flowing blue and white tie. His blond hair was ruffled by the strong breeze, but he appeared unmindful of the temperature. Two classical numbers and three Sousa marches, followed by the "Star Spangled Banner," completed the program.

U. S.-JAPANESE CLASH AVOIDED

Tokio Troops, Pursuing Chinese, Enter International Settlement.

By the Associated Press.

SHANGHAI, May 3.—Fifty Japanese soldiers crossed Soochow Creek into the International Settlement from Chapei today and for a time it seemed possible that there would be a clash with the Thirty-first United States Infantry, patroling that sector.

American officers succeeded in halting the Japanese while they investigated. The Japanese said they were pursuing Chinese who had thrown rocks from hiding places in the Settlement among Japanese soldiers on the opposite side of the creek. After some conferring the Japanese withdrew.

AVIATRIX'S FRIEND HELD FOR MURDER OF WRITER-FIANCE

W. N. Lancaster Admits Writing Fake Suicide Notes but Denies Killing Haden Clark at Miami.

PROSECUTOR CLEARS MRS. KEITH-MILLER

She Says All Will Come Out Right — Declares Love for Clark and Confidence in Lancaster.

By the Associated Press.

MIAMI, Fla., May 3.—Capt. W. N. Lancaster, English flyer, was arrested yesterday, charged with first degree murder in the shooting of Haden Clark, writer-fiance of Mrs. Jessie Keith-Miller, Australian aviatrix. He is being held in jail on a warrant sworn to by State's Attorney N. Vernon Hawthorne who went before the Dade County grand jury today to ask for an indictment.

Hawthorne has exonerated Mrs. Keith-Miller, in whose home the two men were guests at the time of the shooting, April 21, and expects to use her as a grand jury witness.

Hawthorne said Lancaster admitted, in the face of statements by a handwriting expert, that he wrote the two notes, purported to have been written, by Clark and addressed to himself and Mrs. Keith-Miller, but denied killing Clark. Lancaster, Hawthorne said, declares that he wrote the notes to remove suspicion from Mrs. Keith-Miller and himself.

Circumstances of Shooting.

When Clarke was shot, he was collaborating with Mrs. Keith-Miller in writing her life story for publication. During this work their romance began. On their decision to marry, each wrote to Lancaster, then in St. Louis. Lancaster, after telegraphing congratulations and asking them to postpone their marriage until he arrived to be best man, flew here, arriving April 20.

Clark was found shot to death early the next day. Immediately afterward, Lancaster said she and Clark had talked in their room at Mrs. Keith-Miller's home for some time before they went to bed, and that later he was awakened by an explosion. He said he saw Clark, wounded in the right temple, lying unconscious in bed. Clark died eight hours later.

Lancaster and Mrs. Keith-Miller were held three days while police made their first inquiry. The flyers have been partners since a flight from England to Australia in 1927. Mrs. Keith-Miller told State's Attorney Hawthorne that low finances caused her to ask Clark's aid in writing her autobiography. Since the shooting she has affirmed her love for Clark.

Prisoners held in Florida for first degree murder may be admitted to bail at the discretion of the court, especially where the presumption of guilt is not great. Lancaster remained in the jail today.

Statement by Lancaster.

From his cell, Lancaster issued the following statement:

"It came as a great shock to me, the fact that a technical charge of murder has been made against me. I am absolutely innocent and I know the outcome will prove this.

"I have been treated with the utmost fairness by Mr. Hawthorne, but there is a certain amount of circumstantial evidence against me.

"At the right and proper time explanation will be made covering this circumstantial evidence. I voluntarily gave Mr. Hawthorne an exact account of the notes and he is in possession of all facts.

"Mrs. Miller is a devoted friend, and she at the right and proper time will tell the truth about the death of Haden Clark, so far as she knows it."

Mrs. Keith-Miller said:

"I am absolutely confident everything will come out all right. I know the truth will be learned and that Capt. Lancaster will be cleared. He is innocent and I know it. My faith in him remains unshaken. It never has wavered in the past, or now, and it never will."

Mrs. Keith-Miller was divorced by her husband, J. M. Keith-Miller, in Melbourne, Australia, last November. When he filed suit, his wife said in New York he had demanded and she had sent to him formal notice that she preferred her flying career to married life.

Capt. Lancaster in St. Louis Shortly Before Clark's Death.

Capt. Lancaster arrived at Lambert-St. Louis Field on April 17 or 18 from California, in an airplane piloted by W. Gentry Shelton of St. Louis. He left for Florida on the morning of April 20, alone, in Shelton's plane, according to airport attaches. Shelton is out of town on his honeymoon.

WOMAN ROBBER SHOT DEAD IN OKLAHOMA

By the Associated Press.

OKLAHOMA CITY, Ok., May 3.—A young woman was shot dead here today as she fled from a drug store holdup. The druggist, J. H. Jackson, declared he shot her as she hurried from the place with about $10 of his money.

She was identified by L. J. Hilbert, police automobile theft bureau operative, as Lena Hurt, 25 years old. Hilbert said she had been arrested previously on vagrancy and drunkenness charges.

Wearing a plain black silk dress and a fur neckpiece, the woman entered the store, west of the business district on Main street, about 9 a. m.

"Something you wanted?" asked Jackson.

"You know what I want," he said she replied, producing a revolver from under a coat she carried. "Give me your money."

Jackson complied and the woman ran from the store. The druggist seized his pistol and followed, firing from the doorway. The first bullet went wild and the woman wheeled about. Jackson said he fired again and she fell, a bullet in her head.

CITY EMPLOYES GET PAY AFTER DELAY DUE TO BUDGET

Aldermen Adopt Resolution Appropriating $750,000 to Take Care of Payroll.

The semi-monthly payday of city employes, due yesterday but dealyed because the annual budget bill is pending, arrived today as the result of a resolution of the Board of Aldermen. It was not possible to complete handing out the $750,000 payroll today, however, and a day or two longer will be required to reach all employes.

A resolution pledging the Board of Aldermen to appropriate sufficient funds for the current payroll was adopted by the board yesterday. With this assurance, Comptroller Nolte authorized Treasurer Buechner to fill the pay envelopes. Although the cash was available, the Comptroller had lacked the legal right to spend it.

The present payroll covers the last half of April.

By the Associated Press.

NAPLES, Italy, May 3.—A rain of caustic water emitted by Vesuvius has destroyed crops within a square mile on the side of the volcano facing Naples.

The shower fell the night of April 24. It was thought then to be ordinary rain, but it later was discovered that plants had been burned and shriveled. A similar phenomenon occurred in 1926. The volcano now is normal.

AMERICAN SINGER ENDS LIFE IN BERLIN

Identified as Lucille Chalfant Greenwich Village Follies Star in 1922.

By the Associated Press.

BERLIN, May 3.—Police have identified a woman found dead, in a Berlin rooming house last Friday, apparently of poison, as Lucille Chalfant, American singer known professionally as Annie Lind. No passport was found and identification was delayed for that reason, but there were some letters which connected her with a friend in Vienna, who told investigators who she was.

She had been at the rooming house for about a month and apparently was at the end of her resources. She had burned all her papers before ending her life.

NEW YORK, May 3.—Lucille Chalfant, found dead in a Berlin rooming house, was identified here as a native of Pueblo, Colo., a descendant of Jenny Lind. She made her debut with Kolb & Dill in "The High Cost of Loving." She had the leading singing role in the Greenwich Village Follies of 1922, gave several concert recitals and in 1925 was hailed as a success as Gilda in "Rigoletto," in Paris.

Her family name is said to have been Collins. She worked her way through the University of Southern California, and for a time was a reporter for a Los Angeles newspaper. She was twice married and divorced. Her first husband, William McStay, was the father of her daughter and son.

SAN FRANCISCO OFFICIAL MISSING AFTER CALL FOR HELP

Public Defender Disappears After Telephoning to Police Captain.

By the Associated Press.

SAN FRANCISCO, May 3.—Police today sought Frank J. Egan, Public Defender, who disappeared after telephoning Police Captain Charles Dullea last night that he was being held by two men.

The disappearance came as police were investigating the death of Mrs. Jessie Scott Hughes, a widow and friend of Egan. She was killed, possibly intentionally, by a motorist last Friday. The police search included an attempt to see whether any connection existed between the two events.

"They've got me," Dullea said Egan had told him over the telephone. "Two men have got me here."

"Where, Frank?" Dullea asked.

"I'm in a booth in the Ferry Building," he answered. "They think I'm telephoning home. I'm innocent, Captain."

The connection was broken, Dullea said, and he was unable to get any further information from Egan. The Ferry Building was searched without avail. Mrs. Egan said Egan told her yesterday afternoon he was going to a dinner and would not be home early in the evening.

3-CT. LETTER POSTAGE IS APPROVED BY SENATE BODY

Committee Accepts House Rate Estimated to Yield $134,000,000 and Also Votes Higher Second Class Schedule.

FOUR CENTS A SHARE TAX ON STOCK SALES

Strikes Out That on Trades on Various Commodity Exchanges—Studies Tea, Cocoa, Coffee, Rubber Imports.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, May 3. — The Senate Finance Committee, working five hours a day on the billion-dollar revenue bill, hopes to get it to the Senate before the end of the week. Leaders are confident the task will be completed by tomorrow night.

The committee today approved the increase from 2 cents to 3 in first class postal rates. Postmaster-General Brown has estimated the 1-cent increase would yield about $134,000,000.

The committee also voted to increase the rates on second-class postage to the high 1921 schedule. An increase of $5,000,000 annually is expected from the boost in the second-class rates applying to newspapers.

The existing second-class postal rates are: First and second zones, 1½ cents; third, 2 cents; fourth, 3 cents; fifth, 4 cents; sixth, 5 cents; seventh, 6 cents, eighth, 7 cents.

The 1921 second-class rates were: Reading portion of newspapers, flat rate of 1½ cents a pound, and on the advertising portions, a graduated rate as follows: First and second zones, 2 cents a pound; third zone 3 cents; forth zone, 5 cents; fifth zone, 6 cents, seventh zone, 9 cents, and 8th zone 10 cents.

The committee changed the telegraph tax to a flat five percent rate on all messages without exemption. A rate of 10 cents was voted on all cablegrams.

The committee strdck from the bill the provision allowing revaluation of estates of those who died between Sept. 1, 1928, and Jan. 1, 1932, for purposes of computing the inheritance tax.

The provision was inserted to permit allowance for shrinkage of estates holding securities in the 1928-1929 "bull" market whose prices dropped enormously in the resulting collapse of the market.

Commodity Tax Out.

The committee today struck from the bill the levy imposed by the House upon trades on the various commodity exchanges. The House increased the present rate of 1 cent per $100 to 5 cents.

The committee accepted the House tax on real estate conveyances.

The committee killed the House tax of 1 per cent on stock sales and put the rate at 4 cents a share flat.

Relenting on the chewing gum and "high ball" levies, the committee reconsidered and cut the chewing gum tax from five to two per cent; and the levy on carbonated waters from five cents a gallon to two cents. The latter was two cents in the House bill.

The Committee accepted the House provision on depletion allowances for oil and gas wells but removed metal and sulphur mines to another paragraph for separate treatment. Sulphur mine were voted a 23 per cent depletion allowance and metal mines 15 per cent.

Rubber, Coffee, Tea, Cocoa.

Import statistics on rubber, coffee, tea and cocoa beans were studied today by the committee for sources of new revenue. Import levies on these products will be considered after the committee has fidished the bill and finds out how much more revenue must be raised. Rates ranging from one to 5 cents a pound would be in prospect on these.

It has been estimated on the basis of figures submitted by the Commerce Department that 5 cents a pound tax on rubber would net about $56,000,000. The committee also understands that the industry in this country does not seriously object. No rubber is grown here.

The committee rejected a motion to eliminate the fur tax and another to restore the levy on parimutuel race tickets. Senator Bingham (Rep.), Connecticut, pro-

HOOVER DEFEATS JOSEPH I. FRANCE IN MARYLAND VOTE

President Wins Over Former U. S. Senator by Nearly 10,000 Ballots in Apathetic Primary.

FIRST REAL CONTEST BETWEEN THE TWO

Democrats to Instruct Their Delegates for Ritchie — Senator Tydings Victor Without Opposition.

By the Associated Press.

BALTIMORE, May 3.—Joseph I. France, former United States Senator, and aspirant for the Republican presidential nomination, was defeated by President Hoover in the Maryland presidential primary yesterday.

The President won by nearly 10,000 votes. The election was one of the most apathetic in years.

Unofficial tabulation from 1262 precincts out of 1365 gave Hoover 25,965, France 16,518 and an uninstructed delegation 1275 votes. It was the first out-and-out contest between the two.

United States Senator Millard E. Tydings (Dem.) was unopposed for renomination.

Delegates to the Democratic and Republican State conventions were selected, and will meet in Baltimore this month to name delegates to the national convention.

California Democrats in Three-Way Fight Today.

By the Associated Press.

SAN FRANCISCO, May 3.—Californians voted today in a presidential primary. On the Democratic side there is a Garner-Roosevelt-Smith fight for control of the delegation to the national convention, while Republicans untied in a "confidence" vote for President Hoover. Despite cloudy weather heavy voting before noon was reported throughout the State.

Having mustered the greatest registered strength in the state's history, Democratic factions brought their campaigns to a close with bitter wrangling. Challenges of veracity and sincerity and charges of misrepresentation and political treachery were made to the last.

The Democratic contest for the state's 44 votes in the Chicago convention is the first clear-cut fight by supporters of John N. Garner, Franklin D. Roosevelt and Alfred E. Smith.

Registration for the primary set a new state record of 2,316,816. This included about 1,400,000 Republicans and nearly 850,000 Democrats. The state is divided into 10,271 voting precincts. The polls close at 7 p. m. in rural districts and 8 p. m. in the cities.

VOTE ON FLOWAGE RIGHTS BILL EXPECTED IN HOUSE TOMORROW

Measure Would Require Government to Pay Damages in Flood Control Work.

WASHINGTON, May 3.—Democratic leaders expect to bring to a vote in the House tomorrow the Wilson bill, requiring the Federal Government to provide flowage rights in Mississippi River flood control work. Majority Leader Rainey said the measure would be called up immediately after disposition of the Muscle Shoals bill.

"We expect to pass both of them tomorrow," he said. "We may have to have a night session, if the House is willing."

The Wilson bill would require the Federal Government to assume responsibility for providing lands between levees and low water marks in the Mississippi between Cape Girardeau, Mo., and head of the Passes, in Louisiana. The Government would have to reimburse states for any expense incident to acquisition of the land and pay for all damages to the land or buildings on it.

Sponsors of the measure contend its passage is necessary because states do not have sufficient funds to provide new land necessitated by setbacks, extensions or changes in the levee line in accordance with plans of army engineers.

Man Found Fatally Injured Reside Wabash Tracks.

An unidentified man about 65 years old, died at St. Louis County Hospital this afternoon of a fractured skull and other injuries received, apparently, when he fell from a Wabash railroad train as it was passing Bethan Cemetery, St. Charles and Hunt roads.

He was found unconscious near the right-of-way by the cemetery superintendent. Letters in his pockets were addressed to James Smith, Ashley, Mo.

completed the consideration of the bill by the Committee of the Whole, Chairman McDuffie notified Speaker Garner that the Committee was ready to report. He then announced that separate roll call votes would be asked on the increase of exemptions from $1000 to $2500 on the 11 per cent pay cut; on Saturday half holidays; retention of the Army and Navy Transport Service, consolidation of the War and Navy Departments, and reduction of veterans relief.

McDuffie has announced that he expected to see "many flipflops" on the record votes. The votes in the Committee of the Whole were by voice, standing or teller count, where notice of individual votes is extremely difficult.

Confirms Pay Cut Plan.

The House confirmed the action of the Committee of the Whole in raising the exemption from the 11 per cent pay cut from $1000 to $2500. With the lower exemption, the pay cut was expected to effect an economy of $67,000,000. The increased exemption reduced this expected economy to $12,000,000. The vote was 238 to 154. A majority of Missourians voted for the lower figure. Those voting for the $2500 exemption were: Barton, Cochran, Johnson, Nelson, Shannon (Dems.), and Niedringhaus (Rep.). Those favoring the $1000 exemption were: Cannon, Dickinson, Fulbright, Lozier, Milligan, Romjue, Williams (Dems.) and Dyer, Manlove and Hopkins (Reps).

The House by a record vote approved the committee's action on the Saturday half-holiday provision in the bill, by 267 to 132. Missourians were lined up as follows: For the holiday, Barton, Cochran, Dyer, Fulbright, Manlove, Niedringhaus, Romjue, Shannon and Hopkins. Against, Cannon, Dickinson, Johnson, Lozier, Milligan, Nelson and Williams.

ROBERT INGERSOLL'S ASHES IN WASHINGTON FOR BURIAL

Daughter Will Attend Their Final Interment Tomorrow at Arlington Cemetery.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, May 3.—The ashes of Robert Green Ingersoll, whose outspoken agnostic views were an obstacle to his advancement to political eminence, will be buried tomorrow in Arlington Cemetery.

Ingersoll died at Dobb's Ferry, N. Y., July 21, 1899, at the age of 66. His ashes were brought to Washington from New York today by his daughter, Mrs. Wallace Marcus Probasco of New York City.

Ingersoll's service as founder and leader of the Eleventh Illinois Cavalry in the war between the states permits his burial in the cemetery. His grave is near that of America's unknown soldier.

Representative William E. Hull (Rep.), Illinois, who was Ingersoll's friend, will speak at the burial ceremony. A group of notables, Mrs. Probasco and several distant relatives will attend.

It was Ingersoll who placed James G. Blaine in nomination for the presidency at the Republican convention of 1876 calling him "The Plumed Knight."

ONE WAY INTO WORLD COURT

WASHINGTON, May 3.—Chairman Linthicum of the House Foreign Affairs Committee has introduced a joint resolution for a $53,895 appropriation for the 1932 expenses of the World Court. If passed, it would be by Linthicum's definition, a virtual affiliation of the United States with the World Court.

In a recent address Linthicum said the resolution could effect as a "practical manner" the same ends as the ratification of the protocols by the Senate under the two-thirds majority rule for treaty enactments.

DOCTOR'S SECRETARY DIES OF POISONING

Miss Elaine Stephens Apparently Drank Poison in Downtown Office.

Miss Elaine M. Stephens, secretary of Dr. Earl J. Poe, 1120 Paul Brown Building, died in his office from the effects of poison which she apparently drank a short time before 2 p. m. today.

Miss Stephens was given first aid immediately but was unable to make a statement. Her father and another office employe said she had been despondent recently.

The other employe, Miss Martha Nunn, returned from luncheon to find an operating room in the suite locked. She knocked upon the door, but there was no response. Two or three minutes later, Miss Nunn related, the door opened and Miss Stephens walked out, said "Goodbye, old pal," and collapsed.

Miss Nunn summoned Dr. Poe who was treating a patient in another room of the suite. Dr. Poe administered first aid and called physicians with offices in the same building. Miss Stephens died within 10 minutes.

Miss Nunn said Miss Stephens had seemed depressed for the last week or so.

SENATE VOTES TO CONSIDER BILL TO BUILD UP NAVY

Agrees, 46 to 25, to Take It Up, Despite Protest It May Hamper Arms Parley.

WASHINGTON, May 3.—The Senate voted today to consider the Hale bill for bringing the navy up to treaty limits.

The Senate voted 46 to 25 in favor of the motion of Chairman Hale of the Navy Committee to take up the bill, which would authorize building the navy up to the limits allowed by the Washington and London treaties.

Senator Robinson, Democratic leader, had attempted to get a postponement until later, contending it would interfere with the Geneva disarmament conference.

Hale, author of the measure, refused unless an agreement were fixed for a vote at this session, but attempts in that direction failed.

PENSION BILL WINS IN HOUSE; 5-YEAR COST $100,000,000

Measure to Aid Widows and Orphans of World War Veterans Approved by 316-16 Vote.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, May 3.—A pension bill for widows and orphans of World War veterans, expected to cost more than $100,000,000 within five years, was passed yesterday by the House.

It was sent to the Senate by an overwhelming vote of 316 to 16. At present only dependents of soldiers who died as a direct result of the war receive compensation.

Before passage a section providing pensions for aged dependent mothers and fathers of veterans whose deaths were not attributable to the war, was eliminated.

The measure is opposed by the administration and in its original form was estimated by Brigadier-General Frank T. Hines, Veterans' Bureau administrator, to cost $15,260,000 the first year and $161,134,000 within five years.

It was brought up under strict rules of procedure. Speaker Garner recognized Chairman Rankin of the World War Veterans' Committee for a motion to suspend the rules and pass the bill. It required a two-thirds vote for approval but the opposition was insignificant.

Rankin (Dem.), Mississippi, estimated the cost, with the aged dependent parents' provision eliminated, at $10,000,000 for the first year and $100,000,000 in a five-year period.

Royal C. Johnson of South Dakota, ranking Republican on the Veterans' Committee, opposed the measure, declaring the Democratic leadership presented the bill for passage in lieu of the Gasque bill to equalize pensions to all dependents of World War veterans.

"This bill is going to pass; I know it," Johnson, a World War veteran, said. "This House does not have the apparatus to defeat a bill like this."

Rankin said: "We are only doing for the World War Veterans' widows and orphans what this country has done for the dependents of veterans of other wars."

The measure provides a pension of $20 a month for a widow whose income, excluding her earnings from daily labor, does not exceed $250 a year; a pension of $26 a month for a widow with one child, whose income, exclusive of her own earnings, does not exceed $400, with $6 additional for each child.

The widow must have been married to the veteran for five years or before Jan. 1, 1925, and must show need.

Spokesmen for the major farm organizations today pledged to Senator Vandenberg (Rep.), Michigan, their support to his campaign to remove from the revenue bill taxes on automobiles, trucks and parts. Vandenberg told newspaper men off the floor that the leaders of the major farm organizations told him they considered the levies would be "a direct tax on agriculture."

"The believe motor equipment is a farm implement just as necessary as a plow," Vandenberg said.

PLEADS GUILTY OF KILLING GIRL

By the Associated Press.

DETROIT, Mich., May 3.—Arrested on a charge of first degree murder, Gregory Clancy, 22 years old, was permitted to plead guilty today to a charge of second degree murder in the killing April 20 of Geneva Ulman, 19, during a jealous quarrel in a dance hall.

Clancy's attorney asked that the youth be permitted to plead guilty to the lesser charge, claiming there was no premeditation in the killing. Judge Arthur E. Gordon accepted the plea and set the date of sentence as May 9.

$2,334,000,000 U. S. DEFICIT IN 10 MONTHS OF FISCAL YEAR

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, May 3.—A deficit of $2,334,105,142 confronts the Government at the conclusion of 10 months of the 1932 fiscal year. The Treasury statement on finances at the end of April shows it had collected from all sources $1,685,666,535 and had spent $4,019,771,677.

The chief cause of the decline in Government collections, which for the corresponding period last year amounted to $2,569,730,518, was caused by a slum in income tax. This form of the Government's income in the 10 months of the present year amounted to $873,303,905, compared with $1,535,928,202 in the corresponding period last year. Miscellaneous internal revenue fell off $50,000,000 to $420,738,151, while customs receipts declined nearly $30,000,000 to $292,375,894.

The public debt increased $90,000,000 in April, amounting to $18,596,695,430 at the end of the month. In the last year the gross debt has increased $1,941,000,000.

LINDBERGH COLLECTION GETS PLAQUE DEPICTING FLIGHT

A bronze plaque by Federico Giorgi, Hollywood sculptor, depicting Col. Lindbergh's trans-Atlantic flight, was added today to the Lindbergh trophies at Jefferson Memorial.

Mrs. L. C. Holt of New York, who made the presentation on behalf of the sculptor said it was inspired by Helen Keller's poem on the aviator entitled "The Valiant." A replica was presented Miss Keller recently.

RETURNS FROM RAIL RATE RISE FAR BELOW ESTIMATE

WASHINGTON, May 3.—Rate increases under the surcharge plan authorized in December produced $9,334,239, with $4,068,773 collected in January and $5,265,466 in February, the Railway Credit Corporation announced today. This is far below the amount expected, as the increases were estimated to produce $100,000,000 to $125,000,000 a year in additional revenue.

The corporation reported to the Interstate Commerce Commission it had loaned $4,188,582 to carriers to the end of April. The corporation, however, has been unable to meet all applications and the Reconstruction Finance Corporation has advanced a large sum to railroads, which gives it orders on the credit corporation.

The total of loans authorized but not actually made by the credit corporation was $14,492,577. During April $1,325,462 was loaned.

HOUSE PASSES BILL TO CUT VALUE OF AMERICAN DOLLAR

Measure Criticised as Effort to Inflate Currency and Thus Tend to Cheapen It, Approved 289 to 60.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, May 3.—Despite administration opposition, the House decided yesterday that the Federal Reserve Board and Treasury should do everything they can to "lower the purchasing power of the dollar."

It approved, 289 to 60, the Goldsborough bill charging these two Government agencies with the duty of fixing the dollar's purchasing power at its average between 1921 and 1929. This, advocates of the measure said, could be done by purchase or sale of Government securities, adjusting the discount rates and "controlling the volume of currency."

The bill has been widely criticized as designed to inflate the currency of the county and thus tend to cheapen it.

Representative Goldsborough of Maryland, who had the support of Democratic leaders for the measure, told the House that if these powers were exercised, "the normal business activity of the country would very speedily be re-established."

But the Republican leader, Snell of New York, charged the Democrats with bringing up the measure under stringent rules and added:

"The Treasury is strongly opposed to it. This is trying to do something that is absolutely wrong."

Another Republican—Chinblom of Illinois—emphasized his opposition to the bill in these words:

"The Secretary of the Treasury informs me personally that he never was heard on this bill, that his views never have been requested and that he is opposed to its passage."

On the roll call vote a majority of the Republicans ignored the wishes of the administration. Only three Democrats voted against the bill. They were Representatives Douglas of Arizona; Huddleston of Alabama and Williams of Texas.

Goldsborough advanced these arguments for the measure:

"All authorities agree that it is impossible for the debts of the country to be paid at the present price level; that unless the price level is raised the business of the country is headed for inevitable bankruptcy and that the present price level is unjust to debtors."

He said a reduction in the purchasing power of the dollar from the $1.60 it now represents to the $1, it averaged from 1921 to 1929, "would make lower standards of living unnecessary; would justify salaries and wages at the pre-depression level, would make unnecessary the process of painful economic readjustment which will have to be consummated if commodity prices are not raised."

La Guardia of New York, Republican opponent of wage cuts indorsed the bill with this statement:

"The great authorities of the Treasury and Government had all their say and the country couldn't be in a worse condition. This is a heroic remedy for a serious situation. If this bill passes there will be no necessity to pass a wage reduction bill, but, instead, we ought to give compensatory increases."

Paris Paper Calls Federal Reserve Policy Moderate Inflation.

By the Associated Press.

PARIS, May 3.—The dollar was quoted at 25.3375 francs in Paris today as compared with 25.3925 on Friday. American bankers attributed the slight decline chiefly to uncertainty regarding the activities of the United States Congress, which created an opportunity for international speculators.

The Goldsborough dollar stabilization bill in Congress was criticised today by the Journal Des Debuts, which said "it is difficult to imagine how this bill ever saw the light of day. The Federal Reserve System has gone as far as possible, and on the other side of the Atlantic its open market policy already is considered moderate inflation."

Le Temps said that the "will to inflate, not to deflate, continues to show itself in America."

Now 62 years old, he decided to retire and leave to the receivers of the corporation its operation. The receivers, Edward N. Hurley, Samuell Insull and Charles A. McCulloch, were appointed for the huge utility holding company by Federal court action a fortnight ago.

WASHINGTON, May 3.—A bill to authorize the Secretary of Labor to draw $200,000, in stead of $100,000, annually from the appropriation for the enforcement of immigration laws for the enforcement of contract-labor provisions of the immigration act of 1917 was signed today by the President. It does not authorize an increase in appropysiations but permits the Secretary of Labor to use the additional funds to enforce laws pertaining to the emploment by American firms of alien labor under contract.

RATE OF PROTECTION INCREASED 6 PER CENT

41.5 Pct. in 1930-31, Against 35.2 in 1929, Tariff Commission Reports.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, May 3.—A study showing the increasing rate of protection of American import duties during the present economic unsettlement was sent to the Senate today by the Tariff Commission.

Transforming specific and other duties into their equivalent ad valorem rate, the commission found that even with an adjustment for declining prices, the average rate of duty to value, designated as the ad valorem equivalent, in 1930-1931 was 41.5 per cent against 35.2 in 1929.

Such an increase, the commission said, could be due to two causes: price changes, and, two, shifts in the importance of commodities imported. In this study, the commission considered only lower prices.

"In 1929," the commission said, "the total value of imports of articles, which were at that time dutiable, together with imports of articles transferred from the free to the dutiable list by the act of 1930, was $1,658,100,000.

"The duties collected on these imports amounted to $584,271,000, the average ratio of duty to value, designated as the ad valorem equivalent, being thus 35.2 per cent in 1929 (under the 1922 tariff act).

"The value of the same articles imported in the years 1930-1931, including some which had been transferred from the dutiable to the free list by the act of 1930, amounted to $758,4 ,000, and the duties thereon totaled $353,868,000, or an average of 49.3 per cent.

"This latter figure has, however, been materially affected by the decline in prices, and when the 1930-1931 values are adjusted to the price level of 1929, the average equivalent of duties becomes about 41.5 per cent."

SUGGESTS RECEIVER OR CITY OWNERSHIP

Company Declares Slash Necessary to Maintain Service — Strike Vote to Be Taken This Week.

Harry M. Nelson, president of the street car men's union, in reply today to a letter by President Stanley Clarke of the Public Service Co., stressing the necessity of a 10 per cent reduction in the salaries and wages of all officers and employes of the company June 1, states: "We cannot believe that the employes must pay out of their reduced earnings the cost of operating the transportation of this city."

"Public ownership or a Federal receiver appear to be the only solution for this company's troubles," Nelson asserted. "The present management have tried to make their employes pay the company's losses. The Federal receiver, Mr. Rolla Wells, operated the company with more employes, and at a lower fare, and in seven years turned the property over to private ownership in a sound financial condition. In addition, Mr. Wells had the confidence and respect of the public and the street car men.

Recalls Situation in 1918.

"The company's latest wage demand has incensed the men more than the situation in 1918, when we were fighting for recognition of the union.

"It is true that in 1918 wages were 42 cents an hour, but there were 2000 more men on the payroll and 400 more street cars in operation than now, and the fare was five cents for adults and two and one-half cents for children. Under the Federal receiver there were 2000 more employs than now, and the fare was eight cents for adults and two and one-half cents for children. The receiver paid a maximum wage of 67 cents an hour, and had none of the difficulties with employes that the present management has.

"In 1928, when the revenue was still about $20,000,000 annually, the company asked for a reduction of 5 cents an hour of its employes, the reason given being that the company was not making 7 per cent on valuation. After a threatened strike the matter was referred to the State Public Service Commission, and the employes, who demanded a wage increase, were granted an increase of 2 cents an hour. The company later was granted a 10-cent fare for adults and 5 cents for children, in order to pay the increased wage.

Same Fare in Effect.

"The same fare is still in effect. Economies effected by the present management include the 10 per cent reduction in wages last October, a reduction in force of about 2000 men since the receivership, resulting in an annual payroll saving of about $3,000,000, and other savings.

"Still Mr. Clarke says that there will be a deficit this year of about $1,200,000, and that employes must contribute $400,000 of their wages during the last six months of the year to help meet the deficit. The employes, through the 10 per cent reduction effected last October, are already contributing about $900,000 annually to pay the company's bills, and at the present rate will soon be working for slave's wages."

The current issue of "Transit News," a pamphlet published by the company for distribution on street cars, describes the proposed reduction as "an emergency wage cut to save transportation service in St. Louis." The article sums up the situation as follows:

"After power costs, maintenance expenses and other necessary charges are paid, the difference between the total of these expenses and the amount of money taken in during the year will be available for wages.

"The plan is to distribute this amount of money among the present employes at a reduced rate of wage rather than to reduce service and discharge many employes to maintain the present wage scale.

Company's Viewpoint.

"The only alternative to the plan is a sharp reduction in service, and the discharge of those employes for whom there would be no work because of the reduced number of street cars.

"The Public Service Co. believes that a reduction of service would greatly retard the business life of St. Louis, and hamper the return of normal business conditions and should, therefore, be made only as a last resort.

"The 10 per cent reduction will permit the operation of the maximum number of cars, and the continued employment of the maximum number of men."

The 3100 union car men and maintenance employes will take a strike vote this week. Union officers were authorized by the men to call for the vote, and will set a day for a secret ballot.

NANCY CUNARD DISINHERITED FOR ASSOCIATING WITH NEGROES

Daughter of English Shipping Family Has Been Studying Race in Harlem.

By the Associated Press.
NEW YORK, May 3.—The Hon. Nancy Cunard, daughter of the English shipping family, said yesterday she had been disinherited by her mother for associating with Negroes. Miss Cunard, 36 years old, returned from a week-end trip to Boston and resumed her residence at a Harlem Negro hotel to continue her study of the African race for purposes of writing and anthology.

"Lady Cunard objected to one of my friends, a gentleman of color," she said. She went on to say, "I love everything that has come out of Africa.

"If you will delve into 'Atavism Spanning the Atlantic,' you will see that it is the history of the Cunard family looking backward. You will find that one of my ancestors toward 1680 signed the anti-slavery protest in Pennsylvania."

Miss Cunard is the daughter of the late Sir Bache Cunard and Lady Cunard, the former Maude Alice Burke of New York and California.

$3500 a Month Needed to Put Industry On Full Time Schedule.

Virtually all of the blind broom makers left jobless April 1, last, when the St. Louis Broom Shop for the Blind, 1908 Locust street, closed for lack of funds, were back at work today. The men, about 75 in the shop, 25 home workers, and as many salesmen, are working on a three-day a week basis. The campaign to procure funds sufficient to operate on a full time schedule is continuing.

Mrs. Mary Dranga Campbell, executive director of the Missouri Commission For the Blind pointed out that unless contributions continue to be forthcoming it will not even be possible to stay open under a part-time plan. As it is, average earnings are only about $6 a week, she said. Many of the men are married and most of them have dependents.

Mrs. Campbell said that about $3500 a month must be guaranteed to operate on a full time schedule to Jan. 1, 1936 when the next State biennial subsidy of $56,000 will be available.

The first group of workers returned to work Saturday. Others reported yesterday and the final group began work today.

700 MEN TAKE TESTS FOR MUNICIPAL OPERA

Twice as Many as Applied for 1931 Chorus Jobs—Dancing Tryouts Tonight.

Municipal Opera voice tests and the prospect of a $30-a-week chorus job for the 12-week season brought out nearly 700 men today—twice as many men as last year, and more than all the 1931 applications by both men and women, singers and dancers.

Women's voice tests yesterday drew nearly 1000 applications, more than three times as many women as tried out last year, both singers and dancers.

Dancing tryouts for the 1932 season will be held at 8 o'clock tonight at the Shubert-Rialto Theater, and rehearsals for "The New Moon," to open the season June 6 at the Municipal Theater in Forest Park, will begin as soon as the chorus is picked.

Unquestionably the prospect of some sort of job more than any particular urge for the stage moved dozens among the applicants who crowded the theater and the Grand boulevard sidewalk in front for a full hour before the tests began.

Big men with little voices and little men with big, bad voices outnumbered personable choristers whose voices were at once life size and well-behaved. By the high standards which have made the all-St. Louis chorus a chief attraction of the opera, only 16 were selected for more complete trials out of the first 75 who underwent the test.

They faced an audience brutally candid, despite repeated warnings by the opera executives—E. R. Simmons, casting director and personal representative of J. J. Shubert, general productions manager; Edward Scanlan, associate stage director, and Maury Rubens, assistant music director. Some of the candidates, obviously just taking a long chance for a job, laughed with the audience at themselves when they lost.

But in the executives they met all the sympathy the audience lacked. More than once the veteran deftness of Simmons restored confidence to an applicant about to wilt, and saved a prospect of talent for the opera—and there was enviable talent among the 700.

"I've got stage fright," one confessed.

"I didn't know I was such a dreadful person," smiled Simmons. "Should I take off my glasses?—Sit down, and try again after a while," he add kindly, and the young fellow returned in a moment to go through without faltering.

Not one in 20 will win a place in the chorus. Last year's chorus included 16 girls dancers and 64 singers—32 men and 32 girls.

BURT KAEMMERER SUED BY CLIENT TO CANCEL CONTRACT

Father of Boy Killed in Accident Says He Was 'Intensively Solicited' to Sign Paper.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles A. Street filed suit in Circuit Court today to cancel a contract by which they employed the law firm of Burt A. Kaemmerer & Associates, Paul Brown Building, to represent them in the filing of a damage suit.

Street sets forth that he was induced to sign the contract, without realizing its purport, by a solicitor who approached him at his home, 7133 Lindenwood avenue, a few minutes after he had learned of the death of his 9-year-old son in an accident.

After the funeral of his son, Street says, he first realized the nature of the document he had been induced to sign by "intensive solicitation," and sought recovery of the contract from Burt A. Kaemmerer, who insisted on retaining it.

An unsigned document, purporting to be a copy of the Street contract, contains an agreement to pay the Kaemmerer firm one-third of any amount obtained by them in the settlement of the damage suit. The figures "33 1-3" (per cent) have been written over an erasure of the figures "50," the petition sets forth.

Suit against the Kaemmerer firm was filed by Attorney Clark M. Clifford, of the law firm of Holland, Lashly & Donnell.

Tells of Chaser's Approach.

Street was notified at his work, Nov. 12, that his son, Donald, had been killed accidentally when playing in a quarry near his home, the petition continues.

"In a state of great mental perturbation and grief," he hurried home to his wife, Street says. On his arrival he found a stranger "who introduced himself as a representative of Burt A. Kaemmerer & Associates, who began to talk to him in a sympathetic and seductive manner, detaining him from going to find his wife who had gone to neighbors."

The stranger showed him "what purported to be photostatic copies of checks of large denomination," claiming that these checks represented the proceeds of recoveries which Kaemmerer & Associates had secured for other clients in accident cases, the petition continues.

The solicitor "held out and urged upon the grief-stricken father that he had need of a lawyer," the petition charges, and finally induced Street to sign a contract of employment.

"Intensive Solicitation."

At the time his signature was obtained, Street, in the language of the petition, "was in such condition of shock, distress and sorrow by reason of having just received news of the death of his boy, he was helpless to resist the intensive solicitation to which he was subjected.

"He did not fully comprehend," it continues, "what his rights were or why he should need a lawyer, or whether he would have any claim for damages.

"He preferred to consult his wife before signing the proferred blank, but the soliciting person dissuaded him from doing so, and finally surrendering to the importunities of the solicitor, he became a plastic agent and consented to sign."

In advising Street that he would lose "valuable rights" unless he had legal representation at the Coroner's inquest next day, the solicitor "falsely and fraudulently" misrepresented the facts, in an inducement to get him to sign the contract, it is alleged.

Street adds that the solicitor insisted that it was necessary to sign the contract immediately, as "any delay would be fatal" to chances to realize anything from a claim for damages, and that unless Kaemmerer and associates at once began an investigation into the circumstances surrounding the death of the child, the parents' claim "would be greatly jeopardized and probably lost."

All these claims and representations were "false and fraudulent," the petition sets forth, "but Street believed them at the time, and finally yielded to the solicitor and affixed his name to the blank form presented to him."

Suit for $10,000 damages has been filed by Holland, Lashly & Donnell, representing Mr. and Mrs. Street, against the owners of the property where the child was killed.

WARRANT NAMES 15 AS FIGURES IN COUNTERFEIT PLOT

12 Persons Already Held as Result of Raids Here and at Seventy-Six, Mo. — Three Sought.

A Federal warrant, charging complicity in a conspiracy to manufacture and circulate counterfeit $10 Federal Reserve Bank notes, was issued today against 15 persons, 12 of whom were arrested last week-end in St. Louis and Seventy-Six, Mo.

Three of the 15 are still at large. One of them, alleged to be the leader of the counterfeiting ring, was in St. Louis yesterday, Secret Service agents learned, but he eluded traps set for him by police and Government agents.

Of the 15 charged in the warrants, three are women, one of whom is still at large. The warrant, besides conspiracy, charges manufacture, utterance and passing of counterfeit currency.

Included in the evidence are a printing press, plates, an uncut sheet of bills seized in a raid Saturday at Seventy-Six, 60 miles south of St. Louis, and bogus bank notes found in the possession of some of the prisoners.

The 12 defendants already under arrest were booked by the police as follows:

Jesse Rhyne of Seventy-six.

Harry S. Leonard, 25 years old, of Seventy-six.

Virgil Rhyne, Jesse's brother, also of Seventy-six.

Richard V. Cobb, 28, 1027 Grattan street.

William Harddick, 45, 1406 St. Ange avenue.

James Roy Henry, 46, 1010 Morrison avenue.

Edward A. Seymour, 914 Utah street.

Raymond Elias, 21, 1028 Hickory street.

Hoyt Crowder, 18, 1118 Morrison avenue.

Miss Helen Seventy, 19, no address given.

The police got the trail of the counterfeit bills through information gathered by Capt. Kirk of the Soulard District. A confession from one of the defendants, arrested after passing a counterfeit bill, led to the raid on the house at Seventy-six, where the Rhyne brothers and Leonard were arrested.

Suits Decided After 16 Years.

By the Associated Press
NASHVILLE, Tenn., May 3.—After more than 16 years, the Adams Express Co. was released today from liability for damages for a number of race horses killed in a train wreck near Cincinnati in July, 1915. The express company was defendant in three damage suits for $240,000. The plaintiffs were E. R. Bradley of Lexington, Ky., who asked $200,000; W. R. Seamster and George L. Arvin of Lexington, seeking $20,000, and William Hurley of Louisville, Ky., $20,000. A Federal jury absolved the express company and attributed the wreck to a storm that blew a box car containing horses off the track.

WEATHER DELAYS SEA CRUISE IN LINDBERGH HUNT

By the Associated Press.
NORFOLK, Va., May 3.—John Hughes Curtis was expected to leave Norfolk today on board the yacht Marcon for another cruise in connection with his work as a negotiator in the Lindbergh kidnaping case. The trip, Curtis said, was originally planned for yesterday, but unfavorable weather caused the cruise to be postponed.

Curtis was expected to be accompanied today by Lieut. George L. Richard, naval air pilot, and Edwin B. Bruce of Elmira, N. Y., both of whom have taken an active part in the work of the Norfolk intermediary. Plans for another cruise, the fourth during the negotiations, were announced by Curtis on his return from a trip aboard the Marcon Sunday night.

Results of his last trip and the status of the negotiators at present have been kept secret by Curtis and his associates, Rear Admiral Guy H. Burrage, retired, and the very Rev. H. Dobson-Peacock. It was indicated, however, that weather conditions during the various trips by water seriously interfered with the work of the negotiators.

The Virginian-pilot said today it learned from an authoritative source that Col. Charles A. Lindbergh is accompanying Curtis aboard the yacht as an active participant, in the efforts to recover his infant son. The paper said it learned that the flyer had been aboard the yacht on its various cruises made since April 22.

Bruce when asked if Lindbergh had been aboard the Marcon said, "I will not say that he has or that he has not."

The Marcon, owned by Col. Charles H. Consolvo of Baltimore and Norfolk, has been used in the negotiations since April 22. The boat, refueled and provisioned, has been held in readiness at its dock at the naval base.

Injunction Against Bus Operator.

A temporary injunction restraining Harry Jones from operating a bus line between Belleville and Cairo, Ill., was issued today by Circuit Judge Miller at Belleville on complaint of the Egyptian Motor Lines, Inc., which serves the same territory. Judge Miller held that Jones violated the law because his line, known as Cardinal Stages, was not incorporated and because he lacked a certificate of convenience and necessity.

TWO NOTES TO FATHER OF KIDNAPED YOUTH

One Said to Instruct Gus Miller, Joliet, to Go to Eastern City With Money.

By the Associated Press.
JOLIET, Ill., May 3.—Gus Miller, wealthy malt manufacturer, today deliberated over two ransom letters he had received concerning his kidnaped son.

One letter, a friend said, instructed Miller to go to an Eastern city, advertise in the personal columns of newspapers that "Jake is here," and to "bring money what was asked with you." It was said to have been signed with the Greek letter delta.

Miller's son, Gustav, 22 years old, disappeared Thursday. The father declined to say whether he would go East. It was understood he might send someone in his place. The name of the city from which the letter was mailed was withheld.

A second letter, thought by police to have been written by a crank, told Miller to put $25,000 in small bank notes under a bridge here at 3 o'clock tonight.

Miller turned only the second letter over to Chief of Police Nicholas Fornango, with whom he has refused to deal in attempting to recover his son.

W.P. LASER GETS POLICE GUARD

Head of Sporting Publication Firm Says He Fears Bombing.

Police are guarding the home and office of W. P. Laser today following receipt of a letter by Chief of Police Gerk in which Laser stated he would appreciate extra precautions because he expected his life to be threatened and feared a bombing. He is president of the Laser News Co., 1508 Market street, distributors of sporting publications, and lives at 6269 Reber place.

He said he expected trouble because he had been able to obtain contracts certain competitors did not want him to have. Last December, 10 sticks of dynamite and an extinguished fuse were found in the office of the Ford Newspaper and Magazine Distributing Co., and on Dec. 21, a second bomb exploded in the place causing damage estimated at $1000. Another bomb, thrown Dec. 21, at the Ford establishment, failed to explode.

BUS LINE BACKER BRINGS IN WALKER AND J. A. HASTINGS

Says New York Mayor and State Senator Attended Ball Night After Firm Got Franchise.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, May 3.—William O'Neill, president of the General Tire & Rubber Co., of Akron, O., and one of the backers of the Equitable Coach Co., testified today that Mayor James J. Walker and State Senator John A. Hastings were among the guests at a party given the night after the Board of Estimate on July 28, 1927, approved a bus franchise to the Equitable.

He was a witness at a public hearing of the Legislative Committee investigating New York City affairs. Samuel Seabury, counsel to the committee, referred to the party as a "celebration party."

O'Neil said he could not recall whether the party, a costume ball, was a celebration of the granting of the franchise, but he would not deny that such was the case. Among other guests were Frank R. Fageol and Charles Rose, of the Fageol Motors Co.; J. Allan Smith, New York representative of the Fageol Co., and J. H. Pardee, president of the J. G. White Management Corporation, all of whom, with O'Neill, were principals in the equitable venture.

O'Neil said the reason J. Allan Smith was dropped as manager of the trustee fund established by the Equitable Coach Co., was that he was "squandering the money."

"In what respect?" Seabury asked. "Why, I think he was entertaining John Hastings," O'Neil said. "We were already paying Hastings a salary and I didn't see any need of entertaining him in addition."

O'Neil declined to sign a waiver of immunity before testifying. He said that his principal interest in the Equitable venture was that he hoped to obtain a tire business of half a million dollars a year for his company.

The witness admitted that during the involved attempt to get a franchise he went to see John J. Curtin, who was Mayor Walker's campaign manager in Brooklyn when Walker was first running for Mayor, to find out what the prospects were of getting a franchise. He said Curtin assured him the Equitable "had the best proposition then before the board and that the best proposition would win."

O'Neil contended that he became interested in the project only because Frank R. Fageol, president of Fageol Motors Co., and one of his "good customers," was interested.

"I intended to sell tires and to help out Fageol because he was a good customer," O'Neil said, "but I wasn't interested in the franchise."

The witness said he had contributed $40,000 to the Equitable project, which he put on the books of his concern as sales expense.

In his testimony O'Neil disclosed that Senator Hastings had not only been on the Equitable Coach Co. payroll at $1000 a month for almost three years, but also had received $21,500 as salary from the General Tire & Rubber Co., between Aug. 1, 1927, and Jan. 31, 1929.

In addition, O'Neil said, he made a loan of $500 to Senator Hastings Dec. 22, 1928, which he said Hastings promised to repay in 10 or 15 days, but "hasn't paid yet."

Hastings yesterday told newspaper men he was on the payroll of the Equitable Coach Co. and was to have received a large block of its common stock.

He was to have received 70,000 shares, he said, to be shared with Fred F. Van Zane Lane, engineer for the company who died 18 months ago. His salary was $1000 a month, he said, and he drew almost as much more for expenses. Hastings' appearance as a witness before the Hofstadter committee investigating city affairs was again deferred.

Reorganization Investment Co. Alleges Money Is Still Owed for Stocks.

Suits against three former customers of the defunct brokerage firm of Lorenzo E. Anderson & Co. were filed in Circuit Court yesterday by the Reorganization Investment Co., which took over the business.

The defendants and the amounts sued for, based on alleged debit balances, are:

H. J. Kerens, 1418 Franklin avenue, $10,756.92; Dr. Fred W. Bailey, with offices in the Missouri Theater Building, $5780.31, and Dr. M. J. Glaser, with offices at 506 Olive street, $3813.33.

The petitions set forth that the investment company is holding certain stock and is willing to turn it over to defendants on receipt of the balance due on their accounts.

MADISON POLICEMAN CLEARED IN THE KILLING OF SUSPECT

A Coroner's verdict of justifiable homicide was returned yesterday exonerating Ray Bachman, Madison police officer, in the fatal shooting Sunday of Otis Murray of Granite City, who attempted to escape after being arrested as a robbery suspect.

Bachman testified that he and two Granite City police officers arrested Murray in a Madison speakeasy and while taking him to their automobile Murray broke away and ran. He ordered Murray to halt, Bachman said, and then fired one shot toward him which struck Murray in the back. Muraay had served a term for theft in the Pontiac (Ill.) reformatory, according to police.

Murray and others were being sought for investigation in several Granite City robberies. Two companions of Murray are being held, one of whom has been identified in a drug store robbery, police announced.

Goes in Taxicab to End Life.

ROCK ISLAND, Ill., May 3.—Arthur John Thompson Jr., 24 years old, formerly of Galesburg, ordered his taxicab driver to halt the car in the middle of the Government bridge between Rock Island and Davenport, early today and vaulted over the rail into the Mississippi River, the driver reported.

10 EAST SIDE SERVICE CAR DRIVERS SENTENCED TO JAIL

Two of Them Get a Year for Contempt for Failing to Heed Injunction.

Ten East Side service-car drivers were sentenced to jail today by Circuit Judge Miller at Belleville, two of them for a year. They were sentenced for contempt of court in failing to heed an injunction which forbade them operating without a certificate of convenience and necessity or the posting of an adequate insurance bond.

Elliott Beebe and Joe Jacobs got a year. Other sentences were: W. E. Darnell and Thomas Hammock, 90 days; Ogden Aldridge, 25 days; Frank Woodcheks, 21 days; Robert Iller, 20 days; Thomas Ward and Frank Schuetzenhoeser, 14 days, and Carl Williams, 10 days. About 30 service-car drivers now are serving sentences imposed by Judge Miller.

Customer Kills Gun Dealer.

By the Associated Press.

HUTCHINSON, Kan., May 3.—J. O. Smith, 74 years old, proprietor of a gun shop here, was shot and fatally wounded today by a customer who asked to examine a weapon. Robert Long, 21, former reformatory inmate, is held as his assailant. Paul Smith, 44, son of the shopkeeper, told officers Long was looking at a pistol, suddenly loaded it and fired on the elder Smith. Long attempted to shoot the son, but the pistol jammed and he beat him on the head. Long was captured after a short chase by Owen Lentz, former high school football star.

Accused of Swindling Grocers.

George Taylor, 70 years old, was arrested last night after several storekeepers had complained they had been swindled of amounts ranging from $4.30 to $8.60. Two warrants charging embezzlement were issued today. Taylor, police said, promised to give storekeepers colored paper bags bearing their name and to give them sample magazines if they agreed to pay postage on the magazines. Postage for 800 magazines was $4.30 and for 1600, $8.60. On receiving the postage payment, he failed to return, they said.

BARRAGE OF DISHES ROUTS HOLDUP MEN

Shoe Man's Wife and Son Hurl Plates Over Partition in Store.

When two men, one of them armed, atempted to hold up Max Wallace in his shoe store at 2021 East Grand avenue last night, Wallace screamed, "Holdup! It's a holdup!" His wife and son, who were in a rear room, began to hurl dishes over a partition at the robbers, and they fled empty-handed.

Samuel Rickensohl, 6407 North drive, University City, was driving at Euclid and Scott avenues when an armed man entered the automobile and ordered him to drive to Forest Park. There the robber took a watch, ring and tie pin valued at $410, emptied Rickensohl's purse of $41 and drove away in the machine.

Mrs. Grace Bennett, wife of the proprietor of a drugstore at 2869 South Jefferson avenue, was held up at the store by an armed man who took $5 from the cash register.

Raymond Nipper, 4311W Clayton avenue, conductor of a Manchester street car, reported he had been slugged and robbed of $74.50 by three men at Broadway and Chestnut street. He was found unconscious on the floor of the car when the motorman, Fred L. Dodel, 6738 Garner avenue, sought to discover why he had not given a signal to proceed. Nipper was treated for a skull injury.

James S. Murphy, a street car conductor of 2103 North Twenty-fifth street, East St. Louis, captured a Negro whom he charged with attempted robbery. Murphy said he was walking to his home at 1:30 a. m. from a street car stop when the Negro flourished his hand as if he had a weapon and demanded Murphy's money. Instead of giving it, Murphy said he ran home, telephoned police, and hurried back to the scene, where he captured the Negro after firing one shot in the air. The prisoner made no statement.

NEW U. S. BUILDING NOT BEGUN AFTER NEARLY SIX YEARS

Meantime, Like Structures Authorized at Same Time in Other Cities Are Started or Finished.

Five years and 10 months have elapsed since Congress authorized the construction of a new St. Louis Federal building. No work has been done, and no contract let on the building, which is to stand at the southeast corner of Market street and Twelfth boulevard. The site has been cleared, and bids for the foundation have been advertised for, today being the day for opening of the bids in Washington.

The Chamber of Commerce today called attention to the long lapse of time, and made public a list of Government buildings authorized at the same time, and later up to 1931, showing that many of these buildings had been completed, others were in course of construction, and that all had progressed more rapidly than the St. Louis structure.

A checkup made by the research bureau of the Chamber began with July 3, 1926, when the St. Louis Federal building was authorized by Congress. On the same day, a building at Akron, O., was authorized, which was completed Feb. 1, 1929; the Birmingham, Ala., postoffice, completed May 3, 1928; two buildings in Washington, both completed in 1930, and a building in Newark, N. J., for which bids were opened last March 30.

Work Done Elsewhere.

In 1928, 10 construction projects to cost $31,670,000 were authorized by Congress for several cities. All these are in course of construction, the Chamber of Commerce inquiry shows, and some are near completion, more than $9,800,000 having been spent.

In 1929, Congress authorized $22,115,000 worth of construction in six cities. Three buildings are under construction or under contract, and two others are ready for construction to begin.

Congress in 1930 authorized a large building program, 14 buildings to cost $54,855,000. Two of these buildings have been completed, these being the new Denver Custom House and a building in Dallas. Six other buildings are under construction.

Two buildings authorized in 1931, one in Chicago and one in Atlanta, are under construction, the foundations of both having been completed.

Here and in Washington.

Comparing the delay in the St. Louis building with the rapid progress of building projects in Washington, the Chamber says:

"If a governmental building is authorized for Washington there are few or no delays—certainly none similar to that at St. Louis. In 1926, the year in which the St. Louis Federal Building was authorized, the Administration building for the Agricultural Department and a Government Printing Office building were authorized. These buildings were completed in 1930. In 1928 the Commerce Department building and Internal Revenue building were authorized by Congress. The Internal Revenue building was completed in 1930—within 16 months—and the Commerce Department building was occupied Jan. 1, 1932. In 1930, seven Federal buildings were authorized in Washington. Six of these buildings are now under active construction and the seventh has been deferred."

As was told early in the present year, the amount thus far appropriated for the St. Louis Federal building, $2,570,000, will suffice only for a five-story structure, and the latest plans contemplate such a building, but with foundations strong enough to support five more stories which are to be added later. Congressman Cochran appealed to President Hoover in January for the additional $1,000,000 needed for a 10-story building, and the President referred the matter to the Treasury Department.

$98,440 Low Bid for Federal Building Excavation.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, May 3.—Bids were opened by the Treasury Department today for the excavation work on the new St. Louis Federal Building. The lowest bidder was Sam Kraus, with a bid of $98,440. The second lowest bidder was the Excavating & Foundation Co. of St. Louis, with $128,800.

Other bids were received from William McDonald, $165,228; Edward Kolberg, $178,000; Gow Foundations Co., $179,450; the Foundation Co., $190,000; Kutsche & Co., $190,500; Fruin & Colnan, $212,000; the New England Foundation Co., $229,000; William J. Newman, $233,900, and Lock Tarletoun, $267,000.

The award will not be made until the department has investigated the low bidder to determine whether he has come within the specifications.

"My Dentist is satisfied . . . he says I'm a good advertisement for him"

Your dentist never feels pleased or complimented when you take him a wrecked mouth to repair. He will do the job carefully and well. But he would much prefer to prevent trouble than to help you get over it. The patients he likes—and is proud of—are the ones who let him help them keep all their natural teeth.

Polishing the surface of your teeth is not enough. Your dentist always watches for pyorrhea—for he knows that half the adult teeth lost are due to that one gum disease. The trouble with pyorrhea is that it may be undermining the structure of your gums and teeth for five or ten years, even longer, and you may not know you have it.

Face this pyorrhea business frankly. Four out of five people past the age of forty actually have pyorrhea. There is no use in putting off the dentist until you think you need him. Visit him twice a year and make a point of it. That is prevention—and sensible prevention too. Then there is the question of home treatment and care. There is no use in making believe that white, shining, "clean" teeth are either safe or sound. Nobody believes that any more. The gums must be considered as well. Forhan's Toothpaste is the double-duty toothpaste that does both halves of the job. Originated by Dr. R. J. Forhan, for 26 years a pyorrhea specialist. Save pain, expense and humiliation. Start the whole family today with the big brown tube of Forhan's. All druggists.

The Post-Dispatch offers readers a far larger number of rooms for rent than are listed in all the other St. Louis newspapers combined. It is the recognized renting medium in St. Louis.

SPONSOR OF CASH BONUS ASSAILS BILL'S OPPONENTS

Patman Charges Flood of 'Inspired Propaganda' Has Been Loosed Against Proposal.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, May 3.—Representative Patman (Dem.) Texas, charged before the House Ways and Means Committee today that a flood of "inspired propaganda" had been loosed in the country against the cash bonus payment.

A leading sponsor of the $2,000,000,000 new money outlay, Patman opened rebuttal testimony before the committee. He said 98 per cent of the American Legion membership favored the payment.

Patman presented huge newspaper advertisements against the bonus.

"I have tried to find who is paying for them but cannot," he said. "The newspapers will only say they received $375 for printing it."

Patman also said pressure had been brought on Legion posts to prevent them from favoring cash redemption of the bonus certificates.

"I do not see how anyone consistently can vote for the Goldsborough stabilization bill and then vote against this plan," Patman said.

Patman said "the same experts who have had charge of our financial and economic systems the past few years have appeared against this bill."

"The fact that our country is in the condition it is in is the best evidence that they are not capable of giving sound advice or that they have not acted upon sound advice," he said.

Suggests Change in Bill.

Patman suggested a change in his bill for paying the certificates in Treasury notes, so that 20-year, 3½ per cent bonds would be issued.

"These bonds could then be sold to control the expansion which the opponents have attacked as dangerous," Patman said.

"Mr. Mills," the Texan said, "has charged the proponents of this measure and all who are supporting it with attempting to make a raid upon the Treasury; that we have a dishonest device, which, of course, can only be conceived by dishonest people.

"Such a charge comes with poor grace from Mr. Mills, the Secretary of the Treasury.

"If we are attempting to raid the Treasury, which we deny, we are doing it in the broad daylight by laying all of our cards on the table face up and by getting legislative approval backed by public support after all the facts are known.

"Let us see if the Secretary of the Treasury has been as frank and honest as we have been."

More Criticism of Mills.

Patman said not one of the committee knew what he disclosed "or the tax bill would not have passed the House in the form that it did."

"Mr. Mills," he continued, "was constantly advising with the committee during the consideration of the recent tax measure. Not only was he personally and in an official capacity exerting influence with the committee, but he also had his personal attorney permitted to appear in secret executive sessions of the committee."

Turning then to the Secretary, the Texan assailed the section of the tax bill which allows 18 months for revaluation of estates left between Sept. 1, 1928, and Jan. 1, 1932, to allow for depreciation in value due to the period of economic stress.

"When this bill was pending before the committee it was not suggested that the date set in the retroactive provision would permit the revaluation of Mr. Mills' father's estate," Patman said.

Members of the committee objected immediately to Patman's testimony.

"Several witnesses urged that provision," Acting Chairman Crisp said. "Secretary Mills said he did not care to comment because he would be a beneficiary.

"When on the floor I found that 30,000 estates would be affected by this provision, I voted to strike it out of the bill."

Representative Treadway said he considered Patman "is slapping this committee very unfairly when he says we have been influenced by Government officials."

Withdraws His Criticism.

Representative Doughton interjected that Mills' attitude "was not subject to criticism."

"On the statement of the acting chairman I shall be very glad to exonerate the Secretary of the Treasury," Patman said. "I will withdraw the criticism."

Representative Rankin (Dem.) Mississippi followed Patman on the stand, drawing applause with the statement:

"Though a radical Southerner.

"Though a radical Southerner, I should be glad if we could swap Mr. Mills for Abraham Lincoln."

Crisp warned the spectators who crowded the room that applause was in violation of the rules, but had to repeat the warning almost immediately when Rankin said:

"I want to stop this depression for which Mr. Ogden Mills is as much responsible as any man on earth."

Robert L. Owen of Oklahoma, a former chairman of the Senate Banking Committee, said the Patman amendment to the new-money bill for a deposit of Government bonds to be sold if the purchasing power of the dollar fell too low answered the objections of Mills and Governor Meyer, to an uncontrolled currency expansion.

Owen said the payment of adjusted compensation in cash would raise commodity values above the cost of production and give a reasonable profit, encouraging production and employment and restoring normal industry and commercial activity.

The committee today closed all hearings on the bonus and will meet behind closed doors Thursday to begin consideration of the $2,000,000,000 new money plan.

Marine Flyer Gets Medal.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, May 3.—Secretary of the Navy Adams, on behalf of President Hoover, presented the Distinguished Flying Cross yesterday to Staff Surgeon Gordon W. Heritage of Amboy, Minn., for heroic service on July 22, 1931, during an air attack on a group of Nicaraguan insurgents. Heritage came from Marine Barracks at Quantico, Va., to receive the decoration.

INDICTMENTS DROPPED IN ASYLUM INQUIRY

Charges Against Dr. J. C. Stewart and Wife Held Defective by Illinois Court.

Indictments against Dr. J. C. Stewart, superintendent of the State Hospital for the Insane at Alton, and his wife, were dismissed yesterday by Circuit Judge Miller at Edwardsville.

The indictments were based on charges that Dr. Miller and his wife appropriated to their own use money, household effects and shrubbery belonging to the hospital. They charge larceny by a public officer, malfesasance in office and larceny.

In sustaining a defense motion to quash the indictments Judge Miller held they were defective in that the grand jury undertook the investigation on its own initiative, and because the names of only three of more than 30 witnesses were indorsed on them.

Gilson Brown, attorney for Dr. Stewart, told reporters that State auditors have made two investigations of the hospital's accounts and found them in good order.

PRODUCTIVE RECONSTRUCTION WORK CORPORATION URGED

This Is the Proposal of the Associated General Contractors of America.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, May 3.—The governing board of the Associated General Contractors of America recommended today establishment by the Government of a $1,500,000,000 "productive reconstruction work corporation."

This agency, its capital drawn by issue of Government bonds, would lend at cost to states, cities and other public agencies amounts for financing self-supporting and amortizing public improvements.

Slum rehabilitation, sanitary improvements, modernization of obsolete utility plants and improvement of public transportation facilities were recommended as best subjects for these outlays.

Confesses Bank Embezzlement.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, May 3.—Richard Smith, 46 years old, who for 20 years has been an employe of the Corn Exchange Bank, was in the police lineup today charged with grand larceny amounting to at least $24,000. Police said he admitted that as manager of a branch of the bank at Jackson Heights, Queens, he had for the last year and a half been withdrawing money from dormant accounts by signing depositors' names to withdrawal slips.

CALLS FOR REORGANIZATION OF THE COAL INDUSTRY

Mining Engineer Declares It Will Be Insolvent in Nine Months Unless Changes Are Made.

CINCINNATI, May 3.—A declaration that the coal industry will not be solvent nine months longer unless it accepts salvation through re-organization, today received the serious consideration of delegates to the annual convention of the coal section of the American Mining Congress.

The declaration was made by Newell G. Alford, Pittsburg mining engineer, before the convention yesterday, who explained that "from the trends of the coal business the past eight years, it is easy to see that the present ills of the industry are not chargeable to the depression."

In speaking of re-organization, Alford referred to efforts to form joint sales agencies.

He charged that bankruptcies of the weaker companies are sapping the financial structure of the stronger ones. It has become a question, he said, of the "law of the jungle" and the survival of the fittest.

ICE IN 90 MINUTES

ALL PORCELAIN CUSTOM BUILT

HERE is the easiest way to have an electric refrigerator that you will read of in a long, long time.

For as little as 16½ cents a day, a Bohn Electric Refrigerator will be placed in your kitchen—IMMEDIATELY!

Well, you may say, what kind of refrigerator is this, if it is so easy to get? And the answer to that is very satisfying.

Made by Bohn, who has been making refrigerators of finest quality for the last 35 years. Made by a company that has specialized in doing one thing well.

A refrigerator that is finished inside and out with elastic porcelain. Enough to say that it won't crack, peel or turn yellow, and always stays spotlessly white.

Then there is faster freezing, which helps to keep electric bills lower. The inside of the cabinet cools off in a hurry and the fine cabinet construction and insulation keeps it cold. (In a University test, Bohn turned water to ice in 90 minutes, faster than the time of any of the other refrigerators tested with it.)

Why not find out more about all these things yourself? Come in and inspect these beautiful refrigerators. Or, if you wish, a Bohn salesman will call on you.

BAR GROUP HERE REPORTS AGAINST BANKRUPTCY BILL

Committee of St. Louis Association Generally Agrees With Criticisms Made by Walter D. Coles

Objections to the new bankruptcy bill pending in Congress and suggestions for substitute and additional measures are contained in a report of the St. Louis Bar Association's special committee on bankruptcy.

The report agrees in general with the views expressed by Walter D. Coles, Referee in Bankruptcy, in an article in the current issue of the American Bar Association Journal. Coles is of the opinion that the bill would do more harm than good if adopted in its present form.

Of four new forms of procedure for the relief of "debtors" as distinguished from "bankrupts," the committee approves the amortization of debts by wage earners over a two-year period, but condemns the proposals for liquidation of an estate without court supervision under an assignment for the benefit of creditors, for extension of indebtedness under composition settlements and for corporate reorganizations.

The committee is of the opinion that the provision for suspended discharges of bankrupts is "so impractical as to afford no good results for any purpose" and suggests an amendment shortening the time for applying for a discharge and enabling a bankrupt who has dealt fairly with creditors to be released from his debts.

The provision for collecting accounts due bankrupts through summary judgments is commendable in principle, the committee says, but is autocratic and of doubtful constitutionality.

The proposal for general supervision and control of bankruptcy administration through 10 "administrators" appointed by the Attorney-General and an indefinite number of "examiners," the committee says, "would place large discretionary powers in politically controlled Government employes," providing for centralization of power and decentralization of responsibility.

Morris G. Levinson, chairman of the committee, is in Washington as a member from the Eighth Federal Judicial Circuit of a national committee of lawyers engaged in forming the Association of Federal Practitioners to study the pending legislation. He expects later to present the local committee's views to the Senate and House committees considering the bill.

KIDNAPED MEXICAN THROWN FROM AUTO NEAR BUFFALO, N. Y.

Winner of Lottery, Seized at San Antonio, Stripped of Clothing Before Being Freed.

By the Associated Press.

BUFFALO, N. Y., May 3.—Kidnaped almost a month ago and brought here from Texas, Pedro Salinas, 30 years old, a Mexican of San Antonio, Tex., was thrown naked from an automobile a few miles south of Buffalo yesterday, he told police.

Salinas was taken to a hospital, where he was reported in a serious condition, suffering from exposure. Police were awaiting his recovery in order to check details in his story. Meanwhile, they were seeking a sedan containing three heavily armed men and bearing license plates of Texas, Oklahoma or New York.

Plates issued by all three states were kept in the car, Salinas said, in which he was brought North. The three kidnapers kept a close guard over him and forced him to supply the funds for the trip. This he did from part of $6000 which he won recently in a Mexican lottery, he said. The robbers insisted that he wire his wife for the rest of the money, which he had left with her. When he refused they stripped him and threw him from the car. Salinas was found by a truck driver, who supplied him with clothes and brought him into the city.

By the Associated Press.

JEFFERSON CITY, May 3.—The State Board of Fund Commissioners will sell $5,000,000 road bonds on May 17, it was announced yesterday. The bonds will bear interest of 4½ per cent, and State officials are hopeful they will sell at a premium. The bonds to be sold May 17 will begin maturing in 1950.

C. M. HAY DENOUNCES BIG CAMPAIGN FUNDS

By a Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, May 3.—Charles M. Hay, candidate for the Democratic nomination for the United States Senate, denounced excessive campaign expenditures by candidates in a speech clearly directed at his opponent, Charles M. Howell, here today.

Hay spoke at a luncheon at the Missouri Hotel, attended by groups of his supporters from every Congressional district in the State. He filed his formal declaration of candidacy in the office of the Secretary of State a few minutes before the luncheon.

Hay said his expenditures would be held within the legal limit of about $15,000 and insisted that the voters should insist that all other candidates comply strictly with the law limiting expenditures.

Extensive Howell Campaign.

Howell has been conducting an extensive advertising campaign in newspapers and has been carrying on a campaign by mail.

"I could not if I would, and would not if I could, buy my way into the United States Senate," Hay said. "The candidate who flies a flag bearing the dollar sign will, if elected, turn up as a Senator who wears the collar of aggregated wealth.

"Much as I would like to do something for them in return for their generous and invaluable support of me, I cannot run paid advertising in the newspapers.

"I shall not be able to send even one letter bearing a 2-cent stamp to every voter in the State. No man can flood the mails, week after week, with letters addressed to every voter; indeed, no man can send one letter to every voter in the State without exceeding the limit of expenses fixed by law and rendering himself unfit to hold the office, if elected.

"I observed the law governing campaign expenses in both letter and spirit in 1928 and I shall do so in 1932. The people should insist that every other candidate do likewise.

Voters and Lanterns.

"The big question for answer in the coming election is: Shall man or mammon rule? In the primaries and in the general election, voters should enter the polling place in the spirit of the old philosopher, with lanterns in their hands, looking for the names which bear the dollar label and also for the names of true and tried friends of the masses of the people. They will know what to do.

"In presenting my record and my views to the people, I must depend upon my efforts aided only by the voluntary work of my friends in the various counties. I have, and shall have, no paid workers and propagandists going through the State boosting my candidacy."

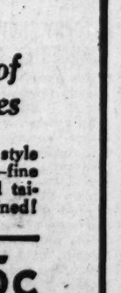

Hay did not mention his opponent by name, or the Pendergast organization of Kansas City.

Bill to Protect Halibut Signed.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, May 3.—A bill to protect the Northern Pacific halibut fishery industry, through carrying out a halibut convention between the United States and Canada was signed today by President Hoover. The bill provides a closed season between Nov. 1 and Feb. 15, subject to change by the International Fisheries Commission. It prescribes penalties for violations and provides, also, for the President to designate a patrol for enforcement of the new act.

U. S. INDIAN AGENT WHO CAUGHT GERONIMO DIES

John P. Clum Organized First Apache Reservation—Mayor of Tombstone During Feud.

By the Associated Press

LOS ANGELES, Cal., May 3.—John P. Clum, 80 years old, veteran Federal Indian agent credited with having organized the first Apache Indian reservation in Arizona in 1874, died yesterday at his home here. He had been ill several months.

Clum was stationed at White River in the period of Apache raids on white settlers and when Government cavalry detachments fought the Indians on their own ground.

A former soldier, he gained the friendship of the Indians by peaceful methods. Apaches termed him "Be-Tunni-Ki-Yea," or high forehead. Later he became a publisher and Mayor of Tombstone, Ariz.

Clum won renown for formation of an Indian police force that supplanted troops in the maintenance of order about the San Carlos Reservation, where the Coolidge Dam now stands, and his capture of the disgruntled Apache chieftain, Geronimo.

What the Generals and their regiments were unable to do, Clum accomplished without bloodshed. He rode forth with 100 Indian policemen, and made the chieftain prisoner in an agency at Ojo Caliente, April 21, 1877.

Five hundred hostile Apaches surrounded the agency, and Clum's 100 men. Clum and Geronimo met in a room. Clum took the Indian's weapons. Geronimo drew a concealed knife, but an Indian snatched it away. Then Clum led the chief to a forge and riveted irons on his wrists and ankles.

It was at Tombstone that Clum became a figure in the celebrated Clanton-Earp feud. Clum sided with the Earps because they represented law enforcement. Virgil Earp was Mayor Clum's Town Marshal, and Wyatt, Morgan and Jim Earp were Deputy United States Marshals.

After many skirmishes, the feud climaxed in a street fight. Three of the Clanton cow puncher clan were shot down. Another escaped.

Wyatt Earp, mourned deeply by Clum, died in Los Angeles in 1929. Three brothers survive Clum. They are Alfred Clum, Cleveland, O.; C. W. Clum, Kensington, Mo., and George A. Clum, Las Cruces, N. M.

DO YOU INHALE?

Why is this vital question so much avoided by other cigarettes?

EVER since Lucky Strike created that special process for purifying fine tobacco and told the full facts about cigarette smoking—the industry has been in an uproar. For Lucky Strike has dared to mention things that were considered "taboo" in the cigarette trade.

You may have noticed a striking avoidance generally of the word "inhale" in cigarette advertising. Why? Goodness only knows! For everybody inhales—knowingly or unknowingly! Every smoker breathes in some part of the smoke he or she draws out of a cigarette.

That's why it's all-important to be certain that your cigarette smoke is pure and clean—to be sure you don't inhale certain impurities.

Do you inhale? Lucky Strike has dared to raise this vital question—for it gives you the protection you want... because certain impurities concealed in even the finest, mildest tobacco leaves are removed by Luckies' famous purifying process. Luckies created that process. Only Luckies have it!

CITY AND OWNERS MILES APART ON LAND VALUATIONS

Property Holders Demand $98,896 for Strip at Chain of Rocks Appraised at $21,065.

Condemnation commissioners are endeavoring to reconcile the city's damage appraisal for a strip of hillside ground at Chain of Rocks with prices sought by property owners, which are five times the city's figure. The strip, about 950 feet long and of an average width of 150 feet, is needed for the last link in State highway No. 77.

Owners of the site asked for $98,896 damages, compared with an appraisal of $21,065 by the city. In addition, the city has appraised two small holdings, whose owners have not made claims, at $3300.

An observation of the ground was made by the commissioners today. It extends from Riverview drive, near the approach of Chain of Rocks bridge, up a steep slope to the adjacent city limits. It is irregular in shape and at an angle to Riverview drive.

William L. Protzmann, real estate dealer and member of the old City Council, is the principal owner involved. He has a six-acre lot, fronting 313 feet on Riverview drive, with his home on the summit. Only about 20 feet of his frontage will be taken, but the right-of-way will cut diagonally across the hillside some distance below the house. The city calculates that about 60,000 square feet will be condemned, or about an acre and a half, but Protzmann claims a loss of two acres.

The city has appraised the damages at $5700. This amounts to 9½ cents a square foot for 60,000 square feet. Protzmann has asked the commissioners to allow him $26,083 actual damages and an equal amount of consequential damages to the rest of the lot, a total of $52,166. If his figure on the area is correct, his claim is about 60 cents a square foot, but if the city's calculation is right his price is 87 cents a square foot.

Protzmann values his entire lot at $78,250, or $250 a front foot. He asserts that the worth of what will remain after the road is opened will be cut one-half, and bases the request for consequential damages on this. The value of the place lies in its desirability for a single home site, he asserts. Associate City Counselor McKittrick, in charge of the case, concedes this, but insists the roadway would cross a comparatively useless part of the lot, without spoiling the view across the Mississippi from the house.

An adjacent small lot, fronting 60 feet on Riverview drive, also is owned by Protzmann. It will be taken entirely. Protzmann wants $3000 for it, or $50 a front foot and 40 cents a square foot. The city appraises it at $2100, or $35 a front foot and 27 cents a square foot.

Valuations Vary Widely.

Sidney Schantz owns a large lot north of Protzmann's. The city will take 14,200 square feet from this near the hilltop. Schantz wants $1 a square foot, or $14,200. The city appraisal is $3000, or 21 cents a square foot, recognizing that the best part of the lot for residential purposes will be taken.

His sisters, Miss Phoebe Schantz and Mrs. Ida Guhman, own adjacent hilltop land in a narrow, irregular strip, laid out primarily for a potential drive. They want $1 a square foot for 13,030 feet, or $13,030. The city appraisal is $1500, or 11½ cents a square foot. Louis Schantz owns two lots at the south end of the strip. For one, fronting 30 feet on Riverview drive, he asks for $50 a front foot, but the city figure is $35. For the other, from which an uneven piece fronting 300 feet on Riverview drive will be sliced, he asks for $15,000. The city appraisal is $6415, plus $1300 for a three-room house and a garage.

Report Looked for in Two Weeks.

Presentation of evidence before the commissioners by the city and property owners was ended last Thursday. The city hopes they will report on the damages within the next two weeks. Then, unless the awards are considered exorbitant, an appropriation can be made before the Board of Aldermen goes on vacation and the State can begin paving the road. George Diepenbrock, 126 Olive street; Sam Hatupin, a lawyer, and Mrs. Selma Boettger, 4319 Grace avenue, are the commissioners. They were appointed in Circuit Court March 3 and encountered some delay in awaiting the appearance of property owners. Whether they will find it possible to assess material benefits against nearby property is problematical.

DETROIT-WINDSOR VEHICULAR TUNNEL IS IN RECEIVERSHIP

By the Associated Press.

DETROIT, Mich., May 3.—George R. Cooke, president of the Detroit & Canada Tunnel Co., yesterday announced he had been appointed receiver for his company by Federal Judge Arthur J. Tuttle, as the result of friendly receivership action brought by an engineering firm.

The company, which operates the vehicular tunnel under the Detroit River between Detroit and Windsor, was declared to be in excellent physical shape by Cooke, who said that it had been unable to earn the interest charges on its funded debt and was in default of bond and debenture interests. The company has $8,500,000 in six and one-half per cent debenture bonds outstanding. Cooke said the company has sufficient income to meet all operating expenses.

Action asking for the receivership was brought by a New York engineering firm.

DEARMONT DENIES HE WAS EVER IN KLAN

"Ex-Cyclops" Wilson Aid, He Says, Replying to Pendergast Paper's Charge.

By CURTIS A. BETTS.

The Pendergast boss organization has injected the religious issue into the primary campaign for the Democratic nomination for Governor in retaliation for the anti-boss campaign of State Senator Russell L. Dearmont. Dearmont in Kansas City last night took up the question, denouncing efforts to stir up religious differences and denying that he ever had had any connection with the Ku Klux Klan.

For several months supporters of Francis M. Wilson, Dearmont's opponent, have been circulating a report in St. Louis that Dearmont was a klansman. The course followed was to approach a voter who had announced his support of Dearmont and to ask the question: "You wouldn't support him, would you, if you knew he was a ku klux?"

The question did not come into the open, however, until several days ago when the Missouri Democrat, published in Kansas City, and recognized as a Pendergast publication, made the direct accusation editorially.

Says "Ex-Cyclops" Backs Wilson.

Dearmont, denying it last night, said that Wilson had in his campaign organization, and was sending over the State for the purpose of organizing support in his behalf, the former grand cyclops of the klan in Missouri.

"I am not now nor ever have been a member of the klan," Dearmont said, "and there was not even such an organization in Cape Girardeau, where I live.

"I do not know whether there are former klansmen supporting me, but my opponent should not raise such an issue when he has a gentleman generally accredited with having been the grand cyclops of the klan in Missouri as a member of his campaign organization and busy traveling over the State in his behalf."

Until raised in this campaign by the Wilson supporters, the klan issue had been dead in Missouri since the campaign of 1924, when it was successfully used by the Republicans to defeat the late Dr. Arthur Nelson, Democratic nominee for Governor. Klan activities ended in Missouri with that campaign.

Dearmont Blocked Klan.

At the time it was flourishing in 1922 to 1924, it was general knowledge that Dearmont was not only not a member of the klan, but that it was due to his efforts that an attempt to organize the klan in Cape Girardeau failed. Dearmont was approached by a committee with a request that he join in a meeting for a local klan organization. He refused and immediately communicated with a number of others who were on the committee's list with the result that they refused and the organization plans were abandoned.

The question of Dearmont and the klan was discussed in a letter written several weeks ago by the Rev. Father John J. McWilliams of St. Vincent's College in Cape Girardeau, to the Rev. Father Edward Ryan of St. Matthews' Parish in St. Louis in response to a letter from Father Ryan.

Commendation From Priest.

In the letter Father McWilliams said:

"I flatter myself that I know Russell Dearmont quite well. I know him personally, socially and professionally.

"You may tell your friends, Father to vote for him, and to campaign for him. He is neither anti-Catholic, nor a Kluxer. He is not a Catholic, but no Catholic could manifest more respect for the priesthood.

"I am boosting him and I am going to vote for him.

17,979 TAX SUIT AGAINST FRISCO FILED IN COUNTY

Offer of $15,000 on Account Refused—Special Attorney Named.

Suit against the Frisco Railway for $17,979 in 1931 taxes in St. Louis County was filed by Collector Benson in Circuit Court at Clayton yesterday. The usual penalty of 1 per cent a month from Jan. 1 and 2 per cent commission is asked also. The County Court has appointed Walter F. Stahlhuth special attorney for the Collector in this case.

A. E. L. Gardner, attorney for the Frisco in the county, recently offered to pay $15,000 on account, but was told the whole sum must be paid at once. It was disclosed on Jan. 2 that the Frisco was forced to delay payment of 1931 taxes throughout Missouri, Kansas and Alabama. Collector Koeln sued the road on its $16,082 tax bill in the city on April 20. The major part of a $1,800,000 loan from the Reconstruction Finance Corporation to the Frisco, approved last Friday by the Interstate Commerce Commission, is to pay its delinquent taxes.

New Granite City Township.

The City Council of Granite City voted last night to withdraw from the jurisdiction of Venice and Nameoki Townships, of which the city has been a part since its incorporation 35 years ago, and to create a new township whose limits will coincide with the boundaries of the city.

By the Associated Press.

TOPEKA, Kan., May 3.—Chairman Walter Pleasant of the State Tax Commission said yesterday he had been informed that Judge John C. Pollock of United States District Court had approved the report of a special master finding Kansas properties of the Missouri-Kansas-Texas Railroad had been assessed $5,000,000 too high in 1929 and 1930.

Special Master W. P. Dillard found the Katy properties should have received an assessed value for taxation purposes of not more than $18,736,474 for 1929 and $18,747,539 for 1930. The commission had fixed the figures at $24,057,559 and $24,002,358 for the two years.

DRUGGIST FINED $100; HAD TOO MUCH WHISKY

Civic Leader of Mount Carmel, Ill., Pleads Guilty in U. S. Court.

Charles A. Martin, druggist and former Mayor of Mount Carmel, Ill., was fined $100 yesterday, when he pleaded guilty in Federal Court at East St. Louis of possessing five pints of whisky in excess of the quantity allowed by his permit. Martin is active in business and civic organizations in Mount Carmel.

He told Judge Wham he felt he was only technically guilty in having the extra amount of liquor on hand which he was keeping only for his "personal use."

In fining him, Judge Wham said a druggist with a permit should know its conditions and subjects himself to suspicion when he keeps liquor in excess of the amount provided.

Among others who pleaded guilty of liquor violations was John Javorick, disabled coal miner of Johnston City, Ill., father of three small children. A four-time offender, he was fined $300, sentenced to seven months in jail and placed on probation for five years after the jail sentence has been served.

Government attorneys charged that after Clarence Chandler of Golconda, Ill., who pleaded guilty of liquor-law violation, had fled from a raid on his place at Golconda he was arrested in Kentucky for shooting a farmer's tame turkey and sentenced to six months in jail. He was discovered by Illinois authorities in the Kentucky prison. His sentence yesterday was 30 days in jail.

Victor Tassallo, East St. Louis, who pleaded guilty of second offense of liquor violation, was fined $100 and sentenced to 60 days. John Kaufman, Valmeyer, Ill., was found guilty of possession by a jury and fined $100. His wife, Katie, was found not guilty in the same case.

On a charge of receiving an automobile stolen and transported interstate, J. J. Costello, carnival concession owner, was sentenced to two years in the Federal penitentiary at Leavenworth. The sentence will run concurrently with one Costello is now serving for complicity in an Iowa automobile ring.

SON OF EDISON ALSO INVENTOR

Theodore Gets Patent on Device to Eliminate Vibration.

By the Associated Press.

WEST ORANGE, N. J., May 3.—Theodore, youngest son of the late Thomas A. Edison, has received notification from Washington that exclusive rights have been granted him on a device for the elimination of vibration from machinery. This is the first patent to be granted him independently, though he has obtained others for inventions under the guidance of his father.

Since his father's death, Edison has been in charge of the experimental laboratories.

Two Military Awards Here.

The Order of the Purple Heart, conferred on three comrades by George Washington and reinstituted by President Hoover on Washington's birthday as an award "for military merit," is being distributed to St. Louisans wounded or otherwise distinguished in service. Among the first here to receive it are Lieutenant-Colonel John A. Paegelow, commandant of Scott Field, and William C. Bliss, superintendent of Scullin Steel Co., a reserve Major and wartime Captain in the Ordnance Department.

Hunting Escaped Negro Trusty.

CENTRALIA, Ill., May 3.—Southern Illinois authorities today were requested to be on the lookout for Howard Mitchell, 35-year-old Negro trusty of the Vandalia State Prison Farm, who escaped from the institution last night.

NEW SHREDDED BISCUITS CONTAIN IRON AND VITAMIN B

Kellogg's WHOLE WHEAT Biscuit Certified for Food Value by Philadelphia Laboratory

Local grocers are featuring an improved shredded biscuit which contains both iron and Vitamin B. Kellogg's WHOLE WHEAT Biscuits are made by a special process known as "pressure-cooking," which retains the full food value of the whole wheat. In fact, the Medical Arts Laboratory of Philadelphia certifies each package. "Pressure-cooking" likewise gives the biscuits a finer flavor and makes it easier to digest.

The new Kellogg's biscuits are also toasted on both top and bottom—not just one side. Naturally, they are much crisper and tastier, as well as more appetizing in appearance.

The biscuits are likewise a more convenient, economical size—two just fit the cereal bowl. And there are 15 to the package instead of the usual dozen.

Kellogg's WHOLE WHEAT Biscuits are very popular for breakfast—and are finding increasing favor for lunch, children's suppers and late snacks. Especially enjoyable with fruits or sweetened with honey.

You can easily identify this improved cereal by the name, Kellogg's, and the familiar red-and-green package. Sold by grocers. Made by Kellogg in Battle Creek.

JUDGE SAYS "NOT GUILTY"

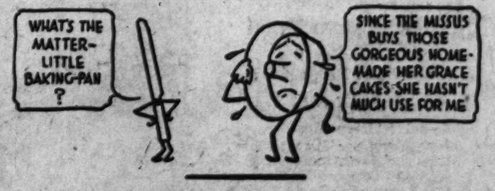

BOYS NOT BLAMED FOR PILFERING HER GRACE CAKE-BOX

Tastes White Layer Cake; Acquits Youths

Fair Warning! One taste makes you an addict. Imagine! Thick vanilla fudge icing over the taste-tantalizingest square white layer-cake you ever did see! Only 25 cents.

What if the boys did loot the cake-box of that luscious layer-cake? Grown men are doing the same thing. And who can blame them—with these marvelous, new, home-made Her Grace cakes in circulation? Home-made cakes baked in a bakery! That's right. Cakes so fine-textured and floaty, so moist and so rich, that even prize-cake bakers are giving their cake-pans a rest. Take the tempting white layer-cake above. Home-made in every way. Not made from a baker's recipe—but from a favorite "home" recipe—with the same fine ingredients you'd use. No substituting. No skimping. No short-cuts. But what a grand short-cut to a sumptuous cake that you'd spend hours making, yourself. Ah! And just 25 cents at your Kroger Store!

It Could Happen.

NOT in history has it happened that a majority of the representatives of the U. S. Olympic team in any one event was made up of Negroes. This year may see an exception.

That fact developed Saturday at the Drake relays, where a young Negro sprinter, Ralph Metcalfe of Marquette University, ran the 100-yard dash in 9.5 seconds and tied the world record.

So good a critic as John Patrick Nicholson, himself a former Olympic star and now coach of the Notre Dame team, declared that he expects Metcalfe to beat Eddie Tolar Frank Wykoff and Bob Simpson and win a place on the Olympic team.

Only Three for Each Event.

IF METCALFE makes good, that will leave only two places to be chosen for each of the sprints. The rule this year limits each country to three representatives in each event.

It is on record that Tolan, another Negro, has beaten Simpson several times in the hundred and a majority of times in the 220-yard dash. He is the official holder of the 100-yard record of 9.5 seconds and it is reasonable to suppose that he will beat out either Wykoff or Simpson for a place. That would put Metcalfe and Tolan and either Simpson or Wykoff on the team as the third member.

Furthermore, this could happen TWICE, unless it is decided to use each athlete for only one event. Otherwise, both Metcalfe and Tolan who are even better at the 200-meter distanc than at the 100-meter sprint, conceivably might represent us in both.

"A Real Star."—Eilers.

ARTIE EILERS, business manager for Washington University's athletic activities, saw the Drake games and declares Metcalfe is a real star.

"Metcalfe has everything. He gets away fast and he finishes faster," Eilers explains.

Metcalfe is 21 years old, nearly six feet tall and has powerful legs. He got his start at Tilden High, Chicago, and was 100 and 220-yard interscholastic champion. As a college sprinter he already has beaten the mighty Tolan whose tremendous finishes have electrified crowds throughout the Middle West. Metcalfe is working his way through

SANDE TO PILOT OVER TIME IN THE DERBY SATURDAY

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, May 3.—Earl Sande, who has ridden three Kentucky Derby winners, will try for his fourth victory with Mrs. John Hay Whitney's Over Time at Churchill Downs Saturday.

Over Time will be an entry in the classic with Stepenfetchit, which also will be ridden by a veteran, Buddy Ensor. The two colts ran two, three back of Evening, a non-Derby eligible, in the Chesapeake at Havre de Grace last Saturday.

Sande, who scored his Derby victories with Gallant Fox, Flying Ebony and Zev, will leave Thursday for the Downs. Earl received an offer to ride Robert W. Daniel's Brandon Mint, but turned it down in favor of a chance to ride Over Time.

Over Time is rated at 12 to 1 in the future book, operated by Tom Kearney, and the announcement that Sande would ride him did not affect the price.

GOVERNOR TO CONFER WITH STATE ATHLETIC COMMISSION, MAY 10

By the Associated Press.

JEFERSON CITY, May 3.—The State Athletic Commission will hold its monthly meeting here May 10, after which the members will confer with Gov. Caulfield, the Governor announced today.

The Governor said no significance was attached to the conference. There will be a general discussion of policy, he said.

Members of the commission are C. L. Brewer, director of athletics at the University of Missour, chairman; Seneca C. Taylor, St. Louis, and Harry S. Davis, Kansas City. Ben J. Harrison of Springfield is the paid secretary.

Eddie Vandeventer, St. Louis boxing promoter, recently complained to the Governor that Commissioner Taylor had shown preference to wrestling promoters in the awarding of dates. Taylor denied Vandeventer's charge.

CHANGE IN DATE OF SCHMELING GO IS APPROVED

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, May 3.—The New York State Athletic Commission today approved Madison Square Garden's request for postponement of the Max Schmeling-Jack Sharkey heavyweight championship fight from June 16 to June 21.

The fight was postponed because of its conflict with the Republican National Convention at Chicago and because the Garden desired another week in which to complete its new stadium on Long Island.

TICK ON MADE 2 TO 1 DERBY FAVORITE, AFTER FINE WORKOUT

COLT IS LIGHT, BUT IS IN FINE CONDITION; FOUR STARS DECLARED

By the Associated Press.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., May 2.—Withdrawal of four leading Eastern candidates for the Kentucky Derby, to be run Saturday, has strengthened the claim of Mrs. L. G. Kaufman's [illegible]k On to the position of pre-post favorite at 2 to 1.

Tick On, now the chief hope of the East to capture the rich stake, also picked up considerable local backing when he was given his first workout at the Downs, breezing a mile under firm restraint in 1:44.

Eastern withdrawals yesterday were C. V. Whitney's Top Flight, leading 1931 juvenile and winter book favorite; Mrs. Jayne Whitney's Curacao, William Woodward's Faireno, and C. V. Whitney's Mad Frump, all declared out of the Derby because of poor showings in races Saturday.

Horsemen who watched Tick On's workout yesterday agreed he looked perfectly fit, but said he appeared a little light in weight. The lightness, his handlers say, will affect his running Saturday not a bit.

The only other ranking Derby eligible which worked out was Liberty Limited, the Three D's Stable pride. "The Limited" worked a mile under wraps in 1:42 3-5 and showed no trace of soreness in his heels, which had become slightly infected last week.

Ryan and Taylor In Special Bout On Amateur Card

Tommy Ryan and Earl Taylor, local middleweights, will meet in one of the special attractions on the amateur boxing card, scheduled Monday night at the South Broadway A. C.

The match, which promises to be the feature scrap of the evening, brings together the Mississippi Valley A. A. junior 160-pound champion in the person of Ryan, and the district senior title-holder in Taylor. Ryan won the junior laurels last summer in the open-air tourney at the Battery A arena, and Taylor, a protege of Elmer Koehler's, defeated Eddie Edson to take the senior honors in the city-wide ring event at The Arena.

Taylor, who is a member of Jefferson Barracks, recently defeated Edson in a return bout, as many were of the opinion that their first meeting was a nip-and-tuck affair. Ryan, who belongs to the Sherman Park C. C., is coached by Herbert Kranz.

George Wilsman, Art Craig and Dan O'Keefe are members of the Matchmaking Committee. More than one dozen clubs belonging to the M. V. A. A. are co-operating in the approaching tournament.

COHN MAKES A RECORD IN PERPETUAL YOUTH BILLIARD TOURNAMENT

school by assisting the trainer of the Marquette football squad.

On their records it is not wholly improbable that he and Tolan run one, two, or two, one in the finals of one of the sprints.

The last previous Negro world sprinter of really top class was Howard Drew, who several years ago equaled the old world record of 9 3-5 seconds several times in his career.

All Set for a Long Shot.

THE stage is all set for a surprise, in the 1932 Kentucky Derby. The once unbeaten Top Flight has been defeated and withdrawn; the "high pay-off horse," Burning Blaze, has been injured beyond hope of repair in time to start; Liberty Limited, the hot tip son of Sir Galahad III, while still a possibility, has suffered from a bad foot and may not be at his best; Tick On, the surviving member of the three winter book choices, was beaten in his one start this year and is besides, a notoriously bad beginner and trouble hunter.

No Great Horses in Field.

THERE are no truly great horses among the lot, judging by the records of the probable starters, and that puts the result squarely up to the trainer who has his charge in peak condition, and to the breaks in racing luck.

This morning there were 19 horses still considered as "probable starters." They are:

Horse.	Odds.	Horse.	Odds.
Brandon Mint	40	Lucky Tom	20
Brother Joe	8	Over Time	15
Burgoo King	8	Prince Hotspur	30
Cahete	40	Sazerac	40
Cathop	20	Stepenfetchit	8
Coe Tee	40	Springfield	30
Cold Check	40	Semaphore	40
Economic	12	Tick On	2
Gallant Sir	8	Universe	6
Liberty Limited	12

Tick On the Class.

TICK ON is the class of the race; but in a field of this size his customary bad racing luck and his defeat in his only start this year seem to militate against his chances.

The other horses best liked are: Universe, which ran a splendid race recently; Gallant Sir, which came all the way from the coast with a fine performance to his credit—a really worthwhile victory; Brandon Mint and Stepenfetchit, winners of fine races this year; Springsteel, conqueror of Tick On; Overtime and Economic, which have run good races in feature events this season; and horses which have shown fine form in private trials, like Liberty Limited, Burgoo King, Brother Joe, Cathop and Prince Hotspur.

It would be no real surprise if any of the horses named dropped out of the clouds and into victory.

Another Gallant Fox?

FUTURE book men are holding their breath until Saturday, and will not breathe freely until Liberty Limited has been beaten. This one has been heavily played in the books until he has been backed from 60 to 1 and even more down to 8 to 1. Johnny Schorr has spread the gospel that the Sir Gallahad III colt is another Gallant Fox.

But the insiders have an eye cocked at Burgoo King, Bradley's ace, and the horse which he offered to back at $5000 even against any three-year-old that could be named, for any specific race, the Derby included.

Burgoo King's record isn't equal to that of Tick On, but he's a sturdy fellow and won some good races as a two-year-old. He probably will be somewhere up there when the money horses flash by the judges' stand.

Bears to Oppose Maryville Nine in Game, Tomorrow

Twelve Washington University baseball players and Coach Don White departed today for Maryville, Mo., where the Bears will begin their first extended road campaign of the season tomorrow afternoon, playing the Teachers' College nine. After a second game with Maryville, Thursday, Washington will go on to Kirksville to meet the State Teachers, Friday and Saturday.

Besides his regulars, White also took Rolla Gollhofer and Gordon Graber. With Lou Jordan on the hill, the usual lineup will be used in the first game, Mareschal working behind the plate; Bennett, Grueninger, Bush and Hardin covering the infield, and Stevens, Vesper and Machens in the outfield. In the second game, Vesper will pitch, and it is likely that Jack Schaperkotter will play center field in his place.

There is no basis for comparison of the Bears and the Maryville team, but from the result of a game with Kirksville earlier in the season, it appears that Washington will have two tough games later in the week. Washington took 11 innings to defeat Kirksville in the first game, 4 to 3.

White's men will have a fine record to defend, having a winning streak of seven games, marred only by a defeat at the hands of the Oklahoma Aggies in a double-header last Saturday.

After their return from the trip, they have five more games this season, meeting Concordia a week from tomorrow, Illinois College in two games, and Missouri and Illinois Wesleyan in return games.

The Passing Show.

THE Senators are stepping out
In manner unexpected,
And if their pitchers go the route
Perhaps they'll be elected.
The mighty Grove, now in a slump,
Has frequently been humbled,
And Connie's A's
On evil ways
Apparently have stumbled.

The Braves still linger 'round the top
Despite their low appraisement,
And have refused to take a flop
Much to the fans' amazement.
Though what goes up will sure come down
It's claimed there's no disputin',
For old time's sake
They'll try to make
A monkey out of Newton.

I see where Top Flight made a flight,
And struck a bad air pocket;
To Derby hopes she said goodnight
And came down like a rocket.
Because of Top Flight's one reverse,
The lady we'll not pick on,
But she is out
And so we tout
The clockers' favorite, Tick On.

Atta Boy, Doc!

Campaign Slogan.

RAH, rah, rah! Look who's here!
We want, we want, we want Spear!
Complex fractions are the bunk,
Vote for Speer and you'll not flunk.

Okay, Colonel!

Col. Bradley told us who wouldn't win the Kentucky Derby and made good.

Now, if the Colonel will tell us who will win it, we'll let him lead the Veiled Prophet parade next fall.

Uncle Sam told us what we could and could not drink and got away with it to a certain extent. But when he tries to regulate the length of our shirt tails he is attacking our inalienable right to life, liberty and pursuit of comfort in any kind of garment we may choose to wear. If we let him get away with that, the next thing we know he will be telling us how many days we can wear a shirt before sending it to the laundry.

Not to mention making it a violation of twentieth amendment to wear a colored shirt with colors other than red, white and blue.

If Uncle Sam wants to regulate something, let him tackle the women's shoes and let the corns fall where they may. Not much chance, however, as the female vote is something to be desired and that's where the shoe pinches.

"Two Rattlesnakes Caught by Party."

SCHWARTZ WINS PRO-AMATEUR EVENT WITH 70

By W. J. McGoogan.

Ralph Guldahl's entry into the St. Louis District has accomplished one thing for the professional golfers, if nothing else—it has given them an incentive to improve their games and to play their best at all times. In every tournament it is Guldahl against the field and all the "pros" are out to beat him.

Ralph has taken his bumpings lately for in his last three appearances he has lost an exhibition and finished behind the leader in two tournaments. Orville White trimmed the Country Club star at Westborough, then Joe Ezar won the Crystal Lake tournament Sunday and now Bill Schwartz, Meadow Brook professional, has joined the ranks of "those who have defeated Guldahl" by winning the second professional-amateur tournament of the district.

This feat Bill accomplished at Meadow Brook, his home course, yesterday, turning in a fine 70, two shots under par to finish first among 60 professionals and amateurs who played. Guldahl tied with Benny Richter, Triple A southpaw, for second place with even par, 72, while Lester Slattery, Crystal Lake, was low among the amateurs with a 74.

Slattery's 74 put him in a tie for fourth place in the field with Ezar and Jim Fogerty, Osage professional.

The course was in excellent condition with the greens, always tricky, lightning fast. The greens caused many headaches among the players for their games were not attuned to the slick putting surfaces.

Schwartz birdied the seventh, ninth, eleventh, thirteenth and fourteenth holes while he was one stroke over par at each of the sixth, twelfth and sixteenth holes.

His card with par:

Out—par	4	5	4	4	3	4	4	3	5	—35
Schwartz	4	5	4	4	3	5	3	3	4	—35
In—par	3	5	4	5	4	4	3	4	4	—36—72
Schwartz	3	5	4	5	4	3	4	4	4	—35—70

GRAMMAR SCHOOL STAR STRIKES OUT 18 RIVALS IN 10-INNING CONTEST

The Mark Twain and Bennett school baseball nines of the Elementary League played a 10-inning game yesterday afternoon, and when darkness forced the game to be called the score was tied 3-3. In the pitchers' battle, McCaron of Benton fanned 18 and allowed only one walk, while Knichel of Mark Twain did almost as well, striking out 15 and walking three.

The score:

T'm.	1	2	3	4	5	6	7	8	9	10	R.	H.	E.
Benton	2	0	0	0	0	1	0	0	0	0	—3	2	4

Normandy Wins From Ritenour In County Game

Two of the County High School League baseball games which were postponed last Friday were played yesterday afternoon, with Normandy defeating Ritenour, 7 to 6, in the football division, and Ferguson downing Riverview Gardens, 5 to 1, in the non-football section.

Normandy gained at 7-3 lead in the early innings of the game with Ritenour, but Coach Geddes' boys came back in the seventh frame with three runs to make the contest close. The victory gives Normandy sole possession of fourth place in the standings, which before was shared by three other teams, Maplewood, Kirkwood and Clayton.

The Ferguson nine played a spectacular fielding game against Riverview Gardens, and with Ray Elliott hurling three-hit ball, the losers had little chance to score.

The Normandy-Ritenour score:

Rixey, 6 Feet 5, and 41 Today, Still Does Some Tall Pitching

Despite the Fact That He Was Born Left-Handed and Had to Stagger Along With the Pre-Names Eppa Jeptha, He Has Been 21 Years in the Majors.

By James M. Gould.

Few baseball stars ever have jumped direct from the college ranks to the majors; even few, once they have made the leap have "made the major grade"; still fewer ever have celebrated their forty-first birthday while still accounted regulars and fewest of all con point to 21 consecutive seasons under the Big Top.

Eppa Jeptha Rixey, the tall southpaw of the Cincinnati Reds, is in all four classes, and today is his birthday.

Rixey was a great pitcher at the University of Virginia. An alert scout picked him up for the Phillies, and to that team Rixey went in 1912. He remained with the Phillies until 1920, in which year he was traded to Cincinnati for Earl (Greasy) Neale and Jimmy Ring. He has been in Cincinnati ever since. Ring and Neale long since have passed out of the baseball picture.

RIXEY.

Today, starting his twenty-first big league season, Rixey is ready to work whenever Manager Dan Howley gives him the assignment, and he is likely to oppose the Cardinals in this present series. Not counting this year, he has pitched in 498 games—that is, in games in which he has been credited with victory or charged with defeat. Of these games, he has won 255 and lost 243—a marvelous record when it is considered that only once was he with a pennant winner—the Phillies of 1915.

Does Some Tall Pitching.

The big chap is an excellent golfer and one of the longest drivers in the ranks of baseball. Despite his great height—he is 6 feet 5 inches—he is an excellent fielder and, unlike the majority of left-handed pitchers, has splendid control.

Today, asked whether or not the game had changed since his entry into the majors, Rixey said, "Why, no, not much. I know I've learned considerable about pitching since I came up, and now that I come to think of it, perhaps the greatest change I have noticed in 21 years is in the pitching.

"Away back when I was a rookie, a pitcher had only two things—a fast ball and a curve. Nowadays, any one of us that hasn't a 'slow one' or a 'change of pace' doesn't last very long. You've got to have something beside the straight stuff, and now that freak deliveries are barred, the only way to promote effectiveness is with this same change of pace. Mix 'em up so the hitter don't know what to expect."

"Any other changes?" he was asked.

Two Runs Not a Safe Margin.

"Well," he answered, "the game is different. Twenty years ago, a pitcher who had a two or three run lead around the fifth inning—figured he was 'in.' In those days, they played for one run consistently. Nowadays it's the percentage to hit—to play for five or six runs in a bunch. Of course, with a tied score in the eighth or ninth, even now the one-run game is good strategy; but in the main in present-day baseball it's a cut-and-slash game, with the sacrifice and the stolen base rare enough to cause remark when strategy of the kind succeeds or even is tried."

"Lately, though," he continued, "there has been a trend toward the old-style game. The ball in our league isn't so very lively and, with certain pitchers operating, it's a good policy to play for that one run which, as the game goes on, gets bigger and bigger every inning."

Pledge Support to Coach.

NORMAN, Ok.—A hundred University of Oklahoma football players held a meeting to pledge support to Lewie Hardage, their new head coach.

BEARS TO HAVE FAIRLY HEAVY FOOTBALL TEAM

The second session of spring football practice was completed recently at Washington University and Jimmy Conzelman, the new Bear coach, announces that he has a fair idea of the players who will make up the first eleven, when season opens next fall. Under his direction, the Hilltoppers have been working out nearly every day, although no scrimmage was done in the latter session, they have progressed well in mastering the fundamentals and the key-plays of the Warner system which is to be used next fall.

"With the fairly heavy squad that I'm going to have, I will try a new system of using two teams at least in the minor games next season," Conzelman said today. "With the modern fast game the team will play so much is expected of the men that it is hard for them to play a complete game test. While two complete teams will not be shoved in and out of the lineup, I will have substitutes equally as good as the regulars to use when needed."

Many of the football players of last year are returning to Washington, and all showed well in practice. Ed Frederickson, Max Tyrrell, Lee Weingardt, and Harvey Miller are veteran backfield men. To supplement them will be three new sophomores, Dave Blumberg, Kenneth Koerner and Harry Brown. The Bear coach has also uncovered Bush, a promising player from the medical school, who is expected to serve as a blocking back.

CLEVELAND TIED FOR 2D PLACE AFTER VICTORY

By Harold Tuthill.

Cleveland is in a second place tie with Beaumont in the City High School League baseball race today, following the Carondelet school's 17-to-7 victory over Soldan at the Public Schools Stadium yesterday afternoon. Roosevelt, undefeated in six starts, leads the league.

What had been an intensely interesting and close ball game became a farce when Cleveland scored nine runs in its half of the eighth to break a 5-to-5 tie. The rally broke up a pitching duel that had existed between Horace Mutschler of Cleveland and Webster Johnson and Hector Brown of Soldan. Brown relieved Johnson, who moved to center, in the fifth, and when Johnson was sent back in to throw in the fatal eighth, but he gave way to Bill Casey, who finished the game.

In all, Cleveland pounded out 16 hits, of which Albert Mickley made four and Earl Hahn three—a double, triple and home run. It was Earl's home run at the opening of the sixth which put Cleveland on the long end of a 5-to-4 count, only to have Soldan tie it in the seventh. Mutschler, who was found for nine safeties during his tenure, was credited with the victory, and Brown was charged with the defeat.

The record for both Beaumont and Cleveland in the circuit is four victories and two defeats.

STUDENT WAIVES HEARING

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

COLUMBIA, Mo., May 3.—A preliminary hearing for Burnis Frederick, 22-year-old former Missouri University law student, on a charge of carrying a concealed weapon, was waived here this morning by former State Senator Nick T. Cave, Frederick's attorney. The case will now automatically go on the June term docket of the Circuit Court here.

The charges grew out of the shooting by Frederick of three engineering students here March 22 as part of a campus feud between the State university law and engineering schools over the kidnaping of Miss Mary Louise Butterfield of Kansas City, engineering students' St. Pat's ball queen. Frederick withdrew from the university following the shooting because of "ill health."

HOUSE COMMITTEE TO ACT THURSDAY ON HAWAIIAN BILLS

Two Measures Resulting From Massie Attack Case Will Be Considered in Executive Session.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, May 3.—Two measures resulting from the Massie attack case in Hawaii will be considered by the House Judiciary Committee in executive session Thursday. It reached that decision today after hearing Seth Richardson, Assistant Attorney-General, who has made a personal survey of conditions in Hawaii.

One of the measures, by Representative Crisp (Dem.), Georgia, would give a Congressional pardon to all four defendants convicted of manslaughter in the death of Joseph Kahahawai. The other, approved yesterday by the Senate, would prevent persons in Hawaii from being freed in criminal cases if two juries were unable to agree.

Committee members indicated afterward they would favor the Senate bill. On the Crisp resolution, sentiment was evident that it would establish a precedent promising Congressional pardons for all persons convicted of slayings under the unwritten law, and therefore should be rejected.

Meanwhile, Representative Thatcher (Rep.), Kentucky, rapidly was obtaining signatures to a petition requesting that Gov. Lawrence P. Judd grant a prompt and unconditional pardon to the four. Many of the House leaders were among the first to sign.

'Hung Jury' Bill Already Before Hawaiian Governor.

By the Associated Press.

HONOLULU, May 3.—A bill containing the provisions of the Bingham bill passed by the United States Senate to prevent two "hung juries" from operating as an acquittal in Hawaii criminal cases already is before Gov. Lawrence P. Judd for his signature.

With it is another bill, recommended by Assistant Attorney-General Seth W. Richardson, providing that Judges in criminal trials may comment on the evidence. At present Judges are limited to statements on the law. The two measures passed final reading in the Legislature Saturday.

ST. LOUIS GRANTED INJUNCTION IN EAST SIDE BRIDGE TAX SUIT

Southwestern Bell Co. Also Gets Temporary Writ; Both Charge Assessments Are Excessive.

The city of St. Louis and the Southwestern Bell Telephone Co. were granted temporary injunctions in Federal Court at East St. Louis yesterday, restraining county officials from collecting a part of 1931 taxes on their properties in St. Clair County.

The plaintiffs allege the assessments levied by the County Board of Assessors are excessive. The property of disputed valuation is the east approach of the Municipal Bridge, on which the city pays annual taxes, and exchanges and lines of the telephone company.

The assessment on the bridge approach was increased in 1931 from $1,000,000 to $2,000,000, the bill states. The tax levy was $111,-020, upheld by the Board of Review after a hearing in which the city protested against the increase. The city has paid half of the 1931 levy, or $55,510, on the basis of the 1930 valuation of $1,000,000 and is seeking to have the injunction made permanent against collection of the $55,510 balance.

The telephone company alleges that the actual value of its St. Clair County properties is $2,217,-800 and under the customary ratio of assessments in Illinois, the assessed valuation would be 39 per cent of the actual value, instead of the $1,297,540 assessed. The telephone company has paid $37,925 on its 1931 tax levy of $59,046 and seeks to prevent collection of the balance of $21,121.

ALDERMEN SEEK SLASH THAT WON'T RUIN CITY SERVICE

Pape Tells Them Cut Proposed Will Prevent Park Department From Fulfilling Functions.

PROTEST AGAINST STATE TAX INCREASE

Research Bureau Head Wants Police and Other Like Departments to Bear Fair Share.

The Board of Aldermen met today to resume its search for places where the city budget can be cut to the bone without severing the nerves and muscles of community life.

They were told by Park Commissioner Pape, at yesterday afternoon's hearing, that the proposed cut of 17 per cent in the parks and playgrounds appropriation, from $1,086,213 spent last year to $898,740, was more than the service could bear. He had planned, he said, to adjust the department to a 10 per cent cut, but could not go beyond that without lessening the usefulness of the department to the public. At this time, he said, when people had no money to go out of the city, they were using the parks more than ever, and this would be true to a marked degree during the summer.

With the proposed cut in effect, Pape said, he would not undertake to open the new bath house for Negroes at Jefferson avenue and Adams street, or the new Concordia Community Center, in the former Lemp's Park. He said playgrounds could not be operated without supervision, and that he would not take the responsibility for opening the swimming pools without adequate forces of life guards.

Alderman Block asked Pape if he thought the parks and swimming pools more necessary than the hospitals, the serious situation of which was pictured to the aldermen by social workers last week. "I am not asking you to cut the hospitals," Pape replied. "I am stating the facts about the parks and playgrounds." He said the proposed cut would make it necessary to lay off all employes of the department, from commissioner down, for nine weeks without pay. He didn't think the department could give efficient service under such conditions.

Wants Hospital Cut Reduced.

Carter W. Atkins, director of the Bureau of Municipal Research, told the Aldermen that the heavy cuts proposed in the hospital appropriations would be a mistake. He said the State departments paid from the city budget should bear a fair share of the necessary reductions and that they were not doing so under the present proposed allotment of funds.

He estimated that the State departments have been cut an average of 8.1 per cent, and city-controlled departments 19.6 per cent in the pending bill. The police department has taken a cut of 3.7 per cent in its appropriation thus far, Atkins said. He said if the pay of all of the uniformed police were cut 10 per cent, the saving of $409,400 would somewhat more than balance the budget as now drawn.

If the hospital appropriation is reduced only 15 per cent, Atkins figures, the city would have to save $150,000 more in other departments or increase the anticipated deficit by the same amount.

While general city departments have increased their annual expenditures 105 per cent since 1915-16, Atkins went on, the Police Department has gone up 160 per cent. St. Louis spent a greater proportion of its municipal budget on the police than any other city of more than 500,000 population, Atkins declared. He said the police got 16.6 per cent of the St. Louis budget. Baltimore, the only other big city with state-controlled police, allows them 14.2 per cent, ranking next to St. Louis. The average of all large cities is 11.4 per cent.

Economies Suggested.

Reduction of the number of deputy Constables, further savings in the cost of elections and registrations, elimination of vacuum sweeping of principal streets and curtailed expenses in the Collector's offices were suggested by Atkins as economies. He asserted that the delinquency here was higher proportionately than in any other large city, except Chicago.

Director of Public Welfare Salsbury told the Aldermen a 20 per cent reduction in the allowance for hospitals woul dforce the laying off of 400 employes at a time, under the stagger system. "It won't work out," he commented. Physicians on the visiting staffs were grumbli

"OF THEE I SING" AWARDED PULITZER DRAMA PRIZE; OTHER WINNERS NAMED

Journalism Honors Go to New York Times, Indianapolis News and Post-Dispatch — Pearl S. Buck's "Good Earth" Deemed Best Novel.

Pringle's Biography of Theodore Roosevelt and Pershing's 'Experiences in World War,' Classified as Outstanding.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, May 3.—"Of Thee I Sing," a tuneful satire on national politics, is the first musical comedy ever to win the Pulitzer prize for the best American play of the year (1931). Its authors, George S. Kaufman and Morrie Ryskind, received the $1000 prize in the list of awards announced today by the trustees of Columbia University.

In the field of journalism, the $500 prize for the best example of correspondence during the year was awarded to Walter Duranty of the New York Times for his dispatches on Russia and the five-year plan, and to Charles G. Ross of the St. Louis Post-Dispatch for his article entitled "The Country's Plight—What Can Be Done About It?" Each receives the full $500 award.

Ross' article, a diagnosis of the American depression, with conclusions as to its causes and some remedial suggestions, was published last Nov. 29, and has been reprinted in pamphlet form. He has been for 14 years chief Washington correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

The $500 medal for the most disinterested and meritorious public service by an American newspaper during the year was awarded to the Indianapolis News for its successful campaign to eliminate waste in city management and to reduce the tax levy.

Award to Gen. Pershing.

Gen. John J. Pershing won the $2000 prize for the best book of the year upon the history of the United States, with "My Experiences in the World War."

Pearl S. Buck received the $1000 prize for the best novel published during the year by an American author, "The Good Earth," a story of Chinese life. Henry F. Pringle won the $1000 biography award with his "Theodore Roosevelt," and George Dillon's "The Flowering Stone" won him the $1000 offered for the best volume of verse published by an American.

The $500 award for the best cartoon of the year was won by John T. McCutcheon of the Chicago Tribune with "A Wise Economist Asks a Question," printed Aug. 19.

No award was made in the $500 competition for the best editorial article written during the year. The $1000 award for the best example of a reporter's work was deferred

Concerning Drama Selection.

The awards, as provided in the will of Joseph Pulitzer, founder of the St. Louis Post-Dispatch and the New York World, were made by the Columbia trustees on recommendation of the advisory board of the School of Journalism. In explaining the awards, the trustees say of the drama award:

"This award may seem unusual, but the play is unusual. Not only is it coherent and well knit enough to class as a play, aside from the music, but it is a biting and true satire on American politics and the public attitude toward them. Its effect on the stage promises to be very considerable, because musical plays are always popular, and by injecting genuine satire and point into them a very large public is reached. The spirit and style of the play are topical and popular, but of course the work is all the more spontaneous for that, and has a freshness and vitality which are both unusual and admirable. The play is genuine, and it is felt the prize could not serve a better purpose than to recognize such work."

Newspaper Awards.

Of the correspondence awards, the trustees say: "Mr. Duranty's dispatches show profound and intimate comprehension of conditions in Russia and of the causes of those conditions. They are marked by scholarship, profundity, impartiality, sound judgment and exceptional clarity and are excellent examples of the best types of foreign correspondence.

"Mr. Ross' article is an outstanding report by correspondence of the great news topic of the year 1931. Authorities in general agree that this topic surpassed all others in importance in the United States and Mr. Ross in his exceedingly clear and logical analysis of the situation met the stipulations for this prize."

The service for which the Indianapolis News received the medal is thus described:

"On Aug. 1, 1930, at the beginning of the budget-making period in Indiana, the Indianapolis News launched a campaign to eliminate waste in city management and to reduce the tax levy. The news and editorial departments were mobilized for a period of approximately 18 months, and exhaustive studies were made throughout the State. As a result of carefully co-ordinated effort, ably directed, counties in Indiana made reductions in their budgets."

The Prize-Winning Novel.

Of Mrs. Buck's prize novel, the committee says:

"Preference has been given to 'The Good Earth' for its epic sweep, its distinct and moving characterization, its sustained story interest, its simple and yet richly colored style. Also, so far as may be gathered, Mrs. Buck gives an undistorted picture of the life described."

Mrs. Buck is the wife of a professor in the University of Nanking, China. Pringle, author of the Roosevelt biography, is a magazine writer, formerly a New York newspaper man.

Dillon, winner of the prize for verse, attended Webster Groves (Mo.) High School for two years, graduating in 1923. He is remembered there as the author of the class poems and for his drawings for the school's annual. Soon after his graduation the family removed to Chicago, and he enrolled in the University of Chicago.

Three traveling scholarships, of a value of $1800 each, to enable honor graduates of the Pulitzer School of Journalism of Columbia University to spend a year in Europe, were awarded to Frank R. Kelley of Brooklyn, Selma Hautzik of New York and Jonathan D. Springer of Port Chester, N. Y. Alternates are Michael J. Caplan of New York, Betty Ballantine of Berkeley, Cal., and William Harrison of Brooklyn.

The $1800 music scholarship, for European instruction, was won by Ernst Bacon of San Francisco. The $1800 art scholarship, for study abroad, was won by Francesco Roggeri of New York.

The members of the advisory board of the School of Journalism, which made its recommendations at a meeting April 28, are President Nicholas Murray Butler of Columbia, Kent Cooper of the Associated Press, Julian Harris, Atlanta Constitution; John L. FARM BOARD TO SELL STABILIZATION COTTON 650,000 Bales Will Be Placed on Sale Aug. 1—Purchased in 1929.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, May 3. — One-half of the Farm Board's 1,300,000 bales of stabilization cotton will be placed on the market, beginning Aug. 1.

In announcing this new policy yesterday the board said the Cotton Stabilization Corporation would "make every effort to distribute sales throughout the season without disturbance to markets or to price levels."

The cotton was bought from the 1929 crop at a cost of about $107,000,000, or an average of 16.3 cents per pound, in an attempt to stabilize falling prices. Cotton now is selling for 5 cents a pound.

Whether the 650,000 bales will be sold largely in foreign trade was not specified. Chairman Stone of the board told the Senate Agriculture Committee last week inquiries had been received indicating 500,000 to 1,000,000 bales could be sold to foreign governments if Congress would provide funds for financing export sales.

DEPARTMENTS GET TARIFF BILL

To Study Democratic Measure Sent to Hoover Last Week.

By the Associated Press

WASHINGTON, May 3.—The Democratic tariff bill was referred by President Hoover today to the State, Treasury and Commerce Departments for study. The bill, passed by the House last week over strong opposition by the administration, was received at the White House late Saturday. It has been predicted freely that the President would veto the measure.

The bill calls upon the President to move for an international economic conference with a view to lowering excessive tariff duties and eliminating discriminatory and unfair trade practices. The bill would take from the chief executive his arte-changing power and place it with Congress.

244 MORE MEMBERS OF MAFIA GANG ARE SENTENCED IN SICILY

By the Associated Press

AGRIGENTO, Sicily, May 3.—A three months' trial of one of Sicily's greatest Mafia gangs ended yesterday with the sentencing of 244 men and women to a total of 1200 years in prison.

The defendants sat in a huge cage especially erected in the former monastery of Santo Spirito, where the trial was held.

More than 1000 persons already had been sentenced in a drive to rid the island of gangs accused of bombings, assassinations, cattle thefts and illegal tax levies on a wide scale.

BRAZIL SHARPLY REDUCES DUTY ON MOVIE IMPORTS

By the Associated Press.

RIO DE JANEIRO, May 3.—Aid for the national film industry and owners of movie houses, as well as to Hollywood producers and sellers, has been given in a decree just issued by President Getulio Vargas which cuts customs duties to a minimum.

Under a previous decree several weeks ago imposing heavy duties the movie men here declared that half or more of the theaters throughout Brazil would have to close as they would be unable to pay the high cost of customs.

Under the present decree the tax on educational films has been reduced by 90 per cent and on ordinary films by 60 per cent, producers say. A board of censorship is created consisting of five members and this board will do the censoring, for all Brazil, films once passing them being subject to no further official scanning. A small charge per foot is made for the censoring, money from which goes into the school funds.

CONTROVERSY AT ARMS PARLEY OVER THE USE OF BATTLESHIPS

Russia, Rumania and Holland Dispute U. S. Contention They Are Only for Defense.

By the Associated Press.

GENEVA, May 3.—The Russian, Rumanian and Dutch members of the Disarmament Conference Naval Commission today declared the battleship a distinctly offensive weapon.

The declaration was in opposition to the view expressed by Senator Claude A. Swanson of Virginia, American member, last Friday. Swanson said battleships were the backbone of the American navy, entirely defensive weapons and a menace to no one.

His declaration was made in opposition to the German and Italian plan for abolishing battleships. If they were abolished, the Senator declared, the whole American defense scheme would have to be revised.

Ontario to Relax Embargo.

FORT WILLIAM, Ont., May 3.—With the sole object of providing summer work for between 2500 and 3000 men, the Ontario Government stands prepared to lift temporarily the embargo on export pulpwood and to set aside an area in three townships bordering Lake Simcoe, near Nipigon, for the cutting of 100,000 cords of peeled spruce wood. This announcement was made today by Lands and Forests Minister Finlayson.

Capper Predicts 30-Hour Week Will Come for American Workers

Post-Dispatch Bureau, 201-205 Kellogg Bldg.

WASHINGTON, May 3.—Predicting that the American working man would eventually be on a 30-hour week, Senator Arthur Capper (Rep.), Kansas, today declared over a nation-wide radio network that an economic system that pauperizes labor is on the way to economic suicide.

"We have reached the place," said Capper, "where in six month's time, excepting annual farm crops, we can produce or manufacture everything this country can use in 12 months.

"A few decades ago, with labor fully employed 60 hours a week full time, we just about produced enough to satisfy our needs. Now we can make that same production in six or seven months—but we still insist upon a six-day week and at least an eight-hour day, taking industry as a whole. It is obvious to me that if we continue the 48-hour week, or even 44-hour week, then a considerable percentage of our workers will have to be without jobs. There is nothing for them to do. I am not at this time advocating what I am about to say; I am just telling it to you. We can continue the 48-hour week, and we shall have always much unemployment. We can go to the 35-hour week—ultimately I believe that it will come to a 30-hour week—and there will be work enough to go around.

All Must Be Able to Buy.

"In the old days manufactured goods, beyond the bare necessities of life, were made to be sold to the well-to-do. But now with mass production, basic commodities are produced, finished products are manufactured, in quantities which demand that nearly everyone must be in position to buy if consumption is to keep anywhere near mass production.

"Unless the farmer has purchasing power mass production becomes a disease that ultimately will be the death of our civilization."

Capper said that the farmer could not buy manufactured goods unless farm products and other basic commodities reached a higher price level.

"The farmer," continued Capper, "cannot prosper unless he receives the cost of production for his products. That cost must include taxes and interest and capital and depreciation allowances. When the farmer receives the cost of production for his products he has purchasing power. He can and will buy. And upon his ability to buy depends the purchasing power and the means of livelihood for more than half the people of this country."

The Kansas Senator said that the commodity price level, or, in other words, the purchasing power of the dollar, should be restored to the level of 1926 by the Federal Reserve Board, the Federal Reserve banks and the Secretary of the Treasury.

Definite Monetary Policy.

"The Federal Reserve Banks and "the Federal Reserve System," he continued, "should be the servant of agriculture, labor, industry, commerce and mining—the servant of all the people, and not so much the servant of the moneylending class of our people, especially the big bankers of New York.

"Congress should lay down a definite monetary policy for the United States, and that policy should be to regulate currency and credit so that the purchasing power of the dollar shall remain stable. Also I believe that the Federal Reserve System should use its powers—there is no dispute it has them, but they are not controlled from the proper source—to encourage legitimate business instead of speculation. The currency and credit of these United States should be available for productive enterprise first, last and all time, and should not be allowed to become the playthings of the stock exchange gamblers.

"This country—and that includes all of us—should learn that general prosperity will come from earnings of industry, business and labor; not from the winnings in gambling, whether that gambling is in a gambling hall, on the grain and commodity exchanges, or on the stock exchange."

CHINESE STUDENTS BEAT DELEGATE TO SHANGHAI PARLEY

By the Associated Press

SHANGHAI, May 3.—A band of 100 Chinese students attacked and painfully injured Quo Tai-chi, Chinese Vice Minister for Foreign Affairs and principal delegate at peace parleys here today. As a result, the resumption of the conferences was indefinitely postponed.

The mob attacked Quo as he was leaving his home in the French concession. As the students pummeled the Minister, they accused him of intending to sign an agreement unfavorable to China.

French police scattered the students with their clubs.

Chinese authorities had announced the peace parleys with Japan would be resumed today and an agreement settling the Shanghai difficulties might be signed tomorrow or Thursday.

It Joins Public Reservation in Montana With Waterton Area in Alberta.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, May 3.—President Hoover today signed an act creating what will be known as the Waterton-Glacier International Peace Park, joining parts of Montana and Alberta and British Columbia.

The new park will comprise two parks already established—the Glacier National Park in Montana and the Waterton National Park in Alberta. The international boundary line runs through Waterton Lake.

Concurrently the President signed an act accepting a grant by the state of Montana of concurrent police jurisdiction over the rights of way of the Blackfeet Highway and its connections with the Glacier National Park road system on the Blackfeet Indian reservation.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

YOUR issue of April 26 carried an article on the problem of the "white-collar" Negro. In this article, T. Arnold Hill of New York, secretary of the National Urban League, when questioned about the effort to colonize Liberia by American Negroes, is reported to have said: "I do not believe the movement will ever gain much force. The Negro is traditionally a part of this country."

Compare this attitude with that of the Pilgrim Fathers, who braved the perils of a long and hazardous sea voyage and of a primitive wilderness in order to escape the onerous conditions imposed by a country of which they were "traditionally a part" more so than the Negro is of America.

Does not the statement of T. Arnold Hill imply that the Negro would rather live in a white man's environment, enduring the disadvantages of social and business discrimination, than make the effort necessary to colonize a land of his own? Here seems to be an inherent weakness in his race. In other words, he realizes that he can thrive better under the white man's environment than under one of his own making. Such being the case, the Negro's progress is insecure and superficial; more apparent than real.

The true measure of his progress is not the advancement made under the white man's civilization, but rather the intrinsic improvement that comes from the severe task of making over a primeval environment. The white man's culture is but a crutch upon which the Negro in the United States has been leaning all too heavily for his own good. Until the Negro has had his own voyage of the Mayflower, so to speak; until he has felled the forest, broken the prairie, subdued primitive nature under his own initiative, and built a strong and virile nation unaided and alone, it is premature and ill advised to call this veneer of 60 years' standing a true measure of progress. Without true progress, biologically permanent, what is there to hope for?

In the long run, the kindest thing that could be done for the Negro would be to help him into a location where he could make his own environment, develop his own racial culture, carry on the struggle for existence alone and on his own initiative, and undergo the normal processes of evolution and adjustment to environment that a selective process entails.

Jefferson City.

Heading Toward Barbarism.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

IT seems indeed lamentable that, though the annual upkeep of two airplane carriers would pay the salaries of 5000 teachers for a like period of time, disarmament conference should nevertheless fail. In some places, teachers are having their pay shaved down to unspeakable figures, and I read recently that Detroit is contemplating closing its art museum for purposes of economy.

Such procedure is not economy, but exile imposed by society upon itself from civilizing influences. Should we insist on following out such a course, the present depression—which, at its worst, is actually nothing worse than a period of readjustment—threatens to develop into a disaster which may take on a permanent character. Should we insist on devoting our money and our energy toward war, instead of peace and education, the answer is almost bound to be barbarism, and of a decidedly unsavory sort.

KARL SPIESS ROBINSON.

A Long Cry From Jefferson.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

SOME historians claim that, on his inauguration day, Thomas Jefferson rode up to the White House on horseback, tied his horse to a rack and was inaugurated the third President of the United States. Jefferson was not so poor that he had to do that. He could have had the finest carriage. But he desired to impress on the people that there could be simplicity in government—that pomp and ceremony were uncalled for; that the Government belonged to the people and not, according to the theory of divine right of kings, that the people belonged to the Government.

Contrast this with the same Government today. Now it requires 11 automobiles, 48 guards and numerous secretaries to maintain the White House. That is something for a tax-ridden people to think about.

Perhaps our form of government, as intended by the fathers, has outlived its usefulness. Perhaps we now need all this pomp and ceremony and immense governmental expense, and, whether or not this is so, we seem to be headed toward some sort of paternalistic monarchy.

Arguing before the United States Supreme Court against the eighteenth amendment, Elihu Root said: "Your Honors declare this law constitutional and you will have changed our form of government." Not many question the wisdom of that statement now. But all we now need is a couple more eighteenth amendments, the re-election of Mr. Hoover or his type, and we can crown him or his successor emperor.

Collinsville, Ill. W. J. SHEA.

DEFAULTING LEADERSHIP.

"Peace hath her victories no less renown'd than war," and peace today is confronted by an emergency of war-like gravity. That is the character of the present crisis, on the authority of the President of the United States.

What is the duty of the citizen in such a crisis? We know what the citizen's duty is in war. If he is capable of rendering military service he is called upon to make the supreme sacrifice, if necessary. He has no option in the premises. If his country summons him he must answer.

The crisis of peace may not demand of the citizen that he lay down his life, but it may honorably require of him that he make any sacrifice which the Government may order. In the crisis of war, it is to the youth of the land the country turns. In this crisis of peace, it is to wealth the country must turn. Lloyd George showed in last Sunday's Post-Dispatch that whereas taxes paid in the United States in 1930-31 amounted to only $11 per head, in England they were $77 per head. He says:

> The income tax was pushed up to five shillings on the pound and a steeply graduated surtax on large incomes was increased by 10 per cent. That meant that out of very large incomes nearly two-thirds are now taken by the state. Out of large estates, the state at time of death now takes nearly a half.

The present leadership of Congress is evading its duty in the tax bill now being written. If the leadership of the House had had its way, the tax bill would have imposed the major burden of meeting the Government's revenue needs on the masses of the people. That is what the general sales tax would have done, and the general sales tax was blasted out of the bill only by one of the most dramatic legislative insurrections in our history.

Lloyd George considers that the burden the English people have assumed for the purpose of balancing their budget is a test of their staying qualities. Why should we not put ourselves, high and low, to the same test? He says, "The American taxpayer does not bear one-third the load of taxes which bears down the poor British taxpayer." Yet the Senate Finance Committee proposes to deal tenderly with those best able to pay.

There are members of the committee who do insist that it is wealth's turn now, so to speak, to shoulder a gun and march to the front. Among those, as we have previously pointed out, is Senator Couzens of Michigan, who happens to be the richest man in the Senate. He believes that the war-time surtaxes, up to the peak of 65 per cent, should be levied on the great incomes. But he and his six associates were in the minority. The committee has fixed 45 per cent as the maximum surtax. That is the "supreme sacrifice" which the majority of the committee, under the leadership of Senator Harrison, would ask of great wealth.

It may be true that very few incomes would be subject to the 65 per cent surtax. But those fortunate enough to possess such taxable incomes could afford to pay the tax, while those not so situated manifestly cannot be penalized by a tax they do not have to pay. Admitting, for argument's sake, that the yield from such a surtax would be disappointingly small, the fact that Congress had made this levy, that it had enunciated the principle of taxing wealth in this crisis of peace as it had taxed youth in the crisis of war, would have, we believe, a stimulating moral effect, whatever the material result. It would revive public confidence in the resolute purpose of Congress to demand of wealth on its economic battlefield that "full measure of devotion" it demanded of youth in the roar of war.

If Congress is to meet the popular expectation of apportioning the tax burden according to capacity to pay, it must do so through the Democratic leadership of House and Senate. Unhappily, the situation at Washington is so bad, and popular leadership has so defaulted, that conservatives in the Senate are now pushing forward with some hope of putting the general sales tax back in the bill.

That is the sort of peace measures, and the sort of peace leadership, we have at Washington. How, then, can peace have her victories no less renowned than war?

A PENSION GRAB HALTED.

Mr. Hoover acted wisely and boldly in vetoing the omnibus bill comprising a group of new pensions and increases in old pensions of war veterans. No lengthy message was necessary to make clear the reasons for his veto. Mr. Hoover needed only to cite a few of the cases, which included men guilty of desertion and dishonorably discharged, men injured in suicide attempts, men injured while intoxicated, malingerers, self-inflicted wound cases—and all now attempting to get money from the Government. Pensions are intended as rewards for services rendered the country in time of war, but such records as these were hindrances rather than services.

The amazing part of it is that most of these undeserving cases had previously been rejected by the Pension Bureau, then had been introduced as private bills in Congress and the whole list—such is the power of pensions as political ammunition—had passed both houses without a voice being raised in opposition. The deserving cases in this bill should, of course, be approved again by Congress, but we hope no member will have the audacity to revive any of the others.

THEY GO THEIR SEPARATE WAYS.

The combined opposition of the military lobby, the Hoover administration and the Tammany Democrats proved too much for the plan to merge the War and Navy departments. The House, sitting as a committee of the whole, removed by a close vote that provision from the economy bill. Congressmen Cochran, La Guardia and others, who have shown themselves to be supporters of the people's interests and who went down fighting for the consolidation, now declare the unnecessary toll which thereby will be exacted from the taxpayers will run into the millions of dollars.

The wailing protests which the Admirals and Generals raised against the plan leaves them revealed in a light less favorable in the public eye. Their main arguments were that the merger would imperil the national defense and not accomplish any savings. Unfortunately for them, the edge and a good part of the blade of these contentions were removed when France, the leading militaristic Power today, consolidated its ministries of War, Navy and Air in order to strengthen its defenses and to enjoy the substantial savings that would result.

Granting that even small savings would have resulted from the consolidation, it would have become our professional militarists in such a time as this to sacrifice a little departmental pride and prestige as an evidence of the patriotism which they so loudly demand in others.

THE PACKERS LOSE.

By its refusal to permit the packers to engage in the wholesaling of food products, other than meats, the Supreme Court has upheld the spirit of the Sherman law. Its decision gives the wholesale grocers, beset by the packers, on the one hand, and the chain stores, on the other, a new lease on life. If the decision had gone in favor of the packers, they, with their warehouses and refrigerator car facilities, would have become formidable competitors of the wholesale grocers.

For a dozen years, the packers have been attempting to break down the consent decree, which they voluntarily signed in 1920 to evade prosecution under the Sherman law. The decree grew out of a report of the Federal Trade Commission, charging the packers with monopolistic control in the purchase of livestock and the distribution of meats. It was held that this control threatened the food supply of the nation. In the consent decree, the packers were ordered to dispose of all their interests in stockyards, which has not yet been done, and they were permanently enjoined from selling fruit, vegetables and groceries at wholesale or retail.

In January, 1931, the Supreme Court of the District of Columbia modified the 1920 decree to permit packers to engage in the wholesaling of food, and it is this modification that has now been nullified. The disappointment of the packers is intensified by the changed conditions in the food industry that have arisen since 1920, particularly the rise of the chain store. The packers complain, and with some justification, that whereas they may not engage in wholesale or retail distribution, the chains are permitted to operate their own packing plants. It is a poor rule, they say, that does not work both ways.

In their modification fight, the packers enjoyed the support of the Livestock Advisory Committee of the Federal Farm Board, representing the livestock growers. It is their contention that the packers should be permitted to distribute meats by wholesale and retail, as a means of lowering distribution costs. Ex-Chairman Legge of the Farm Board agreed with this view, and thought entrance of the packers into the wholesale and retail fields would lessen the cost spread. For this view, however, he was bitterly criticised as aiding and abetting monopolistic practices.

While independent wholesalers have won an important victory, so have the chains. The latter, according to a Census Bureau study, made 41.3 per cent of the grocery sales in 11 cities in 1926. No doubt today they occupy a still more important place in the business. The future of the food business is a riddle, made even more complicated by the Supreme Court decision.

THE CARDINALS.

It was not in the spirit of world champions that the Cardinals returned to St. Louis from their first road trip.

Nevertheless, it was a popular disaster that befell the Cardinals. They were pretty well kicked about in both Pittsburg and Chicago. Had they not been, they would be cruising along somewhere near the top of the first division, and pretty much everybody would have been bored by the spectacle of an unbeatable combination in the national sport.

As it is, the Cardinals have their backs to the wall. They are on the defensive. The baseball experts are not so sure about the Cardinals winning the pennant this year. The fans look out on the void that was Grimes and the vacancy that was Hafey and devoutly wish we had our old team back.

Since to be an echo of anything or anybody, even such giants as Grimes and Hafey, is about the hollowest lot there is in life, the 1932 Cardinals have a chance to prove themselves and become champions in their own right.

We believe they can do it. They are just about far enough behind to put them on their mettle, and we are very curious to see what that mettle is. The old Cardinals cannot play baseball for the new Cardinals. It is a new deal and a new chance, just as it should be.

SEPTEMBER, 1939.

The United States Supreme Court has denied a review of Al Capone's conviction for evading income taxes, and the Chicago gangster will be presently on his way to Leavenworth, or Atlanta, to serve an 11-year sentence. If he should be eligible for parole after doing two-thirds of the time, Public Enemy No. 1 may again look on the Loop, or the Lake Shore, or the suburb styled Cicero, in September, 1939, though, perhaps, he will choose another environment in which to spend the quiet aftermath. Whatever he decides to do, he will enter a different world from that he left behind.

The first sight to engage his piggish eye, be it hoped, will be the unmarked grave of Old Man Depression, sleeping uneasily and with never a chance for resurrection in a planet pulsing with prosperity. The Hoover administration will be buried deep in history. Its successor, too, will have come and gone, and the White House will be occupied, possibly, by someone who today is "a youth to fortune and to fame unknown."

If Capone in his prison reveries dreamed of resuming his racketeering regime, he will, in all probability, be quickly disillusioned. The illicit liquor traffic on which he erected the structure of his criminal dominion will have been abolished, and in this respect, as in many others, the nation will be operating in terms of sanity and law-abiding order. The problem of debts and reparations will no longer bedevil humanity, the pound sterling will walk through the exchanges with its old-time golden swagger, the Prince of Wales will be happily married, there will be silver threads in Hitler's jet mustache, Babe Ruth will be watching the game from the grandstand, Al Smith and Raskob will be discussing putts missed or sunk at the nineteenth hole, Gandhi will be strolling down the road to Mandalay in a frock coat and striped trousers and St. Louis, having forgotten all about why Grimes and Hafey were traded, will have fashioned a river front worthy of the Mississippi.

It will be a good world Capone will come back to in September, 1939, but if the Government decides to prolong the convict's visit to 1943, that will be "O K by everybody."

Whoever is President when Senator Kratky goes to Washington will do well to double the White House guard, or he may wake up some morning in an aquarium.

HIS TURN.

Meaning of the Budget Struggle

By Walter Lippmann.

THE House has done to the economy bill what it did to the tax bill. It has torn it to pieces. There is no cause for astonishment in this. All experience of legislative bodies shows that in a serious budgetary situation, the ordinary Representative who must soon face his constituents will not voluntarily vote for heavy sacrifices by taxes and retrenchments. The task is too great for political human nature. That is why every government facing a problem of the magnitude of ours has had either to balance its budget by executive decree or to obtain a special and overpowering national mandate from the people.

It is important to realize this. For, unless the inherent difficulty of the problem is well understood, the public is more likely to give itself over to despondent complaint than to organize itself for effective action. This is particularly true in the United States, where, because of the inflexible character of our Government, none of the short cuts, such as a resort to executive decree or to coalition government, is possible. Our problem can be solved only by the awakening of an informed and powerful public opinion.

It is necessary, therefore, to seek clear ideas on the real meaning of this confused struggle to balance the budget.

A candid view will show at once that if the administration program of taxes and economies, or any other program now under discussion, were promptly enacted, the budget for next year—that is, for the year extending from July 1, 1932, to June 30, 1933—would not certainly be in arithmetical balance. Not only is there no provision made for the sinking fund, but: the Treasury is counting upon full payment on the war debts; it has calculated the yield of taxes on the assumption of an improvement in business; nothing has been provided for unemployment relief, though that will certainly be necessary next winter; and the estimate of economies is optimistic, and so deficiency bills are highly probable.

The truth is that all programs for balancing the budget depend upon the success of the effort to arrest the fall in prices and stimulate some recovery of employment and profits. That being the case, why is it so important to make the struggle now toward the ideal of a balanced budget? That struggle will obviously have to be resumed next winter even if Congress votes the taxes and economies now before it.

The answer usually given is that a balanced budget is necessary to maintain the credit of the United States Government, and that it is vitally important to maintain that credit at all times, but particularly at a time when private credit is so seriously impaired. That answer is correct, but it needs to be amplified if it is to be convincing to those who look at the present prices of Government bonds and wonder whether there is any real doubt about the national credit.

The credit of the United States rests upon the conviction that the Government can and will meet its obligations. This means two things: that the Government will exercise its sovereign right to tax the people and that it will not tax them more than they can and will bear.

The first duty of the Government, then, is to show that it has the courage to draw upon the resources of the people. If it has not that courage, its credit is at once impaired, for it is then demonstrating that it is not willing to place all the resources of the nation behind its obligations. If the Government is afraid to tax the rich, if the rich are powerful enough to avoid taxes, then obviously for that Government the fortunes of the rich are a frozen asset. If the Government shows that it is afraid to tax the middle class in some fair proportion, then for the purposes of the Government's credit the wealth of the middle class is a frozen asset.

Therefore, in a time like this, the best tax bill from the point of view of the national credit is one which fearlessly opens up to taxation, by one method or another, the whole range of incomes. That this taxation should be progresssive, so that the larger the income the larger the rate, is perfectly clear and undisputed. But unless taxation is comprehensive as well as progressive, the national credit has not been fully sustained.

The second duty of the Government is to show that it can control its own expenditures. If it has not the political courage to resist the pressure of lobbies, of organized minorities, of its own employes, then it cannot convince the taxpayer or the purchaser of its obligations that it can really perform what it promises. A government which cannot resist the pressure of the veterans has lost control of a very large part of its expenditures. A government which cannot reduce the pay of its own civil servants, when that pay has increased in real value, is no longer sovereign. A government which cannot reduce subsidies to special interests is under their heel.

Therefore, from the point of view of the national credit, those economies which are politically the most dangerous are for that very reason the most important. The actual savings which can be made provide relatively little relief. But a proof that the Government can make them is of the utmost importance, because it shows that there is no bottomless hole in any part of the budget.

The substance of the matter, therefore, is that, though the budget will not be brought into balance by any measures now contemplated, though a true balance of the budget can probably be attained only after another struggle next year and then only with an arrest of the deflation, the present struggle is of vital importance. It is a struggle to preserve the credit of the United States by demonstrating that the Government is in command. What matters is not the arithmetical calculations, but the courage displayed. If Congress will pass a tax bill that is both comprehensive and progressive and an economy bill that defeats the pressure of organized minorities, it will have "balanced the budget" even if the accounts do not actually balance 14 months hence.

The demand for a balanced budget at a time like this is in essence a demand that the Government exercise its sovereignty. For the credit of the United States will be good for all necessary purposes as long as the Government is the master in its own house.

THE 1932 GRADUATE.

From the Boston Herald.

THE youngster who sets out from college this June deserves a good deal of honest sympathy. He will find few doors open to him and many closed, and unless somebody gives him an encouraging hand, he is likely to lose the youthful enthusiasm and energy which Americans sorely need just now. So, if he comes your way, do what you can for him. He's more adaptable and teachable and useful than he may seem.

Summer Opera in St. Louis

From the Springfield (Ill.) State Register.

ST. LOUIS, always a liberal patron of the arts, achieves further and enviable fame by its support of the Municipal Opera for the forthcoming season, starting in June. Announcement that the enterprise would be continued in the face of the present extremely unfavorable conditions for artistic presentations places St. Louis in a class by itself in this respect, since a recent survey discloses that the St. Louis Municipal Opera is the only outdoor summer opera in the United States to survive the depression.

The other opera enterprises in this category—the Ravinia Opera of Chicago and the Zoo Opera of Cincinnati, both notable in this field—have been discontinued, according to an announcement by the Municipal Theater Association. Furthermore, there is great anxiety among patrons of grand opera this year as to whether the great opera organizations in the music centers are to continue. At the moment, there is no definite assurance that the Metropolitan of New York and the Civic Opera of Chicago are to go ahead next fall, although strenuous efforts are being put forth to assemble the necessary funds. Prospects are not much better at San Francisco, and in Los Angeles production plans have been abandoned for this year.

It is also interesting to note that the great German opera companies of Europe are feeling the effects of the world-wide depression. Normally, the subsidies from taxation are quite sufficient for their needs, but during the past season these companies received little more than half their usual income from the city taxes. In the emergency, most of these organizations are resorting to operetta and light romantic opera, to tide them over.

That the St. Louis Municipal Opera has been able to make its way undaunted through the prevailing clouds of discouragement and pessimism not only reflects credit upon the management, but emphasizes anew the splendid interest and support accorded it by the citizenry of St. Louis. The thousands of patrons who travel to the city from surrounding territory to enjoy these fine attractions will be glad to know that the summer opera is to continue.

As a relief from dull cars and the workaday program of modern life, this type of opera—"under the stars"—is to be highly recommended anywhere, and especially upon such a scale of beauty and magnificence as is afforded by the setting at Forest Park, which is so ideal in good weather. St. Louis deserves the thanks of these many patrons for maintaining this enterprise, and the city will continue to prosper in this delightful civic asset which enhances its cultural prestige so fittingly.

SURPLUS WORDS.

From the Daily Oklahoman.

PURE surplusage is the language found in a sales tax bill recently introduced into the Massachusetts Legislature providing that "the tax in every instance shall be borne by the purchaser." Those provisory words possess no value at all. With or without such a provision, the purchaser will pay the tax if the pending bill shall be enacted. From the beginning, the ultimate consumer has paid, and he will continue to pay unto the end.

A COMPLAINT ABOUT SPEAKEASIES.

From the San Francisco Call-Bulletin.

A STANFORD student complains in his university newspaper that speakeasies in the neighborhood are shamefully inadequate. Poor liquor, dirty premises, no free lunch, etc. Enough to make a young man ashamed when he invites his father to have a drink. This age IS interesting.

800 Members of Western Association Expected for 3-Day Sessions.

Registration began today for the thirty-eighth annual convention of the Western Arts Association, composed mainly of art supervisors in public schools, which will hold sessions tomorrow through Friday at Hotel Jefferson.

About 800 members, from the Ohio River to the Rocky Mountains, are expected to attend. Sectional meetings will include discussions of printing and other vocational activities. General sessions will emphasize the general convention theme, "Social Significance in Arts Education."

Hundreds of exhibits from various schools range from the finished work of the Chicago Academy of Fine Arts to the immature sketches of elementary school pupils, taking art for the first time. The St. Louis School of Fine Arts of Washington University is exhibiting work done abroad by the three 1931 European scholarship winners of the school.

Besides registration, the program today included trips to art exhibits at schools in St. Louis and St. Louis County and to other places of interest. Although the final session of the convention will be held Friday night an extensive sight-seeing program has been arranged for Saturday.

The first session will be held tomorrow night at 8 o'clock. Belle C. Scofield, Indianapolis, Ind., president of the association, will deliver the president's address. Dr. Frank D. Slutz, former director of the Moraine Park School, Dayton, O., will speak on "The Teacher as Artist for Life's Sake."

Three sectional meetings—on general art, manual training and vocational education, and home economics—will begin Thursday morning at 9 o'clock. A general session, at 2 p. m., will include an address by Dr. Herbert J. Spinden, director of education and curator of ethnology for the Brooklyn museum, on "Ancient America Enriching the Modern World," and an illustrated lecture by John Gilbert Wilkins of the Field Museum of Natural History on "Nature as a Basic Inspiration for All Art."

Additional sectional meetings will be held Friday with the general sessions in the afternoon and night. Sessions are not public.

scheme. Wintergreen will be the candidate of love, the greatest lover of a lovesick land. Accordingly, they hold a beauty contest at Atlantic City announcing the winner is to be "Miss White House."

But real love interferes at the moment when a sugary southern lass, Diana Devereaux, has won the contest. For Wintergreen suddenly spies a beautiful secretary who is not in the contest, decides to marry her and abandon the victorious "Miss White House."

With such slogans as "Woo With Wintergreen" and by means of a courtship conducted in public, Wintergreen and the little secretary become the President and first lady of the United States, easily out-distancing such rivals as Mickey Mouse, Mae West, Walter Hampden and Goldman Sachs. The deserted Miss Devereaux, however, has not forgotten her sad, plight. Discovering she is;

"The illegitimate daughter of the illegitimate son.
Of the illegitimate nephew of Napo-Le-On."

She gets the French Ambassador to intervene in her behalf. He does so and war with France seems inevitable, unless Wintergreen decides to live up to his pre-election pledge to marry Miss Devereaux.

Impeachment Avoided.

Because of this same deserted beauty Wintergreen is brought before the Senate and would be impeached if at the last moment, the first lady did not dance athletically into the Senate chamber, announcing she is to become a mother.

At the mention of motherhood, the Senators and the Justices are so overcome that they rock imaginary babies in their arms and are ready to beg forgiveness of Wintergreen. But in spite of their friendliness war with France is imminent and remains so until the first lady has borne two children, and President Wintergreen has pacified France by giving Miss Devereaux to the Vice President.

Throughout all this brisk nonsense the Vice President roams unhappily first as a candidate whose name nobody knows, and then as an officeholder no one remembers. He passes pickles humbly before the election, goes back to his business of being a hermit after the campaign, and gets into the White House after he has become Vice President only as a sightseer lost in a crowd of other sightseers.

The play is an audacious clowning of the sentimentality of the American people and the method of American politics which, with no reverence but with much good humor, invades both the sancrosanct Senate chamber and the White Eouse, and chucks the august members of the Supreme Court playfully under their chins. As a travesty on voters and candidates and the holders of high office it manages to come off as "Strike Up the Band" did not quite succeed in doing as a parody of war and big business.

ALDERMEN SEEK SAVING THAT WON'T RUIN CITY SERVICE

about conditions now, Salisbury related, indicating that some of the doctors might quit the service if the institutional personnels were reduced. The visiting staff is not paid. As to institutional food, Salisbury declared, cost had been "cut to the bone."

Members of the Police Board and heads of other State departments paid from city funds, the Election Board, Circuit Attorney, judicial and clerical officials of the courts, have been invited to meet the Aldermen for discussions of cuts in their departments. President Neun of the board said that if the officials invited did not appear, the committee would go to see them.

$9,000,000 in Taxes Delinquent.

One result of the discussion was an inquiry by the Aldermen into the city's "bills receivable" in the form of delinquent taxes, largely on real estate. These delinquencies amount to more than $9,000,000, and are a lien on the real estate, so that the city is reasonably sure of collecting them some time.

"It doesn't seem to me the city is so hard up, so long as we have this money due and collectible," Alderman Studt said. Deputy Comptroller Gunn said the city would get most of the money, but he could not say when. He has included, in the coming year's estimate of receipts, $2,100,000 payment of delinquent taxes.

Some of the Aldermen talked of discounting the entire amount of taxes due on real estate by selling the bills to banks or brokerage houses, to enable the city to realize cash for them. Others pointed out that many of the delinquents are small home owners, who might lose their homes or their equities if the bills were sold to those who would press for immediate payment. The policy of Collector Koeln is to give home owners time to pay, though, under the law, the bills are considerably increased by the penalties added for delinquency.

Protest Against Tax Increase.

Another result of the discussion was the sending of a protest to the State Auditor, by the Chamber of Commerce, against the State's increase of its tax rate from 12 to 15 cents on $100 valuation. This 3-cent increase is the cause of the proposed increase in the St. Louis tax rate, covering city, State and schools, from $2.71 last year to $2.74 for the coming year. The Aldermen are trying to get rid of the 3-cent increase, which is a part of the pending budget bill.

The Chamber of Commerce, in its letter to Auditor Thompson, said the State should resort to economy to balance its budget, as the Federal and city governments are doing. It recognized that 1 cent of the increase, for bond interest, was mandatory under an act of the Legislature, but said the other 2 cents, for the State soldiers' bonus, was not necessary at this time, and that the proposed increase had "thrown a monkey wrench" into the process of budget-making here. Thompson was asked to rescind his notification to the St. Louis officials, and to county clerks throughout the State, of the 2-cent increase.

Charles H. Morrill of the Chamber of Commerce, who appeared before the Aldermen with a plea for economy to balance the budget, was besieged with questions of "Where?" and "How?" He was asked whether balancing the budget was more important than keeping the tax rate from being increased by 3 cents on $100, and replied that balancing the budget was more important, as an added deficit now would mean more taxes later. He said, in reply to questions, that he believed business men would favor maintaining the psychiatric clinic and the City Plan Commission.

TWO OF 400 YOUNG WOMEN CHOSEN TO GO ON EXPEDITION

William Beebe Seeking Adaptable Students for Deep Sea Exploration Trip.

By the Associated Press

NEW YORK, May 3.—William Beebe, scientist, turned down about 400 young women eager to go along on his latest tropical deep-sea exploration trip, most of whom "yearned for the romance of the tropics." He chose Miss Gloria Hollister and Miss Jocelyn Crane because they offered "sound ideas for scientific research," he said yesterday.

"It's what is above the ears I am after for the expeditions," he said. Both the young women chosen have sleek permanent waves above the ears.

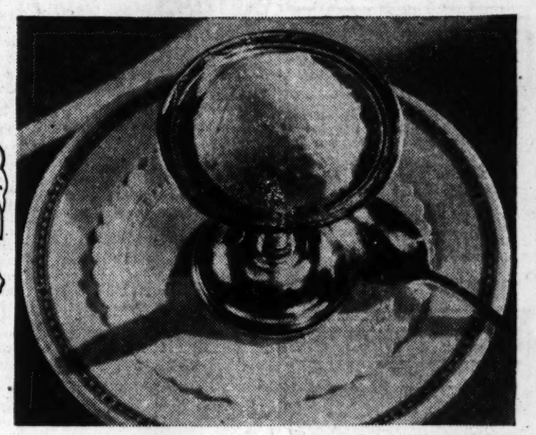

Beebe in the past has included several women in his parties because he is "after adaptable scientific students, and sometimes women are very adaptable." The expedition sails Saturday.

IT'S THE BERRIES, cream and eggs that make this Oh so good

"What can cool the fevers of Spring?" sings the poet, twisting a crocus into his hair, "Oh, what can cool the fevers of Spring?" And very softly we answer, "Fresh Strawberry Ice Cream."

And preferably Fresh Statler Strawberry Ice Cream. It's so good! It's filled with crushed fresh strawberries—plump and lusciously vine-ripened. The cream is a much heavier grade than ordinarily used in commercial ice cream, and the eggs are the best breakfast eggs the country affords. These, and pure cane sugar, are the only ingredients. And these, plus exact, skillful preparation and freezing, account for the velvet-smooth texture and delicate flavoring that make our fresh strawberry ice cream so irresistibly good—and so popular.

Come in tomorrow and sample this tempting dessert. You'll return often. For it is like all Statler food, Statler guest rooms and Statler services, kept at the point of perfection.

CASHIER SURRENDERS ON $100,000 CHARGE

Man Sought for Embezzlement From Fairfax, Ok., Bank Ready to Face Court.

By the Associated Press

PAWHUSKA, Ok., May 3.—C. E. Ashbrook, former cashier of the First National Bank of Fairfax, Ok., sought six weeks on a charge of absconding with more than $100,000, surrendered Sunday night to Jim Pyle, special officer of the Osage Indian Agency here, after telephoning from Wellington, Kan., that he was ready to face court action.

The bank closed March 21, five days after the disappearance of Ashbrook, respected citizen and president of the Fairfax Chamber of Commerce.

Ladd Gambill, auditor, said the money was taken over a period of several years. Much of it was money on deposit for Osage Indian wards of the Government.

50 PROPERTY OWNERS PROTEST AGAINST NEW CABANNE PAVING

They Say Present Roadway Is in Good Condition; Think City Should Pay Cost.

Fifty property owners from Cabanne avenue appeared before the Board of Public Service today to protest against the special tax for the proposed paving of Cabanne, between Union boulevard and Clara avenue.

Lambert Walther, an attorney, acted as spokesman, stating that the present roadway was laid in 1921 at the expense of property owners, who are well satisfied with the condition of the street. He suggested that, if the Street Department wanted to make a general thoroughfare of the street, the city should pay for the paving. Walther said the general economic condition makes it advisable to postpone the paving.

E. K. Eastham, safety engineer for the Public Service Co., one of the protesting property owners, said: "We don't want a speedway in front of our homes. People drive fast enough out there now." It was stated that all but one property owner had signed the protest petition. The missing signature is that of a man who was too ill to be seen by the committee.

Director of Streets and Sewers Brooks said the city had spent more than $1000 a year to keep the street in repair. The cost of paving the street with asphalt or composition material has been estimated at $45,800 to $49,500.

TO COMPLETE ALOE PLAZA GRADING WITHIN A MONTH

Filling and grading of Aloe Plaza, opposite Union Station, will be completed within a month, President Kinsey of the Board of Public Service announced today. Then the site, bounded by Eighteenth, Twentieth, Market and Chestnut streets, will be turned over to Park Commissioner Pape.

Offcials think it will be late this year before the planting of grass and trees and other work of ornamentation can be finished. After the removal of the old buildings on the site, cellars were left on the rest of the ground was irregular. Earth from the excavations for the Municipal Auditorium and several sewers have been used to make the fill.

New York Sugar.

By the Associated Press

NEW YORK, May 3.—Raw sugar was quiet and unchanged early today at 2.60 for spots with no sales reported.

Sugar futures opened unchanged to 2 points lower and later showed additional losses of a point on some positions, with May contracts making another new low all-time record, selling at .53, while some of the later positions made new lows for the season. The easiness abroad, unsettled refined and inactivity in the spot market seemed to be the principal factors and promoted scattered commission house selling. Houses with Cuban connections were also on the selling side, but offerings were fairly well absorbed and in the late forenoon the market steadied on covering. Midday prices were net unchanged to 1 point lower.

There was no change in refined prices, all refiners listing at 3.80 for fine granulated, but some refiners who previously announced the withdrawal of the 2¼c allowance per hundred pounds in lieu of the four-payment plan at the opening today postponed it until tomorrow. Demand, however, showed no signs of broadening and was still confined to nearby requirements.

Futures closed barely steady, 1 to 2 lower; approximated sales, 12,700 tons. May, .52@.53c; July, .61c; September, .67-.68c; October, .70c; December, .74c; January, .76c; March, .81c.

COTTON MARKET CLOSES 2 TO 6 POINTS HIGHER

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, May 3.—An early advance influenced by the overnight announcement of the Federal Farm Board, was followed by reactions in cotton today, but after selling off from 5.80c to 5.59c, July contracts steadied up again to 5.74c on a renewal of covering and trade buying.

The mid-afternoon market was steady with prices about net unchanged to … points higher.

Futures closed steady, 2 to 6 higher. May, 5.60c; July, 5.74-75c; October, 6…; December, 6.12-14c; January, 6.2…; March, 6.38c. Spot, quiet; middling 5.75c.

Prices dipped slightly right after the call, selling off to 5.64c for July, but the offerings were quite readily absorbed, and while trading continued quiet, prices worked about 1 to 5 points net higher before session had gone far, when July was selling at 5.73c and October at 5.9…c. The announcement of the Federal Farm Board selling policy, eliminating recent uncertainty, was evidently considered a constructive feature by many in the trade as a long range proposition, and probably brought in some of the early buying.

Liverpool did not fully meet yesterday's local advance, but reported that there had been covering and trade calling with buying for a reaction in that market.

According to the New York Cotton Exchange service world's consumption of American lint cotton for March amounted to 1,157,000 bales, against 1,066,000 for February and 979,000 for March last year.

The mid-morning advance extended to 5.80c for July and 6.04c for October, making net gains of about 6 to 12 points on the general list and, in the case of July contracts, a recovery of 35 points from the low level of yesterday. These prices met a little more selling which seemed to come partly from the South and New Orleans. The market at midday was quiet and steady at net declines of 3 to 6 points.

CLEARINGS, MONEY AND SILVER

The St. Louis Clearing House Association reported clearings for May 3, 1932, $10,800,000; corresponding day last year, $14,100,000; this year, $1,148,400,000; corresponding period a year ago, $1,69…,900,000. Report of debits for May 3 were: Debits to individual accounts, $2…,200,000; total to date, $1,909,600,000. Debits to and bankers' accounts, $10,900,000; total to date, $883,200,000; combined debits to individual and bank and bankers' accounts, $38,100,000; Total to date, $2,792,800,000.

NEW YORK, May 3.—Dealers shaded rates on 30 to 90 day time loans by ¼ of one per cent today, bringing the charge for shortest term accommodation down to 1½ to 1¾. Longer maturities are nominally quoted at 2 per cent, but there has been very little business in such funds for some time.

Call money brought 2 per cent outside reflecting temporary firmness due to month end settlements. The bankers' acceptance market was dull.

Time loans, 30 days 1¼@1¾; 60-90 days, 1¾@2; four-six months, 2 per cent; prime commercial paper, 3¼@3½.

LONDON, May 3.—Money, 1½. Discount rates—Short bills, 1⅞-2; three month bills, 2-2 1-16 per cent.

NEW YORK, May 3.—Bar silver easy and ¼ lower at 27.

PARIS, May 3.—Three per cent rentes 76 francs, 45 centimes. Five per cent loan 98 francs, 90 centimes. Exchange on London, 92 francs 87 centimes. The dollar was quoted at 25 francs 33¾ centimes.

PORTION OF STOCK LIST CONTINUES DOWNWARD

Oils and Some of the Leading Industrials Hold Line but There Are Numerous 1 to 3 Point Losses.

STOCK PRICE TREND.

	Tues.	Mon.
Number of advances	83	93
Number of declines	315	330
Stocks unchanged	169	149
Total issues traded	567	572

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, May 3.—While oils and some of the leading industrials held the line on today's stock market, much of the list was still in retreat. There were numerous losses of 1 to 3 points at the finish, and the closing tone was heavy. The turnover was again less than 1,000,000 shares.

Weakness of the dollar in the foreign exchange markets, apparently reflecting fears of inflation here as result of passage of the Goldsborough bill by the House, and heaviness of some of the principal commodities, were unsettling factors. Nevertheless, selling was meager in the aggregate.

U. S. Steel and American Telephone lost only minor fractions, but issues off 2 to 3 points included American Can, Western Union, Safeway Stores, J. C. Penny, U. S. Steel preferred, Allied Chemical, Coca-Cola and others. Lehman Corp. lost nearly 3, then recovered half its decline. American Can preferred and Auburn lost more than 3 points. General Motors and Standard of N. J. closed about unchanged, and Royal Dutch was up about a point.

Movements Against Dollar.

The continental gold currencies rose strongly against the dollar, in foreign exchanges. French franc cables were up 7-16 of a point to 3.94¾ cents, and the Belgian Belga and Dutch florin likewise advanced, all three currencies reaching levels at which gold may be profitably taken from New York. Sterling was but a shade higher.

Selling of Western Union was linked to the proposed Federal tax on communications, but American Telephone held up, better than it did yesterday.

Oils were firm for a time, notably Royal Dutch and Standard of N. J., in response to news of the arrival of Russian oil chiefs in this country to attend an international conference. Furthermore, first published figures on last week's domestic crude production indicated a substantial decline. Standard Oil of California reported net for the first quarter of 22 cents a share, as reduced from 33 cents in the like period of last year. There was a notable lifting of recent pressure against Royal Dutch in foreign markets.

The consolidated condition statement of weekly reporting member banks of the Federal Reserve showed results of the system's credit expansion program in a further piling up of reserves, but the banks had further reduced their loans, both on security and commercial collateral.

The reserves of the member banks, however, increased during the week by $145,000,000, and reserve officials have expressed the opinion that banks will soon seek employment for these excess reserves, which do not earn anything when merely left on deposit with the reserve. The condition statement published today, which was for the week ended April 27, showed a drop of $32,000,000 in loans on securities, and of $55,000,000 in all other, including commercial loans. Of the total shrinkage of $87,000,000 in loans, $53,000,000 was in the New York Reserve district, and the remainder scattered among the other 11 districts.

Passage of the Goldsborough bill in the House, which directs the reserve system to use its resources in an inflationary effort to restore commodity prices to about the 1926 level, while regarded by bankers here as probably too vague in its language to force anything in the nature of dangerous inflation if enacted, was regarded as an influence tending to weaken the dollar in the foreign exchange market.

STOCK EXCHANGE TOPICS

NEW YORK, May 3.—Speculative interest was focused on the situation which developed in International Shoe toward the middle of afternoon. A large amount of the stock was taken at 36. This issue was one of those commanding a premium in the loan market as it has for some time past. A premium of ¼ being quoted today. Sales for the day were 31,20… shares at range of 36 low to 3… high and close, which was net gain of ½ point for day.

COTTON MARKET CLOSES 2 TO 6 POINTS HIGHER

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, May 3.—An early advance influenced by the overnight announcement of the Federal Farm Board, was followed by reactions in cotton today, but after selling off from 5.80c to 5.59c, July contracts rallied up again to 5.74c on a renewal of covering and trade buying.

The mid-afternoon market was steady, with prices about net unchanged to 6 points higher.

Futures closed steady, 2 to 6 higher; May, 5.60c; July, 5.74-75c; October, 6c; December, 6.12-14c; January, 6.23c; March, 6.38c. Spot, quiet; middling, 5c.

Prices dipped slightly right after the call, selling off to 5.64c for July, but the offerings were quite readily absorbed, and while trading continued quiet, prices worked about 1 to 5 points net higher before session had gone far, when July was selling at 5.73c and October at 5.98c. The announcement of the Federal Farm Board selling policy, eliminating recent uncertainty, was evidently considered a constructive feature by many in the trade as a longer range proposition, and probably brought some of the early buying.

Liverpool did not fully meet yesterday's local advance, but reported that there was covering and trade calling with buying for a reaction in that market.

According to the New York Cotton Exchange service world's consumption of American lint cotton for March amounted to 1,157,000 bales, against 1,066,000 for February and 979,000 for March last year.

The mid-morning advance extended to ... for July and 6.04c for October, making net gains of about 6 to 12 points on the general list and, in the case of July contracts, a recovery of 35 points from the low level of yesterday. These prices met a little more selling which seemed to come partly from the South and New Orleans. The market at midday was quiet and steady at net declines of 3 to 6 points.

KENNECOTT COPPER MAKES OFFER TO NEVADA MINORITY

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, May 3.—The Kennecott Copper Co. has made an offer to minority stockholders of the Nevada Consolidated Copper Co. under which Kennecott will exchange one share of its own stock for each two shares of Nevada.

Kennecott has controlled Nevada Consolidated for a number of years, through its holdings in the Utah Copper Co., which in turn holds a large interest in Nevada.

Deposits of Nevada stock with Kennecott Corporation would be made between May 12 and June 15.

Operations of the two companies have been under the same management for some time and their selling has been done through the same agencies.

Properties of Nevada Copper are located in Nevada, Arizona and New Mexico.

Announcement of the exchange offer was made at Kennecott's annual meeting by Stephen Birch, president, who said that complete conversion of the Nevada shares would increase Kennecott's outstanding stock to 10,734,000 shares against 9,394,000 at present.

Giving effect to the consolidation, the combined companies, he stated, would have more than $50,000,000 in cash, marketable securities and metal.

Since Jan. 1, President Birch said, Kennecott's operations have broken about even. Mine output has been slightly less than shipments.

"Recovery in copper," he declared, "must depend on improvement in general business."

ERRATIC TENDENCIES TO THE BOND LIST

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, May 3.—The bond market continued to display erratic tendencies today and efforts to halt liquidation generally were unsuccessful.

Even the United States Government department turned soft with some of the Treasuries subjected to pressure. The activity in the Federals was more pronounced than in several sessions.

A number of the low-priced railway loans, which exhibited rallying inclinations earlier, gave ground. Among the most noticeable losers were Southern Pacific 4½s which dropped around 4 points. Weakness was also shown by Boston & Maine 5s, Baltimore & Ohio convertible 4½s, Chesapeake & Ohio 4½s and Erie 5s. Modest advances were held by Allegheny Corporation 5s, St. Paul 5s, Atchison 4s and Nickel Plate 4½s.

Loans of the oil companies improved, but other industrial and utility obligations drifted to lower territory. Western Union 5s touched another new low and the 6½s rallied after a decline. Loew's 6s lost more than 3 points and declines were registered by Armour 4½s, Goodyear 5s and American & Foreign Power 5s.

Bonds of Australia and New South Wales were leaders in the foreign group, most of these rising substantially. French 7s and 7½s were strong. Kreuger & Toll 5s were up moderately. British 5½s, after reaching a new high for the year, reacted fractionally.

EASY UNDERTONE TO THE MARKET ON CURB

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, May 3.—An easy undertone persisted in the curb market today. Closing prices of leaders in utility and industrial groups were lower, although declines in many instances were of fractional size. Trading was quiet.

Swift & Co. and Swift International weakened, the former dropping a point in a fairly active turnover, while shares of the latter were off about 2.

Net recessions in Electric Bond & Share, American Gas and American Light & Traction averaged half a point. Consolidated Gas of Baltimore declined slightly more than 1.

Except for a small decline in Humble Oil and occasional fluctuations of a point in Gulf, oils were quiet and steady.

Coca Cola Co. Dividends.

ATLANTA, Ga., May 3.—Directors of the Coca Cola Co. voted the regular quarterly dividend of $1.75 per share on common stock, plus an extra dividend of 25 cents per share, and the regular semi-annual dividend of $1.50 per share on the Class "A" stock.

The common stock dividend totals $2,000,000 and the Class "A" dividend amounts to $1,500,000. They will be payable July 1 to stockholders of record June 14.

FOREIGN MARKETS AT A GLANCE

LONDON, May 3.—There was good buying of gilt-edged securities on the stock exchange due to cheap money outlook and the improvement in oil shares. Argentine rails were the brightest features, while others declined under the lead of foreign bonds and American shares. The closing was irregular.

PARIS, May 3.—The bourse was stronger with a considerable volume of rebuying, but certain issues were sold in the latter part of the session and closed irregular.

BERLIN, May 3.—Considerable buying of industrial stocks appeared on the boerse today. The market closed firm.

NEW YORK RUBBER MARKET

NEW YORK, May 3.—Rubber futures opened firm; May 3.05, July 3.15, Sept. 3.28, Dec. 3.51.

Rubber futures closed steady. May, 3.23c; July, 3.35c; September, 3.44c; October, 3.50c; December, 3.65c; January, 3.70c; March, 3.80-85c.

Smoked ribbed, spot, closed 3.25c.

S. O. of California Dividend.

SAN FRANCISCO, May 3.—Standard Oil Co. of California declared the regular quarterly dividend of 50 cents a share, payable June 15 to stockholders of record May 16.

The company issued a financial report for the first quarter of this year, showing net profit after estimated income tax of $2,930,241, compared with the 1931 first quarter net of $4,368,609.

Dividend requirements on the 13,102,000 shares of common stock, which constitute the sole capitalization of the corporation, will require $6,556,000—or well over twice earnings.

The company reported operating income of $7,193,819, compared with $8,563,116 in the first 1931 quarter.

WHEAT MARKET SWINGS LOWER IN LATE TRADE

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, May 3.—Selling of wheat bought of late on correct expectance of bullish private crop estimates led to sharp setbacks in prices today after an early advance. At the bottom of the downturn, wheat showed a loss of more than 9 cents a bushel from the recent high. The decline carried the market to the lowest prices touched in more than a month.

Wheat closed unstable, 1c to 1⅜c under yesterday's finish. Corn, ¾@1⅜c down; oats, ½c off to ⅝c up, and provisions unchanged to 12c decline.

Influenced by reports of dust storms in Kansas, wheat showed an upward trend early today.

Liverpool confirmed purchases of wheat by Spain. Opening at ⅛ off to ½ up. Wheat later rose all around. Corn started at ⅛ decline to a shade advance and subsequently held near the initial limits, with May establishing a new low price record since 1898.

Upturns in wheat prices gained momentum after announcement of monthly unofficial crop reports. The average of the private estimates on 1932 domestic winter wheat yield was 463,000,000 bushels, whereas general expectance had been for an average of 470,000,000. The average forecast of 463,000,000 compared also with the Government April estimate of 458,000,000 and with a 10-year average of 588,000,000.

Winter wheat production by states this season as estimated in one of the unofficial summaries was: Kansas, 93,000,000; Nebraska, 23,000,000; Oklahoma, 43,000,000; Texas, 38,000,000; Colorado, 4,000,000; Illinois, 24,000,000; Indiana, 24,000,000; Ohio, 30,000,000. The same summary indicated 1932 spring wheat seeding as 19,585,000 acres, compared with 13,940,000 in 1931 and 21,629,000 in 1930.

Corn and oats rallied slightly with wheat, but only after all deliveries of corn had reached a new low on the 1932 crop.

Provisions were steadeid by firmness of hog values.

NEW YORK, May 3.—Print cloth manufacturers were willing in some instances to consider tenders of orders for standard 38½-inch 64x60s at 3c a yard or below the prices quoted a week ago.

No new business is developing in volume. Finished goods orders continued slow. Burlaps were steadier after the weakness Monday. Rayon orders are lessening, silk goods are selling slowly. A few new lines of women's wear coatings for fall are being shown.

The Wrong Wife

by Arthur Somers Roche

CHAPTER 14.

"SECOND choice, am I?" said Cordova.

"Because you're so hard to get, you with your poky old job," said Milly. "But, please, Dick. The Hardings are giving a dance and I just must have a man for Minna."

"No can do, Milly," he told her. "I'm an employe of the city. I have a job. And I can't handle that job if I stay up until dawn."

"But you won't have to, silly," she explained. "If you'll dine with us—there'll be 13 if you don't, and I couldn't abide that—and just go on to the Hardings for a little while—I promise it will be all right if you stay until half past 11. There are extra men coming in late."

"Do you mean that, Milly?" he asked.

"Cross my heart and hope to die," she assured him. "But come out this afternoon and bring a bathing suit."

The invitation was tempting. As a matter of fact, there would be no dereliction of duty involved. The papers he had planned to go over today could be as easily gone over tomorrow.

"I'd love to," he said.

So he left the office shortly after noon, having telephoned Webbing that he would lunch at home, and would like flannels laid out and bathing suit and evening clothes packed.

There was no letter from Del Carmichael waiting for him, and it was with a sinking heart that he set out for Roslyn. Assure himself though he would that the girl hadn't really had time to answer his letter, his self-assurances were of little value.

But depression could not exist around Milly Cragin. When Cordova reached the Cragin place at Roslyn he was told that his hostess expected him to change to a bathing suit instantly and join the other guests at the pool. He did so as quickly as possible, and found, when he reached the pool, that he was expected to play doubles on an adjoining tennis court.

His partner was the heralded Minna Duprey, and, if Cordova's heart had not been in the keeping of an ash-blonde, he would have found her brunette beauty irresistible. As it was, he decided that she was charming—and also an excellent tennis player — and they defeated with comparative ease the Dalworthys, who were rated as the best married team playing mixed doubles of all that set of people who feel that supremacy in that set is more desirable than world fame.

The swim, later on, was delightful. It was good, having had his nose so close to the grindstone recently, to indulge in idle, but merry conversation. It was good, for a change, to associate with people whose only idea of life was to enjoy it. Grimy politics were far from here.

TEA was pleasant, dinner was enjoyable, and it was quarter to 12 when he finally pulled himself away from the Hardings' dance. On the drive back to New York he began dreaming. Del and he—provided that the miracle came to pass, and she loved and married him—would be careful not to live too secluded, too business-like a life. They must make room for people like Milly and her husband, for the Dalworthys, for the Hardings. He, Cordova, knew everybody; invitations were merely a matter of whether or not he would accept them. Well, Del must lead their social life; but they must have gay and thoughtless companions as well as solemn politicians.

He would bring to the mayoralty such a life as had never been known to New York politics. She would lend distinction to that necessary official entertaining; she'd create a salon; her charm and beauty, and his position—he meant political—and wealth would combine to act as magnets to the most entertaining and worth-while people who either lived in or came to New York.

A little later there'd be the governorship; then the Senate; then—for who could tell—the White House. He was beset by doubts again, however, as he told the doorman at his apartment to phone the garage for a man to take his car away. If she didn't reply to his letter by tomorrow • • •

Webbing opened the door in response to his ring.

The man's white face—once, on a two week's fishing trip that pallor had resisted all efforts of the sun and wind—was even more grave than usual. And his voice was subtly disapproving.

"There's a lady waiting for you, sir," he said.

"A lady?" gasped Cordova. Visions of Clara Raynor flashed through his mind. Was this another slimy effort • • •

"She insisted on coming in, sir. Miss Carmichael, she gave her name as, and"——

But Cordova was pushing past him, Del! She had come in person instead of writing. He burst into the living room, then stopped in utter amazement. For it was not Del, but Deborah, who turned from the window to greet him.

It is in moments of surprise that details fix themselves most clearly in our minds. Deborah had the faintest mole, the tiniest of beauty spots, just below her left ear. Cordova had not noticed it when he saw her at Warumkeg, but now it took on—as it never would again—the proportions, almost, of a blemish. Also—because in shock we grasp at irrelevancies—he wondered what on earth she could be looking at through the window. From a lighted room one can see practically nothing outside, except other lights. . . .

BUT now, as, having taken one step toward him, she paused, other details fixed themselves in his consciousness. Her gray eyes were wider spaced than he had thought; her hair had a ripple that might have seemed wind blown but for the fact that each strand lay smoothly in place. The simple traveling suit she wore, the absurdly small shoes, the gay little hat which seemed perched on the back of her head—all these things together made her different from the girl whom he had met at Carmichael's camp.

But it was not, he subconsciously recognized, a difference caused by such externals as clothing or change of scene. At Warumkeg he had met a girl; here he met a woman. Within the girl there had transpired that subtle change that makes for maturity.

He caught at his wits; he was standing there, gawky, bewildered, uncertain. It was the sudden, vivid blush that colored her cheeks that brought him to realization of the fact that he had not yet greeted her.

"Why—why—this is a surprise—I"——

He stopped, self-angered that facility of speech should desert him. The wide gray eyes appraised him. Behind the embarrassment in them lay a coolness of calculation that, if it could have been read by him, would have changed the whole course of his life. But he, embarrassed himself, could only see the obvious things, the fiery blush on her face, the timidity of her manner. He felt her maturity, but couldn't recognize it.

No faintest suspicion of reason for her presence had entered his mind. If suspicion had been in his thoughts, he might have spoken, might have said something—though afterward he wondered what could have been said—that he would have deflected her from her purpose.

"Surprise?" she repeated his word. "Oh, Dick, Dick, dearest!"——

She paused now, as though too overcome to continue. He knew that his mouth opened; that dimly he began to comprehend.

"Why—Why——" he gasped.

Now timidity left her. The eyes that met his were candid, so deep the guile that may lie behind gray eyes.

"Dick, beloved—your letter——"

She took another step forward—another. Then, with a sudden rush, she was close to him, her arms about him, her head hidden on his chest.

HIS letter. Comprehension was definite now. His abominable handwriting! The passionate avowal meant for Del had gone to Deborah. And she—she had taken it for herself—and responded. What an ironical thing life was! He had wondered if the same lightning that had struck him could possibly strike a lovely girl at the same time. Well it had. But not the girl he had wanted.

The slim young body pressed against him shivered; he felt a sob shaking her. Involuntarily his arms went about her, held her, to soothe, to comfort. An ache struck his heart. This was tragedy of the bitterest sort. This proud young thing, to have given him her heart unwanted, unasked.

A moment ago he had felt her maturity; now she seemed absurdly young again. But, even as he came to that conclusion, her face raised from his chest and her eyes looked into his. They were moist with unshed tears and there was an appeal in them that he could not understand.

She was taller than he had thought, and, as she tilted back her head to glance at him, her mouth was not too far from his own. He was in love with her cousin, Del. For the first time in his life he had wanted a woman so badly that marriage was not the price to be paid for her, but a privilege to be granted. And he could not have told how it happened.

The parted lips murmured something; the moist lashes quivered; the young body pressed against him trembled; her hands slipped from his shoulders to his neck, deflecting his head.

Even as his lips moved to meet hers, vague warnings were in his ears; voices seemed to call to him that this was a hideous mistake; that the mistake should not be permitted to change the whole course of his life, his love. But as his lips met hers, the warnings were stilled, and he was only aware that something incredibly sweet, something unbelievably young, was in his arms, was returning his kiss.

Self-hatred mastered him as swiftly as desire had conquered him. Gently he released the girl, faintly surprised that she relinquished her embrace so quickly. What a cad he had been! To accept—and return—the first kiss of passion that a young girl offered. When he felt for her nothing of affection, when she was merely the barest acquaintance.

To have explained to her, then to have laughted gayly at her, pointed out to her that she was very young, that she would have a dozen puppy loves before she definitely gave her heart to anyone; these were the things to have done; this was the way to meet such a situation. Instead, he had permitted surprise to master him, had permitted her to embrace him, had accepted, because he was weak, the gift of her lips.

JOE VON STERNBERG

Formerly an Obscure 'Yes Man' He Wore Red Shirts to Attract Attention —Now He Can Afford to Walk Out on a Fat Contract Because He Did Not Like His Latest Picture.

JOSEF VON STERNBERG . . . denies his name was once Joe Stern.

—By Henry F. Pringle—

AT the moment, Josef von Sternberg, despite his fights with his employers, is riding the crest of the troubled Hollywood sea. First to his credit is the fact that he lured Miss Marlene Dietrich to the capital of the motion picture world. Secondly, he has directed this breath-taking German blonde in three pictures which won a degree of critical approval and also earned considerable money. The officials of the Paramount-Famous-Lasky Co., who long and jealously observed that Miss Greta Garbo brought a flow of gold to their rivals, the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer people, exuded good-will toward Mr. von Sternberg until the recent row.

Miss Dietrich, of course, is really only an incident in Von Sternberg's success. It really began, after the conventional vicissitudes, with an idea for a surgical scene borrowed from another artist, one Rembrandt Van Rijn. In 1924, very obscure and ill-paid, he was an assistant to H. William Neil, a director at the old F. B. O. studios.

Von Sternberg's duties were the usual ones of an assistant director: chiefly saying "Yes." He had little to do with the picture until, at the very end, Neil was incapacitated. The last scene had been planned. The actors were ready, and so the assistant was permitted to finish "Vanity's Price." In due time the completed film was being run off in a company projection room for a group of executives who watched listlessly until the end of the last reel. Then they sat up. They saw the glare of an operating amphitheater, the cluster of lights above an inert figure on the operating table. Next the camera had been switched to the high rows of benches against the wall. It had picked out, one by one, the faces of doctors and internes watching the operation by which the woman of the story was seeking to retain her youth. Von Sternberg had instructed one of his actors to show disgust. Another had been told to lean over toward the man next to him and leer, as though some obscene remark had passed between them. A third looked amused.

Those closing shots were remembered after "Vanity's Price," otherwise a thoroughly tawdry production, had been forgotten. A mild degree of recognition came to Von Sternberg as word circulated that he had been responsible for the direction.

VON STERNBERG'S reputation is based, in part, on his ability to create effects by indirection. Sometimes he is very successful. In one of his pictures a character is deserted by his fiancee at a dinner party being given in her honor. Many a director would have called for the glycerin tears and written in a long speech for the heart-broken man. Instead, Von Sternberg portrays the victim as making a gallant effort to reassure his guests. The tension of the situation is indicated by the embarrassment of the guests, who talk to each in nonsequiturs. Von Sternberg makes other uses, also, of indirection. He can convey sensuality in a manner which baffles the censors; they cannot put their finger on it. A recent example of this is the costume worn by Miss Dietrich in "The Blue Angel," in which Von Sternberg found a new way to make garters interesting.

He had no intention of permitting the applause which followed "Vanity's Price" to die away. Within a few days he had inserted an advertisement in one of the trade papers, a rather grandiose notice to the effect that Von Sternberg was now directing a picture of his own. With George K. Arthur, later known as a screen comedian, he had taken a camera and two or three extra people down to San Pedro, south of Los Angeles. It seems that Arthur, impressed by his ability, had gone to Von Sternberg to say that he had a story called "Just Plain Bugs" from which they could make an excellent picture.

He also had some money.

Von Sternberg was not enthusiastic over the artistic possibilities in "Just Plain Bugs," but he was interested in the fact that, with Arthur's help, about $5000 could be raised. He said that he would substitute a story of his own. So, for a week or two, extraordinary shots were made against the bulk of a dredge in San Pedro Bay. The jaws of the scoop, used to dig mud from the channel, offered angles and "machinery shots" that were to make German producers guttural with jealousy. The story Von Sternberg had written was rather incoherent, somber and confused. Outstanding, however, was the suppressed excitement which infused the faces of his nondescript actors. They became real people, experiencing real emotion; not the calcimined pretty-pretties of Hollywood. The picture was called "The Salvation Hunters," for no very good reason.

JOSEF VON STERNBERG is the center of the current outstanding controversy in the Hollywood studios, for he walked out on Paramount, where he was reported to be paid $250,000 a year as director, because he objected to the pictures selected for him to direct. The walkout immediately extended to Marlene Dietrich, whom he exclusively directed, as she insisted she could work under no other director. There has been much conjecture as to the outcome of the controversy, as producers are inclined to co-operate to the extent of boycotting employes who fall out with any of their number. The appended sketch of Von Sternberg, which includes his association with Dietrich, is reprinted from the New Yorker, by special permission.

Conviction that he had created a masterpiece very nearly wrecked Von Sternberg's well laid plans. "It started as a promotion idea for myself," he confesses, "but it became a cause. We grew very intense. I became ill with neuritis. Then, at the preview, the audience laughed for an hour. My neuritis left me." Again, everything became simple. He began to exploit "The Salvation Hunters." He had been laughed at, but he would become famous. With Arthur, he contrived to have the picture shown to Charlie Chaplin and a few days later the two men received a telephone call from Douglas Fairbanks asking them to call at the United Artists Studio. Hollywood's King, such being the Fairbanks gag, said Charlie Chaplin had been wildly enthusiastic over their picture.

Fairbanks offered to buy a share in the picture for $20,000. All Hollywood rushed to see "The Salvation Hunters" and most of it was frightfully bored. The picture was art, however. Chaplin had said so. Von Sternberg was famous and for days remained in seclusion. He would not see even the agents bearing contracts.

Innumerable legends began to circulate about him, some of which he encouraged. An expert in Teutonic genealogy might view the "von" with suspicion, but he denounces the rumor that his real name is Joe Stern and that he was born in Brooklyn. The facts about him seem commonplace enough. He is 37 years old, small and rather slight. His hair, which he wears longish, is dark brown and so is his mustache. His eyes are blue. His manner of contracting his eyebrows seems to give him a faintly sinister air, a fancy which becomes absurd as he rattles on about his career and aspirations. If he once wore red or black shirts to attract attention to himself, as Hollywood accuses, the day has passed. His clothes are conventional enough and the fact of his carrying a cane, which causes his associates to gabble, quite escapes the attention of the outsider. For reasons not at all clear, the motion-picture people never carry canes.

VON STERNBERG insists that he may be in Hollywood, but is not of it. I am a dilettante in the motion picture," he says. "My real interest is art. From time to time I succumb to vagabondage; I get away when I can." The impression is given that all this links up somehow with the fact that his first audience, the audience which saw "The Salvation Hunters," laughed; laughed because it did not appreciate genius. A portion of his self-analysis is true. Von Sterberg is a remote figure. He paints rather well. He is an authority on certain of the modernists. Certainly he goes out very little. In the lunchroom on the lot he eats alone, instead of joining the long table where other directors and writers sit.

MARLENE DIETRICH . . . refused to work without her great director.

Partly because he is different, but not wholly, Von Sternberg is not popular. The accepted thing for the man who has risen is to appreciate the niceties of noblesse oblige.

ONLY in the light of artistic frustrations, assuming that he has suffered them, does Von Sternberg's career seem to have been so difficult. He was born in Vienna and came to this country when he was 7 years old. He had a spasmodic schooling, partly at the Jamaica High School on Long Island. His connection with the motion picture industry began 17 years ago, when, having left home, he started work in the old World Film Co. at Fort Lee. There he learned all the technicalities, such as developing and printing films, patching them, repairing cameras.

Von Sternberg's first real problem arose in 1918, when he was assigned to the War College to make films which would instruct American soldiers in the art of war. Officers at the cantonments had been complaining that they could order the doughboys to attend showings of these educational pictures, but they could not command them to stay awake. Von Sternberg, wholly uninhibited by censorship for once, began a lesson on the bayonet with a few feet showing what knife wounds looked like. Enthusiastic reports reached the War College; the men had stayed awake, not only during the show, but most of the night as well.

The years just after the war were somewhat unsettled, including a year or so of vagabondage in Europe. In 1924 he took a day coach for Hollywood and so began the super epic we already know: "Vanity's Price," "The Salvation Hunters" and fame. The path to glory should have been smooth, but an obstacle in the shape of temperament remained. Von Sternberg was engaged to direct a film for Mary Pickford, and withdrew in a huff because of delays. He was hired by Metro-Goldwyn, became disgusted with the picture he was assigned to make, and the contract was dissolved.

THE rest is climax. He was discouraged and unhappy; badly in need of a job. Then, by three days and nights of retakes and furious activity, he was able to salvage a film on which Paramount had spent $600,000 and which had been condemned as worthless. Soon after came the chance to direct "Underworld," which made vast sums. He was shortly directing Jannings in "The Last Command." He produced other films: "The Docks of New York," "The Case of Lena Smith," and "Thunderbolt." All of them had what Hollywood calls "B. O.:" Box Office Appeal. At the same time, the critics liked them. His employers became pathetically grateful, and "Directed by Josef von Sternberg" appeared regularly in the companys advertising.

Last year he was invited by Ufa, the German company, to direct a talking picture for Jannings, who had been permitted to return to Berlin by the Hollywood magnates. He found an adequate story, "The Blue Angel," but no feminine star competent to play the part of the girl whose charms had illumined an obscure cabaret. One night he dropped into a Berlin theater. It was just at curtain time. Von Sternberg was studying the program when he heard a woman on the stage say, in English, something like "Hurrah for the three heroes." This was the only English line in the play; he was astonished that a German actress could pronounce the word "three" so perfectly. Next day he announced that Miss Marlene Dietrich would support Jannings in "The Blue Angel" and was told by Ufa officials that this was impossible; Miss Dietrich was beautiful, but stupid.

"I hear you are stupid," he said when, nevertheless, she called to be told about the part, Miss Dietrich smiled. No, she was not stupid.

A print of "The Blue Angel" ultimately reached Hollywood, with the result that Miss Dietrich soon followed. She became, for the moment, Von Sternberg's new cause. Her discoverer expresses resentment, and this in the face of certain unmistakable poses in "Morocco," at the stories that she is like Garbo. "She has everything," he insists. "I am planning her pictures to show her various phases."

Von Sternberg is a genius in the use of the camera. He knows more about lighting, probably, than anyone else in the industry. The fault to be found with certain of his pictures is that they are so much more beautiful than their content deserves. He is far more influenced, I suspect, by the Hollywood aura than he admits. The best of his pictures may approach greatness, as "The Last Command" certainly did. His worst are pretty bad, but they have occasional inspired flashes. He will consent to shoot traditional, hackneyed endings. His characters are sometimes preposterously unreal. At the same time there is inevitably something which one remembers: the way some woman moved, the way some man made love.

ONE of Von Sternberg's difficulties lies in his conviction, which he denies, that the story is unimportant. He gives the impression, as the script is being prepared, that nothing interests him more. He interferes with the writers so much that scenarists avoid working with him when they can. When production starts he forgets all this. He will discard vital plot essentials for some camera shot. He will drift along, perfectly contented, with a series of situations. The resulting picture may be interesting, even moving. It requires careful examination to discover that it has everything except a story.

After all, "The Salvation Hunters" had no story. Von Sternberg never forgets that experience on the mud flats off San Pedro. Defiantly, he insists that no one else shall. Each year there is published a large volume, the Film Year, Book, in which actors, producers, directors, and writers insert advertisements calling attention to their most distinguished work. The last issue had a full page bearing the concise legend: "Joseh von Sternberg, Director of 'The Salvation Hunters.'"

If you ask my Opinion

by Martha Carr

DEAR MRS. CARR: I am a girl, 18 years old. I am keeping company with a young man 24 years old, and we are tired of shows, and dances, and card parties. Could you please suggest something besides these things to do, that will be interesting and exciting, but does not cost a lot of money? BOBBE.

There are any number of interesting card games, like "Russian Bank" and backgammon to play, and there are loads of books, short stories and poems and topics of general interest to discuss—exhibits at the Art Museum, concerts, contests to see, that do not cost anything, except perhaps car fare. "Ping-pong" is very smart this year and you might even go in for "cribbage." You can make them "exciting."

MY DEAR MRS. CARR: Is it necessary for a foreigner who has been a resident of America for 22 years to become an American citizen? I came to this country when 5 years old. And is it true that the Government is deporting every foreigner in America? BROWN EYES.

You will get detailed information about this at the U. S. Naturalization Bureau, room 240, Post-office Building at Ninth and Olive streets.

MY DEAR MRS. CARR: My mother and I are going to Europe this summer, and I have a problem which has vexed me quite often before when signing for names in the hotel registers. I would like you to explain how to enter my mother's name and my own, so that I may be spared the feeling of doubt I have had previously. B. L.

If your father is still living, or your mother is a widow, the form would be the same, Mrs. Joseph B. Langston, Saint Louis, Missouri, U. S. A. If a divorcee, Mrs. Alice Collins Langston, or (preferably now), Mrs. Collins Langston. On the next line, just under hers, you would sign your own name, Miss Louise B. Langston, Saint Louis, Missouri, U. S. A. You can abbreviate "Missouri" if you care to, of course.

DEAR MRS. CARR: I am wondering if you will enlighten me on this: I have seen quite a few programs here lately with "violinist" and "pianist" being spelt "violiniste" and "pianiste," instead of the former way of spelling them. I am wondering if this is correct or if the spelling has been recently changed. AN ORGANIST.

"Violiniste" and "pianiste" are used for the feminine. There has been no change of spelling.

DEAR MRS. CARR: I am 17 years old and have been going with a boy five months. I am only allowed to see him once a week. Last week he came in the afternoon about 3 o'clock. In the evening we went to the theater and returned about 10:30, when I asked him in he stayed until 11:30. My father objects to this, because he doesn't think it proper. Do you agree with him?

THANK YOU.

Of course I suppose the boy wants to make it a "long session" when he doesn't see you often, but it was not very diplomatic for him to come in again, especially to remain that long, unless your family was still about. It isn't good form ever to overdo that.

There Is No System of Bidding to Cover Every Situation Arising in Contract.

—By SHEPARD BARCLAY—

PLAYERS who claim perfection for the bidding system they favor are to be pitied. There can never be such a thing as a perfect bidding system—one which infallibly enables the partners to arrive at the best final declaration for their side. To predict the play with a fair degree of accuracy a fair proportion of the time, perhaps a bit more accurately and a bit more often than the other fellow, is all that can be asked of anybody's bidding.

Some hands come along which defy all the bidding logic in the world. Systems are devised to cover situations which in the long run are productive of the most points, but the exceptional deal can knock them all galley west. The man who would forsake his system, however, because of what occurs on a freak deal is the sort who would give up any fight because of a bit of difficulty. Suppose you and your partner held the North and South cards in a deal like this:

It happens that North and South can make a no trump grand slam. Playing through the king-jacks, five diamonds and five clubs can be run. If the ace of either spades or hearts is taken out first, the last club trick gives the declarer a perfect squeeze against the East hand. Suppose at the finish, South's last three cards are the heart eight, spade seven and a club; North the spade ace and eight and the heart nine. When the last club is led, the heart is discarded. Poor East meantime would hold two high spades and a heart, but must now get rid of one; if he tosses the heart, South's eight and North's spade ace furnish the last two tricks; if he sheds one of the spades, North's two spades make the closing two tricks.

Should North and South upbraid each other, or berate their system, because they failed to reach a no trump slam bid on those cards? Or should East weep, wail and gnash his teeth because his system indicated that his double of their bid was sound? To do so would be the height of folly.

Some klibitzer will argue that no such hand as that was ever dealt. Hands almost as freakish have been in fact, change two of East's spades and two of his hearts to little ones, giving North, in place of his small heart and spade, the ten and jack respectively, and you will have a hand that did get dealt in the usual way. Fontaine Fox, the noted cartoonist, is the man who held the East cards and soundly doubled a higher no trump bid than was justified by the North-South cards. The latter nevertheless took all the tricks, by the same type of play as already given.

The faith of a player in a good system must be based on what it does for him most of the time, not in circumstances like these.

The Greatest Tournament

THERE is a good deal of question as to what is the greatest bridge tournament of the year. In some respects one could claim that rank, in other respects another. There is no doubt, however, that in several ways the outstanding competition is the Westchester County Championship to determine the most skillful contractors in that great residential suburb of New York City.

Westchester lends itself perfectly to a type of organization which has proved so effective that it can be used as a pattern by similar territorial units in other parts of the country. It has more fairly sizable communities at convenient distances from each other than can be found anywhere else. The county has been divided into 10 districts, each presided over by a committee headed by a prominent local social leader, in charge of the management and promotion of the district play. These ten district chairmen, plus the writer, who is the general chairman, from the general committee in charge of the event.

The district tournaments are conducted in the finest clubs in the county, including such famous ones as the Westchester Country Club, Pelham Country Club, Oriental Beach Club, Mount Kisco Country Club, Sleepy Hollow Manor Club and Sleepy Hollow Golf Club. Each district tournament is a competition for the district championship trophy in each case presented by a prominent newspaper of the section.

Play in each district will be on three successive Monday evenings, beginning tomorrow. The winning pair in each district, also the runner-up pair, and, where there are enough entries, two additional pairs, will qualify for the finals, to be played in the Westchester Country Club on May 23 and 24.

Last year the inaugural competition broke all records for a pair title entry, with 134 pairs as against the Eastern championship's previous mark of 80. The Eastern this year ran to 156 pairs, which will be eclipsed by the more than 160 players who will begin tomorrow. Mail-order competitions are the only kind which can beat the total of trophies offered, which will be approximately 200.

Sections of the country which have no single logical focal point for all their residents to get together can profit by organizing in the same way, holding district competitions at several places to qualify contestants for the finals. In practically every case, the hearty co-operation of the newspapers can be obtained. The chief trophy for the Westchester event is the J. Noel Macy Bowl, given as a permanent title emblem by the noted publisher.

A Law a Week

In a progressive pair game, what can be done to prevent the same pairs meeting several times?

The simplest way is to have half the pairs be "progressors" throughout the session and the other pairs stationary. The right to sit still or progress is determined by the first round of play. Those who win that round have their choice. They may decide to stay at the same table all the session, or to progress after each round. Whatever they decide naturally determines also the course of the other pair playing with them. This makes it an absolute impossibility for the same pairs to meet again until they have played once at every other table.

Is it ethical for the original leader to ask for a complete review of the bidding after the contracting has ended and it has become his turn to lead? Can declarer or dummy legally refuse to allow the review? Does good sportsmanship demand that they give such a review?

Defensive Doubles

MANY advanced players have two different kinds of informatory doubles in their repertoire, which might be designated as attacking and defensive doubles. The latter kind can be made only by a nonvulnerable side, and are primarily for the purpose of seeking to impede the opponents from getting their best possible score. With most users of these tactics, the defensive or "shaded" double is never made except by a player who had previously passed. This is relatively safe because the partner knows from his pass that he cannot have a strong hand.

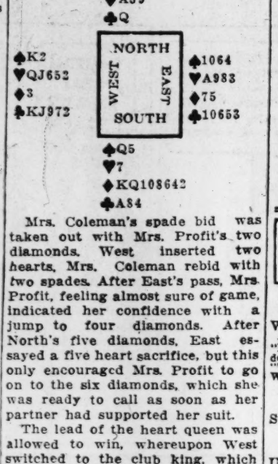

Suppose a dealer had passed originally and fourth hand opened with a bid of one heart, a defensive double of that kind would be permissible on this kind of hand:

S—K842 H—5 D—QJ106 C—KJ108

The double would show not necessarily more than one and a half high card tricks, but the ability to stand a takeout into any of the other suits, from the distributional standpoint. It should not be made on a hand that weak when vulnerable, however. After it the partner must not risk a business pass except with an extreme freak of a heart suit, for a double in this situation has shown no great defensive strength. The use of this kind of double is as dangerous as dynamite except with a good partner who will understand the nature of it, but employed properly it can save many points, frequently enabling the partner to make a sacrifice bid after the opponents have reached a game contract.

Unusual Hands

MRS. MARGARET COLEMAN in the North and Mrs. Nan Profit in the South produced some courageous and profitable bridge on this hand in a recent championship tournament.

Mrs. Coleman's spade bid was taken out with Mrs. Profit's two diamonds. West inserted two hearts, Mrs. Coleman rebid with two spades. After East's pass, Mrs. Profit, feeling almost sure of game, indicated her confidence with a jump to four diamonds. After North's five diamonds, East essayed a five heart sacrifice, but this only encouraged Mrs. Profit to go on to the six diamonds, which she was ready to call as soon as her partner had supported her suit.

The lead of the heart queen was allowed to win, whereupon West switched to the club king, which dropped the queen but was itself felled by the ace. Now came the ruffing of a club, a trump lead to the king, another club ruffed by the ace, a second trump lead, and nothing remained but to try the spade finesse, which won. The bold bidding which produced a slam contract had won over those who stopped at five diamonds.

Mrs. Philip Hal Sims and John Rau, both noted as psychic bidders, gained a neat top score on this hand in a recent championship because of a combination of their own skill and the way their reputations influenced two shrewd opponents, as will be related next week. Both sides were vulnerable and Mrs. Sims in the South the dealer. What would you do with the hand?

HEALTH

Health and Economics

MUCH concern has been expressed in many quarters over the possible effects of the unemployment situation on the health of our people.

From the Surgeon-General's office at Washington come reassuring reports that the past year's mortality rates were among the lowest on record and that there has been no appreciable increase of deaths in any important division.

While at first this may appear an encouraging index to the health condition of the country and to indicate that the present retardation in business has had no injurious effect upon public health, the Surgeon-General's report, when carefully scrutinized, does not justify these conclusions.

The effects of a starvation diet do not become apparent at once. They may be perceptible only after the lapse of 20 or 30 years, for in times of economic or other stress, it is the young and the aged, but particularly the young, who suffer most.

There is, however, if the expression may be permitted, a cheerful aspect to economic depression. We find associated with such periods a definite decline in the so-called degenerative diseases.

It appears that people, whether directly or indirectly affected, are inclined to eat less, and perhaps to pay more attention to their physical well-being.

Possibly, too, fewer excesses are indulged in and the result is that the degenerative diseases claim fewer victims.

This was certainly the case in Germany during the first years of the war. Later when the economic duress and the shortage of food became acute, the population, particularly the young, suffered terribly.

Those who are obliged to economize in the food budget should do so after careful study.

It is surprising how cheaply a balanced and nourishing diet may be bought if one is willing to forego a certain amount of refinement and convenience in food items.

TARIFFS PUT ON LUMBER, OIL, COPPER AND COAL

Senate Committee Reverses Previous Decision on Import Duties—Two-Year Limit on Excise List and on Higher Postage Cut Out.

4 CT. LEVY ON EACH $100 OF BOND SALES

Penalty on Corporation Returns Approved—$5 Exemption on Checks Is Dropped and Jewelry Levy Is Eliminated.

By PAUL Y. ANDERSON,
Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, May 4.—Toward the close of an acrimonious session, the Senate Finance Committee this afternoon voted to place an "import tax" of $3 a thousand feet on lumber. "Import taxes" really are tariffs under another name.

The tariff coalition in the committee then in quick order put in the revenue bill import duties on oil, coal and copper. The duty on copper was made 4 cents a pound, that on oil was put at ½ cent a gallon. The present rate of $1 a thousand feet on lumber imports was hoisted to $3. All decisions were by narrow margins and represented reversals of previous decisions. The committee also added an import duty of 2½ cents a gallon on gasoline imports.

The committee today struck out of the tax bill the provisions under which the new excise taxes and postage increases would have terminated automatically two years hence. The action indicated that the committee saw nothing in the outlook to justify a hope that special taxation will be unnecessary after July, 1934.

The time limit removal also applies to the new telephone, telegraph and leased wire tax.

The committee also discovered that an import tax of 5 cents a pound on crude rubber—through which it had hoped to raise $56,000,000 in new revenue—would raise virtually nothing for a year, because there is a full year's supply of product in storage in this country. The fact was not learned by the committee until today.

The committee ground away readily on the bill, and there was a possibility that it would be complete before the end of the afternoon session, although Chairman Smoot thought tomorrow was a better forecast. The measure, loaded with a dozen inflammatory issues, probably will reach the floor of the Senate on Monday, after which the fireworks will not long be delayed.

Millions by Elimination.

At today's session the committee voted to impose a flat 2-cent tax on all bank checks, thus striking out the provision whereby the House would have exempted checks for less than $5. It was estimated that elimination of the exemption would produce $35,000,000 more revenue.

The House rate of ⅛ of 1 per cent on bond transfers was reduced by the Senate committee to a flat 2 cents on each $100 of face value. And then Senator Reed, old-guard Pennsylvania Republican, protested that the new rate would result in closing the New York bond market.

"I anticipate that, if this tax stays in the bill, the bootlegging of bonds will become a thriving industry," he said. "It will be impossible to check the transfer of bonds from hand to hand."

The committee was badly jolted by its discovery of the crude rubber situation. The present price is 22 cents a pound, and members said the imposition of a tax of 5 cents apparently would have the sole effect of enabling owners of the stored supply to double the price to purchasers.

"I don't imagine," remarked Senator Connally, Texas Democrat, "that we are going to levy a tax that would yield virtually no revenue and would add 100 per cent to the profits of the rubber importers. That item is out."

Stock Loans Tax Cut Out.

The committee also struck out the House provision for a tax on the loaning of stock—through which the House hoped to curb short selling. Senators were convinced that it would not accomplish this purpose, and would work hardships on persons selling or buying at points distant from the market.

It explained that one reason for
